Cocky Young Pilot's Fortunes Rise

Friend and Foe Heed Ky, Once Not Taken Seriously

Saigon (AP)—Nguyen, Cao Ky likes to go his own way.

Years ago he told interviewers that the way would take him some day, by force if necessary, back to North Vietnam.

No one outside the South Vietnamese Air Force seemed to take the cocky young pilot seriously.

Last week, after 13 months as premier, he again presented his views, at a full-dress news conference.

This time he was taken seriously. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge conveyed the idea that U.S. aims in Vietnam were not helped by statements suggesting invasions of the north. The Australian government equally expressed its disapproval.

Ky's response to these diplomatic wrist-slaps was not revealed. It can be deduced, however, from his reply to similar criticism from Sens. Mike Mansfield and J. William Fulbright.

"They may not like the way it is," Ky snapped, "but that is the way that it is."

The heat generated by the 35-year-old premier's remarks indicates the rise in his fortunes. His views are now weighed by both friend and foe.

Ky still occasionally acts like the hot-shot pilot that he is, but he has learned to couple his flamboyance with more political sophistication. Even so, he still has a weakness for off-hand remarks.

His most famous bobble was an expression of admiration for Adolph Hitler. He had to back off that one, explaining he meant Vietnam could use a little more of Hitler's discipline and organizational ability. Even that left a bad taste in many mouths.

Nowadays, he is more careful. He keeps his wife Mai out of the limelight since she was photographed performing a fast draw with a western six-shooter.

The big cloud on his horizon is his seeming failure to arouse significant popular enthusiasm.

Like so much in Vietnam, this, too, may be deceptive. Hardened by 20 years of war and instability, the 15 million people of South Vietnam are skeptical. The peasant majority hides its feelings with oriental inscrutability.

The Sept. 11 elections for a constitutional assembly may provide some hard evidence of Ky's popularity, but he has said, typically: "I organized the elections for the people. If they do not participate, it is not my fault."

He also said he would leave politics in 1967 when the electoral timetable calls for the naming of a new leader and installing new constitutional forms.

Whether Ky is completely serious is open to question. He plans to retain his post as air vice-marshal and commander-in-chief of the Air Force and that alone will insure his continued political influence.

Ky . . . now taken seriously.

Britain's Beatles . . . making noise without instruments.

Words Without Music

Beatles Are at It Again

London (AP) — The embattled Beatles kept sounding off Saturday in words without music.

One of the mop-haired millionaires told a British radio audience he found American people's pursuit of money "sort of frightening."

Another said he wasn't really looking forward to their new tour of the United States beginning next week — "we've got to go and get beaten up in America." For good measure, he said Britain was becoming a police state.

Beatles Paul McCartney and George Harrison got into the act even while manager Brian Epstein was in the United States trying to quiet a revolt against a coming invasion by his group.

The revolt stemmed from published remarks of Chief Beatle John Lennon that the group was "more popular than Jesus now."

Usually loud drummer Ringo has been the silent one of late.

The Beatles' press office rushed out a bulletin saying Lennon was "deeply interested in religion" and that what he meant was this:

"That in the last 50 years the church in England and therefore Christ had suffered decline in interest. He did not mean to boast about the Beatles' fame."

The Beatles were decorated by Queen Elizabeth II for bringing dollars and recognition to Britain — an award that was widely acclaimed and criticized.

'No Winners'

Airlines, Strikers Told: Try Again or Face New Law

Washington (UPI)—Airlines and striking machinists were given a congressional choice Saturday: try again for a weekend settlement or face a "no winners" back-to-work bill. But chances for an agreement looked slim.

The House Commerce Committee formally asked the two sides to meet all weekend to seek agreement. If they failed, Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., said, the committee will expedite legislation to order the strikers back to work.

Would "Intensify"

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz said he would "intensify" contacts already being made with the two sides. However, airline spokesman William J. Curtin said he saw "no prospect" for a settlement. Union spokesman Frank Heisler declined to assess the prospects but said, "We're ready to talk at any time, always."

"There are no winners in this bill at all," Staggers warned. The Senate-passed resolution he referred to would give Congress and the President a joint role in ordering the strikers back to work for up to 180 days.

Staggers, echoed by many committee members, said the bill would "set back collective bargaining . . . up to 100 years."

When the Senate passed the resolution, the five strike-bound airlines hailed the action but the 35,000-man International Association of Machinists denounced it.

"Breakdown" Blamed

Curtin, chief negotiator for the airlines, described the real problem as "The breakdown in collective bargaining."

Heisler, airline coordinator for the IAM, said his union already has told Wirtz it was ready to talk "on 30 minutes notice." But he said the negotiating committee for the carriers "isn't even in town."

Staggers said if there was no settlement by Monday, his committee would expedite action on the measure "with everything at our command." But he indicated the hearings could take several days.

Under a second day of committee questioning, Wirtz said he thought that if the legislation passed, the dispute would be settled sometime during the 180-day no-strike period.

Again, he carefully avoided any administration stand on the bill, bringing an expression of "deep disappointment" from Rep. John Bell Williams, D-Miss., over administration failure to exert leadership.

Wirtz said his department had been "at every moment probing every possibility" of a settlement and would intensify the effort. But no formal talks were scheduled over the weekend. In earlier testimony, however, he foresaw "no meaningful talks" as long as congressional action was pending.

Senator Ellender Hints At Food Price Freeze

Washington (UPI) — A powerful congressional voice spoke out Saturday for a government-imposed freeze of food prices if they continue to rise.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, also opposed any increase in wheat acreage allotment to farmers even though bread is a leader in higher food costs.

Asked if sharp price increases across the country were justified, Ellender said: "I don't believe they are from the farmer's standpoint. The cause is not due to the price supports or prices the farmer receives. It seems to me they are due to labor and transportation costs and other in-betweens."

Texas Chalice

Washington (UPI) — The communion cup used at the Luci Johnson-Patrick Nugent wedding was the so-called "Lone Star Chalice," presented to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in 1959 by Texas Catholics. The chalice is adorned with bluebonnets, the state flower of Texas.

Whitman

Pathologist: Old Injury Not Cause

Austin, Tex. (UPI)—A pathologist who performed the autopsy on the body of sniper Charles J. Whitman said Saturday he did not believe an old head injury had anything to do with Whitman's 15-death rampage.

"There was no remaining sign of anything" from the injury Whitman suffered in the Marine Corps at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in 1963, Dr. Coleman de Chenar said.

"There was no scar, no brain damage, no fracture."

Whitman was in a jeep which rolled 25 feet over an embankment. He lost consciousness for several hours.

De Chenar characterized Whitman as "a walking charge of dynamite" which "a spark" could set off.

The pathologist also said he felt Whitman read a book, "The Open Square," by Ford Clark, which describes a killer who plots to use a tower to kill people and takes gasoline, water, food, and ammunition for his siege.

"It is my personal feeling (Whitman) did read the book," De Chenar said.

All Are Believed Dead

41 Aboard Braniff Plane

Falls City—A plane crashed about two miles north and three to four miles east of this small southeastern Nebraska town early Sunday morning.

The Federal Aviation Agency reported it had lost radar and radio contact with a Braniff airliner. The FAA's air route traffic control center said the missing plane was Braniff flight 250 from Kansas City to Omaha.

Walter M. Henshel, vice president of Braniff Airlines in charge of public relations, said in Dallas that the missing plane is a twin-engined BAC 111 jet carrying 37 passengers and a crew of four.

Mrs. Claire Hurlburt, wife of the Falls City Journal city editor, said she had gone to the crash scene with her husband.

"There were bodies all over," she said. "I don't think they found any alive." The Falls City Community Hospital reported that they had not yet received any survivors or bodies, shortly after the crash.

Mrs. Hurlburt said she had talked to witnesses of the crash. They told her the plane seemed to explode in the air and then came straight down in an open farm field on top of a hill.

Morris Jones, of Rulo, said, "The plane comes over every night. I heard the jet engines, right on time.

"Then the engines suddenly shut off and there was an explosion. It lasted a good 30 seconds. The whole sky lighted up. Then the whole thing crashed."

Braniff said the flight originated in Shreveport, La., and made stops at Fort Smith, Ark., and Tulsa, Okla. It was scheduled to fly from Kansas City to Omaha, then to Minneapolis.

Henshel said that about 20 of the passengers had boarded at Kansas City.

Tony Schawang, of Falls City, his wife and daughter were returning to their home when a jet plane suddenly fell out of low hanging clouds and crashed into the farm.

He said the explosion scattered wreckage and bodies over "six or seven acres" of the flatlands 11 miles northeast of the small town.

18 Bodies Said Removed

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — Falls City police dispatcher Allen Pokorny was quoted today by a Dallas radio station as saying 18 bodies were removed from the wreckage of a Braniff plane which crashed near Falls City, Neb.

Pokorny said there were no signs of any survivors in the wreckage and that the plane was still burning.

Draft Study Called 'Secret'

Washington (UPI)—Rep. Thomas Curtis, R-Mo., accused the Johnson administration Saturday of sidestepping the draft issue until after the November elections. "President Johnson's appointment of a 20-man commission to study the draft looks like another secret study, just like the alleged analysis supposedly conducted by the Defense Dept. a year ago," Curtis said. "It serves only to keep the truth from the public and to subvert the congressional committee process."

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—A retired army helicopter pilot who was wounded in two wars said Saturday he is receiving telephone calls denouncing him because he wants to rejoin the service. Walter L. Green said he has been called a killer, savage, gangster and "a tool of Wall Street" because he wants to sell his doughnut shop and reenlist.

Wedding Sidelight

No One, but No One Could Cut The Cake

Washington (UPI) — Neither the strong arm of the groom nor the determined sawing of the bride could do the job. Even the awesome power of the Presidency failed. No one, it seemed for a moment, could cut the cake at Luci Johnson's wedding reception.

The incident provided comic relief after a day of nervous tension and deep solemnity for the newly-wed Luci and Pat Nugent.

A raised platform had been erected in the East Room of the White House to permit the ceremonial slicing of the seven-foot high, 3-tier cake.

The President and Mrs. Johnson, the elder Nugents and the newlyweds took their place. The silver knife was produced.

But no one — Luci, Pat or the President — could get the utensil into the hard white icing. After a struggle that seemed to go on for a hilarious eternity, they gave up and switched the attack to another layer of the enormous cake. Finally, the fourth layer gave way to the determined hacking and the cake was cut.

Protests on War Recall Hiroshima

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Thousands of peace demonstrators observed the 21st anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Luci Johnson's wedding Saturday with marches and pickets demanding an end to the war in Vietnam.

Six persons were arrested as 15,000 demonstrators converged on New York's Times Square,

Pickets walked in a circle 500 feet from the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception while the President's daughter married Patrick Nugent inside. The pickets carried signs saying "Luci and Pat, may you live in a peaceful world."

In San Francisco, an estimated 4,000 marched through the downtown section behind coffins draped with Japanese and American flags. Peace demonstrators handed out peace pamphlets to 400 Indiana Army Reservists in the University of Wisconsin Student Union at Madison. The Hoosiers took the pamphlets calmly and then threw them away.

At the foot of the Soldier's and Sailors Monument in the center of Indianapolis, 40 men, women and children kept a silent two-hour vigil. Two hundred and fifty demonstrators listened to anti-war speeches at the federal building in downtown Chicago.

There were militant civil rights overtones to some of the marches. In New York, some of the marchers wore West African yoruba garb favored by some Black Nationalist groups and a mocking sign said "Black folks be patriotic . . . come fight for Whitey."

King: Will March More

Chicago (UPI)—Dr. Martin Luther King vowed Saturday to lead his marchers "again and again and again" into an all-white Chicago neighborhood where they were stoned and vilified by the most "hate-filled" mob he had ever encountered.

Dr. King, a veteran of many demonstrations in the South, was hit by a rock thrown by someone in a mob of whites shouting kill him, kill him" during Friday's march in the Chicago Lawn area.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner set no date for a return to the neighborhood. He flew to Atlanta, Ga., to attend next week's convention of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference in Jackson, Miss.

The Rev. James Bevel, one of King's Chicago aides, said civil rights demonstrators will gather at a West Side Congregational church Sunday and then go to Belmont-Cragin, another all-white area, on the city's northwest side, about 12 miles north of Friday's disturbance.

"I have never seen such deep hostility and hatred anywhere in my life, even in Selma," Dr. King said after he was hit by the rock.

OUTLAWING SPREAD OF NUCLEAR ARMS

Rusk Hopeful Soviets Will Sign Pact

By LEWIS GULICK

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk voiced hope Saturday that Russia will "negotiate with us in a spirit of compromise" on disarmament agreements going beyond the 1963 Nuclear Test-Ban Treaty.

In a statement hailing the third anniversary of the landmark pact banning all except underground atomic tests, Rusk spoke specifically of proposals to outlaw the spread of nuclear arms and to cut off production of atomic-weapons material.

These proposals now are before the 17-nation Disarmament Conference in Geneva — and No. 1 priority, in the U.S. view, goes to the effort to prevent atomic arms from spreading to new national arsenals.

Peace Hindered

Washington strategists fear mounting pressure on countries like India and Pakistan, Egypt and Israel and others to acquire nuclear weaponry could lead to disastrous consequences for world peace unless a curb is found.

Rusk's avowed hope is tempered, as he put it at Saturday's news conference, with doubt about prospects for an early solution to the U.S.-Soviet differences over a nonproliferation pact that have arisen in the Geneva talks.

Moscow has objected to the U.S. version of an agreement to check the spread on grounds that it would allow nuclear weapons for Germany.

Washington refused to shut its West German ally off from a nuclear-sharing arrangement.

A second obstacle has been the Vietnam war. The Soviets have been trying to avoid any appearance of being too friendly toward the United States.

Vital Interests

Nonetheless there is a mild undercurrent of optimism in the Johnson administration that Russia will sign a nonproliferation pact that would be even more important than the test-ban treaty. The reasoning is that a prohibition on the spread of atomic arms would become so vital for the Soviet national interest, as for America's, as to outweigh the other considerations.

Rusk found a "spirit of hope" in what he termed observance of the test-ban provisions by the 112 treaty signers "despite increased international tensions" since mid-1963.

Declaring that the U.S. government has pressed continually for widening the area of international curbs on nuclear arms, he pledged renewed U.S. efforts to this end.

A Fifth Anniversary

Senators Plan Anti-Inflation Test for LBJ

Washington (AP) —Republicans are preparing to test in the Senate the Johnson administration's willingness to hold down non-war expenditures as a brake on inflation. Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said GOP members will demand roll call votes on $490 million in increases made by the House in Health, Education and Welfare funds.

"We're going to see where the administration stands on spending so the people will know where to put the blame for inflation." Dirksen said in an interview. "Up to this point President Johnson certainly hasn't done anything to block the increases Congress is making in his budget requests."

Johnson lectured about 50 members of Congress recently on the need for economy. But Dirksen said he had found no evidence of any intensive follow-up on this.

Could Refuse to Spend

The President, of course, could decline to spend some of the money that Congress votes. But few believe he would cut programs such as those administered by the Health, Education and Welfare Dept.

Johnson's threat Friday to reduce the space program if price increases continue in basic commodities was interpreted in Congress generally as telling allied industries they had better not follow the steel price boost.

From a Democratic source came a request for cuts far greater than asked by the Republicans — and aimed in part at the space program, which thus far been almost as sacrosanct as the Defense funds.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., announced in a letter to colleagues he plans to offer amendments to a forthcoming independent offices money bill to cut the $5-billion space program by nearly $1 billion. He proposed also reductions of $30 million in public building funds and $200 million in Federal Aviation Agency allotments.

Boost Likely

The HEW money bill is likely to be boosted higher than the house total of $10.573 billion before it gains final Senate approval.

Most of the House increases were accounted for in education funds which are popular among members of Congress. In Congress there is widespread belief that Johnson never expected reductions he proposed in these funds to stand.

The House added $232.8 million to the $183.4 million he asked for payments to school districts in so-called impacted areas where federal employes' children have taxed educational facilities.

It tacked $157.8 million on his request for $273.5 million for defense educational activities, mostly for the student loan program Johnson originally proposed be supplanted by a system of government insurance for such loans made by private lenders.

Because of the nature of these increases, Republicans entertain scant hope that they can force any substantial reductions in government spending in these fields.

Getty Opens Castle For Paying Guests

London (UPI) — J. Paul Getty, reputedly the richest man in the world, opens his palatial home today to the ordinary people of Britain.

For $1.40 any Tom, Dick or millionaire will be able to wander around Sutton Place, the English stately home where Getty lives amid art treasures and 1,000 rolling green acres.

Getty

Following the example of the Duke of Sutherland, his predecessor at Sutton Place, Getty has decided to share the splendours of his home with the public on specified summer afternoons from 2:30 to 7 p.m.

But unlike his grace the duke, who needed the cash for taxes and other trifles, Getty will not pocket the ticket money.

"The receipts will go to five local charities," a Sutton Place spokesman said. "Mr. Getty's needs are not quite the same as those of the Duke when he was here."

Getty's personal fortune is estimated between $700 million to $1 billion and his 70-company empire reportedly nets him around $113,200 an hour.

Sutton Place is a honey-colored Tudor manor house situated near Guildford.

It was built more than 400 years ago by a courtier of England's big bluff King Henry VIII and has gone down in history as the place where he met Ann Boleyn, whom he married and later beheaded.

Getty, 73, dour, melancholy and noted for small economies, bought the place for an undisclosed sum in 1959 and moved in the following June with a thumping $40,000 party for a large slice of England's peerage and upper crust.

Flying Eagles

Jerusalem (UPI)—The Jordanian air force helicopter chattered over the border village and dropped bushels of leaflets saying "If you want to fly like an eagle, join the Jordanian air force."

Israeli sources said the pilot darted off faster than an eagle when he realized the village was Israeli.

The Israeli government formally complained to the Mixed Armistice Commission, the sources said.

Senate Opens Hearing On Gun Control Bill

LBJ Calls for Swift Action But Major Battle Predicted

Washington (UPI) — Prodded by the sniper-slaying of 13 persons in Austin, Tex., President Johnson's long-buried gun control bill will come before the Senate Judiciary Committee next week.

The assassination of President John Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, failed to shake the bill loose though a shocked nation reacted with strong support for stricter firearms regulations, specifically the sale of mail-order guns.

Eastland

It took Charles Whitman, a 24-year-old architectural engineering student at the University of Texas, to do it. He shot 46 persons from the 27-story university tower Aug.1, after killing his mother and wife.

Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., whose subcommittee on juvenile delinqency worked 2½ years before the bill was introduced Aug. 2, 1963, called immediately on Judiciary Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., to hold a special session on the bill.

A meeting is scheduled next Wednesday for "agenda" business, with the control bill included.

President Johnson also called for swift action. Dozens of others echoed his plea. But a major battle within the committee is inevitable—and judiciary is just the first step along a rough road through Congress.

U.S. Shoots for the Moon Tuesday

Hopes to Put Photo Lab in Orbit

Cape Kennedy (AP) — The United States plans to shoot for the moon Tuesday, hoping to rocket a flying photography lab into orbit about our celestial neighbor to snap pictures of potential astronaut landing sites.

The spacecraft, Lunar Orbiter is to dart across a quarter-million-mile path and swoop into a lunar orbit that will brush as close as 26 miles to the moon's surface. It carries two cameras to obtain clear pictures of 10 areas considered likely for manned expeditions.

Resting in one of the sites is the Surveyor craft that settled gently on the moon in June and relayed 11,237 pictures to earth. Lunar Orbiter hopes to capture photos of Surveyor and its surrounding terrain for comparison.

Scheduled launch time is 10:07 a.m. (CST) Tuesday, with an Atlas-Agena rocket starting the 850-pound Lunar Orbiter on its intended 90-hour journey to the vicinity of the moon. Once there, a retrorocket is to slow the speed so the probe will be caught in the moon's gravitational field.

If successful, it will be the first time America has placed a satellite in Lunar Orbit. Seven previous attempts failed, six of them in the early days of rocketry in 1958 to1960.

Russia succeeded with Luna 10 last April after a series of failures. Luna 10 did not have a camera.

Lunar Orbiter is more sophisticated than any of the others and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and its prime contractor, the Boeing Co., are confident it will succeed.

The targets that NASA is considering for manned landings are located in a narrow band stretching across the moon's equator and include all types of terrain.

Lunar Orbiter is to take 16 pictures of each area, some of which will be relayed live to nationwide television. Each frame will have a medium resolution picture showing an area 23 by 56 miles and a high resolution picture of an area 10 by 40 miles in the center of the larger photo.

Kuwait Election

Kuwait (AP) — General elections for Kuwait's second national assembly since independence in 1961 have been set for next January.

Calm Demilitarized Zone Bursts Into Flames

Saigon (AP)—Until a week ago, the demilitarized zone was the quietest place in all Vietnam.

The quiet was broken only by propaganda loudspeakers and an occasional fire fight between South Vietnamese police and infiltrators from the north.

But from captives, it was learned that the North Vietnamese 324B division had moved down through the eastern part of the zone into South Vietnam.

Badly Mauled

U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops in Operation Hastings landed on the coast, intercepted the division and badly mauled it in fighting one to two miles south of the zone. The North Vietnamese retreated into the zone.

A week ago Saturday the zone's quiet was shattered by bombs blasting the western part of the zone. They came from B52 high flying bombers coming in from Guam who were seeking out the North Vietnamese.

Groundfire Cracked

Communist groundfire cracked into the sky from the ridges and densely jungled ravines, aimed at low-flying American reconnaissance planes and fighter bombers.

All this is a far cry from what the international powers envisaged in Geneva in 1954 when the six-mile wide demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam was created. The zone is 45 miles long, running from the South China Sea to the Laos border.

The Geneva powers instructed that only carbines, machine pistols and ordinary pistols be used in the demilitarized zone, and these by a maximum of 100 policemen on either side.

The zone was to be the neutral buffer between the newly created nations of North and South Vietnam. It was laid roughly along the 17th parallel at the narrowest point in Vietnam. It followed the straggling Ben Hai River. The Communists were to go north, the anti-Communists south.

Infiltration Routes

The main infiltration routes for the Viet Cong are down the Ngan and Khe Nai rivers, through the broken hills and along stream beds. Wide trails are believed to have been cut in this area, safely hidden under the heavy jungle canopy.

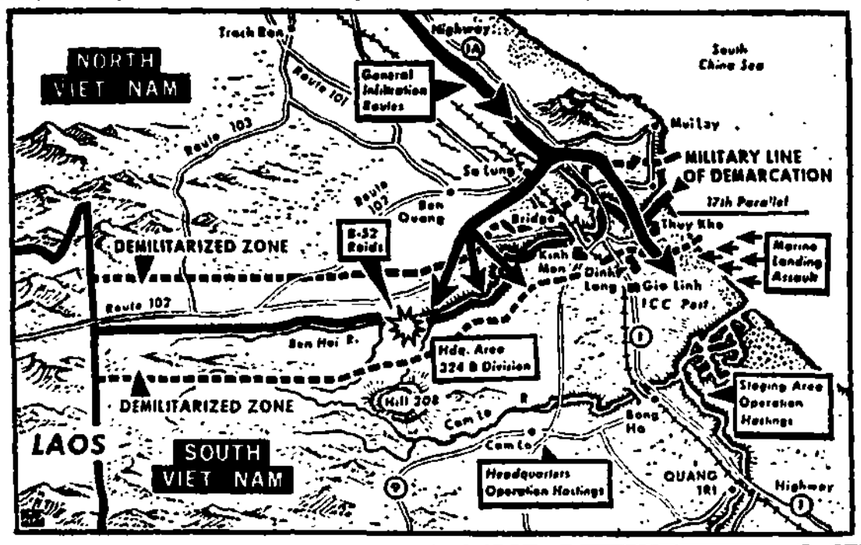
Some North Vietnamese apparently infiltrated down the coastal side of the zone along Highway 1, making their way across the sand dunes.

Even though the Hien Luong bridge, which connects the old Route 1 highway is infrequently used, both sides put on a maximum propaganda display there. A large North Vietnamese flag flies on the north end, a South Vietnamese flag at the southern end.

The Communists hitherto preferred the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos and Cambodia to infiltrate men and equipment into the south.

The mission of the 324B Division was to secure a base around the district of Cam Lo about 10 miles south of the zone.

The North Vietnamese division had few problems crossing the demilitarized zone. American officers believe that several divisions of troops would be needed to guard the zone against infiltration.



Communist PT Boats, Suspected Base Camp Pounded by U.S. Jets

Saigon—U.S. Navy jets destroyed two Communist PT boats and heavily damaged another in an air-sea battle along the Communist North Vietnamese coast, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

Spokesmen also announced that U.S. air force B52 stratofortresses today struck suspected Communist troop positions in Quang Tri Province just south of the demilitarized zone dividing South and North Vietnam. The big Strategic Air Command (SAC) bombers hit a suspected Communist base camp just before dawn, the spokesman said.

In the air-sea battle off the Communist coast, navy planes from the carrier USS Constellation were returning from a strike near Haiphong Saturday when they were fired on by the Red PT boats.

"The boats were camouflaged," the spokesman said. "They were not under way." He said they were apparently "nesting" when they opened fire on the navy planes coming back from a strike against the Bai Chay oil storage area about 30 miles northeast of Haiphong.

When the Navy jets detected the Communist fire they swooped in and unleashed rockets, blasting two of the boats to pieces and heavily damaging the third, he said.

Airlift

The action came as 3,000 American troops reinforcements freshly landed from the United States were airlifted into the strategic Central Highlands of South Vietnam. The reinforcements were the vanguard of an expected 100,000-man increase in U.S. manpower in Vietnam by the end of the year.

The unit of the U.S. 4th Infantry (IVY) division, famous for its landing on Utah beach on D-Day in World War II, arrived at coastal Qui Nhon before dawn after a trip from the division's base at fort Lewis, Wash., and almost immediately the men were boarding helicopters. They were flown to a base camp in the highlands where a force of 10,000 U.S fighters has been hunting a combined force of North Vietnamese regulars and Viet Cong for almost a week.

But in the air war night-flying U.S. Air Force Phantom jets pllastered a convoy of 40 trucks driving south in darkness. Picking it up on radar screens, the pilots blasted the convoy with cannon and rockets and reported setting 25 trucks afire.

American planes eluded 15 (SAMS) in other attacks on the North's fuel supplies and communication lines.

In the South, U.S. aircraft flew 515 sorties—single combat missions by single planes—against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong targets.

Another highlight of the day was the visit of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He had a military briefing from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. military commander, and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, his running mate in the 1960 presidential election.

Hanoi Saturday released an made by captured American fliers pleading with U.S. airmen to refuse to take part in the Vietnam war.

Economic Development by Highways

Gov. Frank Morrison has indicated that he will decide on Monday whether to call the Nebraska Legislature into special session on an important question of Nebraska economic development: state highways.

• • •

The question involves whether or not Nebraska should have the same constitutional right possessed by 48 other states to issue state highway bonds of indebtedness against the state's highway user tax receipts in order to bring Nebraska's highways up to the parity of its neighboring states before the high costs of wage and material inflation widen the "catchup cost" impossibly further to the taxpayers of Nebraska.

• • •

The question does not involve general obligation bond indebtedness of Nebraska for any purposes, nor any increases in the state property tax. The question is whether this state shall have the legal right of limited obligation indebtedness for highways repayable from highway user revenues, a right which the state Legislature has already given to the Nebraska counties and cities.

• • •

Giving Nebraskans the right to vote and decide this important issue at the November election is being supported by highway progress groups, municipalities, urban areas, governor candidates, senators, and popularly by a 5 to 1 margin by those testifying before the Legislature's study committee on state road needs and its financing. Gov. Morrison is being counseled not to call the special session by the state farm organizations and the Omaha World-Herald.

• • •

Opposition of the state farm organizations should be interpreted against the perspective that their opposition is not to the feature of limited bond indebtedness, but is and historically has been to all adequate highway user tax revenues necessary to financing an adequate state highway system, even on a "pay-as-you-go" basis.

• • •

In a nutshell, the farm groups inconsistently are for economic development of Nebraska in the form of agri-research, soil and watershed conservation, flood control, and the graveling of rural mail routes, but historically have opposed revenue increases in state highway financing or urban streets.

• • •

The record of farm group opposition to street and highway improvements is a long one which itself has contributed to Nebraska's having poorer roads than its neighboring states:

1965: Opposition to the ½c state gas tax increase for cities and counties.

1963: Opposition to 50c increase in the state registration fees for a state urban fund for improving state highways as they pass through municipal boundaries of cities of 5,000 or more.

1958: Unsuccessful referendum try by lack of signatures to defeat 7th cent state gas tax to finance Nebraska's 10% local matching cost of the 90% federally financed interstate highway.

1957: Opposition to 7th cent state gas tax for interstate highway.

1953: Opposition to 6th cent state gas tax for Nebraska highways.

1949: Successful referendum against 6th cent state gas tax and increase in vehicle registration license fees enacted by the state Legislature.

Against the special advantages of a gas tax refund for all farming uses of petroleum, the right to drive tractors and farm machinery on public highways without paying state vehicle license fees (paid by all other public road users), and 1c state gasoline tax collected from the majority of the state's population living in cities entirely expended for graveling rural mail routes in the country, and years-and-years of state highway department emphasis on developing farm-to-market roads, the record of farm organization opposition to highway improvements for the state at large or urban areas seems a record of poor citizenship.

Anyone attending county or state road hearings knows that the majority of persons demanding better specific roads are farmers.

Equally, inconsistent is the counsel of the Omaha World-Herald, which Thursday of last week urged the governor not to let the people of the state vote on highway bonds and then two days later on Saturday supported the Omaha City Council's putting a multi-million dollar street bond issue upon the same ballot. Since 1948, the Omaha World-Herald has supported more than $10 million of Omaha street bond issues, including a $4 million street bond issue this May which carried by a 48,860 to 21,609 vote.

• • •

With the mayor of Omaha and many Omaha senators supporting the state highway bond vote on the ballot, the Omaha World-Herald is in the incongruous position of supporting economic development when in Omaha but not when in Nebraska. The inconsistency is magnified by past insistence of the Omaha paper on the people's right to vote upon all controversial state revenue questions, such as the state income tax bill.

The governor for six years has vocally, publicly supported the concept of state economic development. The important state economic development indebtedness concept of IDA industrial revenue bonds was put on the 1960 ballot by a special session call of Gov. Ralph Brooks.

• • •

The governor should not be deterred now by those who have shown so little concern for the total economic development of the entire state from implementing the state's economic development by a special session call. This call properly can be limited to the question of putting on the ballot a constitutional vote on limited state highway obligation bonds repayable from limited highway revenue taxes.

Argentina's Tough Tactics

The attack by Argentine police on the freedom of the universities was disturbing to the free world.

• • •

The assertion by Argentina's new military rulers that they had ordered the takeover of the national universities in order to "improve the level of scholarly life" was followed by brutal police tactics against defenseless university students and professors.

• • •

The military junta justified its grabbing of power in the name of preventing a return to Peronism. Argentina has economic and social problems but so far the new regime has seemed more intent on repressing freedoms than in solving the pressing problems.

It has outlawed political parties, closed the country's only satirical political magazine, seized foreign publications and cracked down on credit union cooperatives. It seems evident that some of Argentina's most reactionary groups are now in power.

Latin American universities have long been the centers of radical thought and expression. They have also been buffers against the dictators who have bred revolutions. Argentina is taking a step backward at a time when some other Latin American countries are making democratic and economic headway. Leaders of these countries were once considered radicals.

• • •

Unless the present junta sees the errors of its way, there is little hope that Argentina will see political or economic peace in the near future.

WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Contraception Now Universal

The last state with a law against dissemination of contraceptives goes by the boards on Monday. On Aug. 8 a new law allowing the prescription of contraceptives and distribution of contraceptive information will go into effect in Massachusetts.

The altered position for Massachusetts does not at all eliminate the contraceptive problem but it demonstrates the fluidity of the times in which we live. In 1948 Cardinal Richard Cushing actively opposed any repeal of Massachusetts' anti-contraceptive law.

• • •

But more recently, the Cardinal said that although he could not "in conscience" approve of repeal, he would "make no effort to impose my beliefs or opinions on others."

• • •

The Cardinal, thus, reflects some of the changing attitudes, within the Catholic Church hierarchy of which he is an influential part. The church still awaits the results of a Vatican Council study of the entire birth control question.

This study may or may not reflect what seems to be a more liberal attitude on the part of the Boston Cardinal. But there is some significance to the fact that the subject has even been approached to the point that it has.

According to Congressional Quarterly, a recent study by two doctors showed that 21 percent of Catholic wives under 45 years of age use contraceptive pills. This compares with around 29 percent use among non-Catholic wives of child-bearing age.

• • •

Again, the issue is one in which the interests of both church and state are being solved with reasonable compatibility. These interests are not the same but they are existing side by side without any great conflict, a mark of the growing maturity of the society in which we live.

• • •

Throughout history there have been times when church and state have found their paths leading to inevitable conflict but these situations seem to be vanishing. There are beliefs and practices among members of many religions that could lead to turmoil were it not for tolerance.

The growing attitude, however, is that compatibility does not necessarily involve compromise on the part of anyone or any interest. Those who celebrate the Sabbath on Saturday need not give up the practice simply because a majority of Americans do otherwise.

• • •

The Catholic church need not condone contraceptives to exist in a material order that does condone the practice. The concern of the church is with the faith of its members and it can exist comfortably either in harmony or discord with various practices of government and other public and semi-public agencies.

For nearly 2,000 years we have known of the admonition to render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things which are God's. But we are just coming, it seems, to a meaningful understanding and implementation of that admonition.

Dollars for Science: Federal, Local

In Nebraska and on Capitol Hill concern is mounting on the allocation of federal research funds; an expert gives his views.

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE

Leading national authorities on scientific research at universities testified recently before a Senate subcommittee considering a resolution aimed at broader distribution of federal research grants to universities. Following is a portion of the testimony of Dr. Donald F. Hornig, director of the federal Office of Science and Technology.

I would like to comment on some important problems in institutional development.

It is one thing to have the desire to improve a weaker institution and quite another to acquire the local financial and human resources to do so.

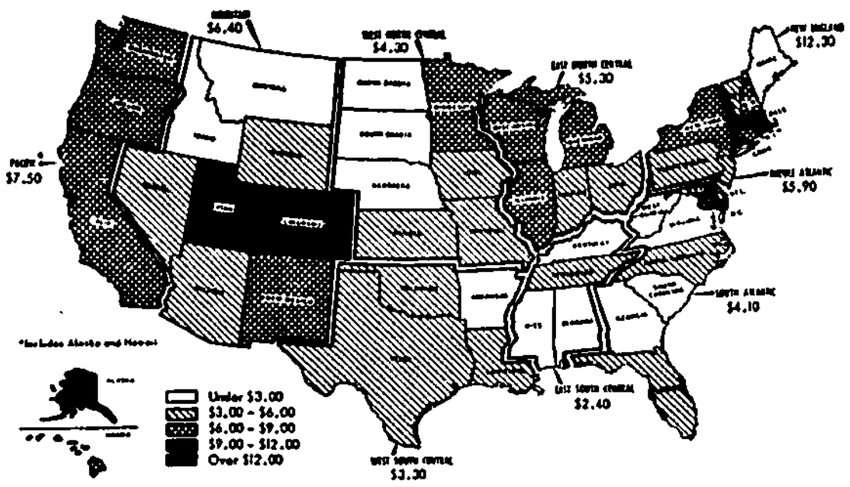
I feel that many institutions and states do not properly understand the magnitude of the job required to bring institutions not distinguished in science to a high level in science education.

Federal help may be sought but, even in the cases where it is given, it is unlikely to be very effective unless supported by substantial local resources.

Research funds, in themselves, are inadequate to do the job. Even a National Science Foundation development grant of the order of $4 million can result only in the improvement of certain science departments in a smaller institution. Even here the institutions receiving the funds have pledged additional funds which will equal this sum.

But while there is expectation of further federal support if the institution meets the appropriate standards, it is nevertheless true that the higher quality staff and facilities cannot be maintained unless there is substantial non-federal support as well.

Other departments will surely press for similar improvement and the institution must improve as a whole.



Source: National Science Foundation, July 1966.

Federal research grants to states, per capita.

It is a fact well known to the larger institutions that the acceptance of federal funds for research results in the commitment of a great many resources of a non-federal character for associated needs.

I have the impression that this point is not sufficiently understood and that several of the less developed institutions do not realize what a strain certain kinds of federal support can bring on the resources of the universities.

In deciding to help the further development of a weaker institution, the Federal Government must be assured that the potential for growth is solid. As Senator Curtis (R-Neb.) said on May 16, "I should say that the distribution of these funds is not easy. It cannot be done arbitrarily or merely on a geographical basis. It should be confined to qualified institutions."

What are some of the criteria which state legislatures and private trustees as well as the federal government should consider? Some examples include:

First, is there a sound state plan for the concentration of resources in graduate institutions of critical size?

Ohio, Texas, California, and New York have recently examined their state educational system carefully and planned expansion at the graduate level at a limited number of schools, while restricting others.

Other states have let universities proliferate to the extent that no instituion can have enough graduate students to run a complete, viable program.

Second, does the state wish to pay the price of excellence? Are the salaries competitive? Do the institutions want their faculty members to spend time on research, and do they allow them enough time to do significant work?

Or does the state pride itself on low taxes and low expenditures for higher education?

The recent American Council on Education study of the relative quality of graduate institutions showed a very high correlation between faculty salaries and excellence.

Third, does the state encourage education of all its citizens? A state in which only a small fraction of the high school graduates go to college can hardly expect to have the same size graduate program as a state in which a large fraction of the high school students get advanced education.

Meeting these criteria may require federal assistance in order to overcome some of the difficulties, but changing the distribution of research funds is not the best mechanism. New programs aimed at development are called for.

There are probably many students of high ability who do not seriously consider science as a career because they have never attended the kind of high quality institution that would increase their interest in science. If, by widening the geographical base, we could attract more of the highest quality students into science, the scientific capability of the nation would be improved.

An improved local university can also have impact in other areas.

Though one must be careful not to underestimate the difficulties, it remains true that the presence of a developing scientific center in a community can be an important source of technological strength for the region, and on a broader level seems to provide an important psychological focus for the determination to improve that area.

There are real limits to the possibilities of gaining very much ground on this problem at present levels of federal research and development funding, and it does not seem to me that a redistribution of existing monies will solve the issue. Nor do I think the objective can be reached entirely through the research support channel.

It is more likely that we will achieve it through linking research support with the new initiatives being taken on a broader front to strengthen higher education in the United States.

Nor do I discount the the probability that we will have to devise some further combination of new programs and increased financial assistance in the next few years to accelerate our modest current rate of progress.

I can assure you that the Administration has an open mind to all these alternatives. I know of no disagreement with the basic goal of emphasizing educational development and the improvement of regional centers, nor with the proposition that we must be prepared to support the new research capability as it emerges.

ALL Children

Lincoln—Before I came to Lincoln, I heard of the Starkweather case.

I wondered how anybody that anti-social and disturbed got to the point where he killed so many people without being spotted by the authorities much earlier.

Now, having lived here three years, I wonder why it doesn't happen more frequently in Lincoln.

First, our public school system, the first line of defense in any society, has a stated policy of not doing treatment or diagnosis—medical, psychological, or dental—ostensibly because they would be competing with private facilities.

With that philosophy, why not close up the schools? They are competing with private schools, restaurants, bookstores, libraries, buses, etc.

The schools have two social workers, a psychiatrist eight hours a week and a psychologist with a Master's Degree who does individual intelligence testing, for a school system with 30,000 children.

I know of cases where, after the private agency does the diagnosis and sometimes the treatment, the schools either refuse to let the child attend school or cannot place him properly.

What is the program for the brain-damaged and disturbed child?

We are going to start a junior college when we refuse to meet our responsibilities at the elementary school level!

At the high school level the schools officially report a low level of dropouts. However, they only count those children who drop out during the school year and do not count those who do not return after the summer.

Public schools were originated to educate all children, not just the upper middle class.

It is the lower class and lower middle class children who need education desperately so as not to end up on the welfare rolls, in prison, or in a mental hospital.

Our Community Council apportions money to various agencies, collected by the Community Chest Fund, based on cost per child. Of course professional care costs more than Boy Scouts but the social worker, psychiatrist and psychologist provide a more essential service to the community. However, our Community Council doesn't seem to think so.

In one agency the adoption fees are expected to support other services. It seems Lincoln has a vested interest in maintaining the high level of unmarried mothers.

The Child Guidance Center has not been able to obtain the continuous services of a full-time psychiatrist for two years. Why? Salary.

All agencies have long waiting lists and cannot provide services available in other communities, for lack of money.

So we won't treat our potential Starkweathers, robbers, thieves, and hospital patients in the school, and we don't give the private agencies money to do even the inadequate service they provide in other cities.

Often parents of children in trouble couldn't care less, and in Lincoln, when the parents do care, they either have to make do, waiting months for service, or leave the state because the service doesn't exist.

Whom do you think little disturbed children prey on when they grow up? Prevention is cheaper than prison or the rope, humanitarian considerations notwithstanding.

Speak to your Community Council and ask them to allocate more funds to service agencies and to support the Day Care Center at the Malone Center.

Then get after your school board to provide diagnosis and treatment services, and an education for the brain-damaged, disturbed, and culturally deprived, before they put any more money in the junior college building fund.

The people being damaged are less likely to "fight City Hall" than we, and the professionals cannot ethically go to the press and complain. They can complain to their boards and they have been for years.

PATRICIA BRODSKY

Food for Freedom?

Lincoln — Recently Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman was in Iowa and Nebraska, speaking to farm groups.

Although he was traveling with "all expenses paid" by the taxpayers, and was supposed to be explaining the Farm Program to farmers, he managed to get some political propaganda into his speeches.

Freeman made quite an issue that our grain surplus was "just about used up." This was to be good news because the government would now permit the farmer to increase his acreage.

What he didn't say was this "surplus food" had been given away. Countries "paid" for our food in their non-convertible currencies, for use only within their countries. Actually, our Food for Peace has been a gift out of our "surplus food" to foreign recipients at the U.S. taxpayer's expense.

On a televised press interview July 24, Freeman was forced to admit that our food aid to hungry nations has permitted their governments to spend capital on projects they don't need and refrain from developing in agricultural resources which the people so desperately need.

The socialist governments of India, Yugoslavia, Algeria, Egypt and other nations will spend their money on grandiose prestige projects instead of increasing food production, as long as they can get enough food from us to prevent their deprived people from rebeling against their governments.

On the interview, Freeman told of a new "Food for Freedom" program. This plan calls for food to be paid for "in our dollars" instead of their currencies. The administration proposes that payment be over a period of 40 years, with no payment for 10 years. A very low interest rate would be charged after the ten-year period.

This plan amounts to a give-away also. Most countries will be in no better position to pay then than now.

Meantime socialist governments will continue squandering money on everything except what the people must have.

When famine strikes, Americans will be blamed. To save themselves from the people's wrath, the socialist governments of India, Algeria, Egypt and other nations will urge their people to bite the American hand that fed them.

Our new "Food for Freedom" plan will keep these countries from developing

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Commentaries on taxes, particularly the equalization hearings, dominated Nebraska's fourth estate last week.

The reason, as cited in the Grand Island Independent, "is because at budgeting time taxes are a major issue, and with tax refer- ums and [illegible] ents to [illegible] y voters this November, 1966 finds them particularly significant."

Urging State Tax Commissioner George Dworak to "stick to it," the Pierce County Leader wrote: "If George Dworak has the facts and figures to prove himself right . . . right enough to withstand the complaints of nearly every county in the state . . . then more power to him and may he stand by his guns and win his battles."

In asking "Who is in possession of the assessment science needed to achieve equity in property taxes?" the Scottsbluff Star-Herald decided "no answer . . . would be needed if the state would accept tax legislation whose effect would be elimination of the property tax as a source of revenue for state purposes."

On the power situation, the Lexington Clipper cited the proposal to consolidate the generation and transmission facilities of the state into a single district as "the first ray of hope that has blossomed in that area in many years." A "forced marriage by our legislature" could result in injustices, the Clipper continued, and "we certainly hope the voluntary route is adopted . . . and carried out with all the speed the important task will permit."

The Norfolk Daily News cited the merger as "not likely to change the operating phases of the public power business so much as it would reduce the number involved in managing the three separate systems. It is for that same reason that the proposal wins such hearty opposition," the Daily News concluded.

Commenting on the racial tensions in Omaha's Near North Side, the Nebraska City News-Press indicated the vandalism and looting "has very little, if any, connection with the civil rights movement . . . but is planned and carried out by a criminal element."

"The sad thing about the whole matter," the News-Press concluded, "is that these colored boys don't seem to realize they are setting back the civil rights movement 50 years by their criminal activities."

James Kilpatrick on Issues
EDITORIAL FEATURE

School Prayer

Washington—More than 130 years ago, John Randolph f Roanoke laid down a rule that many persons earnestly ·ish Sen. Dirksen would take to heart today.

"A great cardinal principle that should govern all ·ise statesmen," said Randolph, "is never without the trongest necessity to distrub a thing at est."

Kilpatrick

A Senate subcommittee has been hold- ıg hearings on Dirksen's proposed "pray- r amendment" to the Constitution. The enator has promised that regardless of ıe subcommittee's action, willy-nilly he ·ill compel a vote on the floor. In viola- on of the Randolph precept, he is thus isturbing an issue that has been at rest ɔr the past three years. There is no nec- ssity for disturbing it; and nothing good will come of the ght.

The amendment sponsored by Dirksen (and 48 others) ; intended to nullify two opinions of the U.S. Supreme ourt prohibiting the states from providing for religious ex- rcises in public schools.

The Dirksen resolution would prohibit public officials ·om prescribing "the form or content of any prayer," but would leave state and local administrators free to "pro- ide for or permit the voluntary participation by students r others in prayer."

• • •

'he Eying Public

To call up this proposal for floor debate will serve only) precipitate the very clash of unreason and emotion ıat the high court nervously foresaw in its two judgments. ı the eyes of several million devout church-goers, it will e as if God were running for office in an August primary; ou are for Him or against Him and the senator who pub- cly opposes the Dirksen amendment will be risking the ınd of fundamentalist, Bible-quoting mail that makes a olitician turn positively pale.

If the amendment should win a two-thirds majority in ıe Senate, a tremendous head of steam would be gener- ted for immediate action in the House. If the resolution merged from the House Judiciary Committee, a divisive oor fight would be precipitated there. Multiply these ɔngressional conflicts by the debates of 50 state legisla- ıres. and one winds up in a religious civil war that nei- ıer side could win.

But both freedom and religion would lose. The thing is, ıat given the facts in these particular cases, the court ɔuld not possibly have decided them any other way. In ach of the three jurisdictions, the state actually was in- olving itself affirmatively in providing for a religious ex- ·cise. The involvement was limited: a 22-word prayer in ew York, 10 Bible verses daily in Pennsylvania, a chap- ·r from Scripture in Maryland.

Yet if the involvement was small, the rinciple was large; for the power to de- ·ee the "voluntary" recital of an in- ɔcuous prayer is the power to decree the voluntary" recital of prayers that are ɔt so innocuous.

Opinion Analysis Of Author

It is a road that must lead to a weak- ıing of free government, as school offi- als are subjected to the passions of com- ·ting religionists; and it is a road that ust lead equally to a weakening of the ıurch, as it becomes more and more dependent upon as- stance from the state.

• • •

'ider Controversy

The high court acted with great wisdom in blocking ıe road at the first opportunity. In seeking to remove the arrier, Dirksen and his well-intentioned colleagues are viting new and wider controversy, for "school prayer" only the beginning. What of tax exemption for churches? 'hat of the words "under God" in the pledge of allegi- nce? What of the employment of legislative chaplains? 'hat of the very motto on our coins? Do any of these erve either to advance or to inhibit religion? If so, then the enactment exceeds the scope of legislative power as ırcumscribed by the Constitution."

The Dirksen amendment settles none of these peripher- l questions—questions which the court itself sought to ampen with judicial rhetoric. They are controversies that ırely will be aggravated if this amendment is pressed. here are times when senators, even senators as distin- uished as Dirksen, should follow the rule of Randolph nd leave well enough alone. This is one of them.

Oh, to Be Stranded In Paris!

Chicago Daily News Special

Paris—The repercussions of the airline strike are beginning to be felt by American tourists in Europe. In many cases, its proving to be a pleasant feeling.

Tourists who had reluctantly held down their vacations within the limits of the 21-day air excursion fare, now find they can stay longer and still qualify for the 25% reduction in fare.

And many of those stranded in Paris will be the house guests of French families.

Through July, TWA, the only transatlantic carrier affected by the strike, had succeeded without trouble in finding space aboard other airlines for home-bound American tourists.

People Want Home

There was little difficulty because transatlantic traffic in July is heaviest Europe-bound. But in August, the pattern reverses.

This week in Paris for example, TWA's average daily seat allotment from the other airlines has dwindled to about 50. Meanwhile, the daily average of tourists claiming U.S-bound TWA reservations has climbed to 350.

This means a multiplying backup of 300 ticket holders a day. If it keeps up, about 9,000 Americans will be stranded in Paris by the end of the month.

To meet the crisis, TWA issued a call Tuesday to its several hundred employes to take in some of the company's stranded American clients.

The call was reported in the press and to the airline's great surprise, Parisians who had nothing to do with TWA began phoning in offering their homes, too.

The French press, which has been following the "affair of the stranded Americans" closely, seems particularly intrigued by the fact that the U.S. Embassy has received no cries for financial help.

Several Paris dailies, including circulation-leading France-Soir, have concluded that no Americans are worried about finances because they all, down to the last hitch-hiking college student, have credit cards.

Dad Looked 'Wistful but Proud'

TELEPHOTO

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick John Nugent.

Washington (UPI)—Luci Baines Johnson, youngest daughter of the President, and Patrick John Nugent, son of a small town businessman, were married in all the splendor Washington could muster Saturday, then left for a secret honeymoon hideaway

Luci, 19, and Nugent, 23, became man and wife in a solemn and beautiful Catholic ceremony at the huge National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception

Seven hundred friends, relatives, and associates of the first family — among them some of the most powerful men in the nation--attended the ceremony by special invitation. Millions more watched the outside activities on television.

The father of the bride, described by one usher as looking "wistful but proud," surrendered his youngest daughter to the man she loves in a 90-minute long nuptial Mass

Luci and Pat became man and wife at 10:42 p m CST Then throughout the afternoon the nation's most celebrated young lovers accepted congratulations at a huge White House reception.

At the end of the festivities, Luci tossed her bridal bouquet to her sister, Lynda Bird. Hollywood actor George Hamilton, who has been Lynda's regular escort through this year, was at the reception as well as the wedding.

It was the end of an emotional time for the newlyweds, and Luci thanked the guests at the White House for "the most magnificent day of my life."

By then she had changed out of her long lace wedding dress with 10-foot train and had put on her going-away dress—a shocking pink a-line outfit. She had a white turban on her head.

GOP's Reagan Asks Rumford Act Repeal; Won't Condemn Birchites

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI)—The California Republican party Saturday urged repeal or amendment of a state law which forbids racial discrimination in the sale or rental of housing.

Delegates to the party's annual state convention also refused to act on a proposal by a GOP leader that the John Birch Society be condemned.

Ronald Reagan, the GOP nominee for governor, had urged that the anti-discrimination law, the Runford Act, be repealed. He had also made it clear he did not want the party to condemn the Birch Society. Although he favored a general resolution condemning "the cancer of extremism."

As originally drafted and approved by the party's civil rights subcommittee, the proposed platform plank called for outright repeal of the Rumford Act. But a higher committee added the phrase "or amend" and the full convention approved that wording with only a scattering of "no" votes.

Forthcoming Battle

The convention-approved plank calls for "the repeal or amendment of the Rumford Act and its replacement or amendment by constructive legislation which protects the free choice and constitutional rights of all citizens."

Civil rights advocates labelled the action a "slap in the face" at California Negroes.

The convention action set the stage for a full-scale battle over discrimination in housing during the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign.

The Democrats, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown and former Sen Pierre Salinger, fought a statewide referendum in 1964 that proposed "absolute discretion" for property owners in the sale and rental of housing, in effect nullifying the Rumford Act.

Canada Studies Control of Its Booming Economy

By Frank Flaherty
Chicago Daily News Special

Ottawa, Ontario—Canada's economy appears to many observers to be booming a little too much. Government officials are busy figuring what can be done to slow it down.

In most parts of the country here is all but full employment. Workers are scarce, over-time pay is heavy, business is active, and profits are high. Prices are rising.

Labor is becoming increasingly restive as workers feel the pinch of rising prices. Demands for wage increases are building up to the stage where the country could be faced with a series of crippling strikes.

Government Restraints

For the past year the government has applied a number of mild restraints in an effort to slow the boom down and avoid drastic increases in prices and costs.

The latest of these came in Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's budget speech at the end of March. He increased taxes on middle and higher incomes and slapped a special temporary refundable tax on business profits.

The intention was to make less money available for the purchase of goods and so check price rises. He also offered tax incentives to businesses which defer plant enlargements and other capital expenditures until a more propitious time.

Now there is a growing consensus that these measures are not achieving the desired results. Available figures indicate restraints have not been as effective as had been hoped House construction is down but commercial building is at a high level.

New alarms have been raised by indications that the American economy has stopped bombing upward or begun plateauing while the Canadian boom continues unchecked.

Economy Could Tumble

If Canadian prices and costs got seriously out of line with those in the United States, they could take a sudden tumble which would put a lot of businesses in trouble and lead to a heavy dose of unemployment.

Parliament stands adjourned until early October and until it resumes no further restraints can be applied by means of taxes or direct controls. It was just a year ago, however, that the government moved to slow down the boom by pulling back on its own spending program, postponing a number of big public works projects.

More of that sort of thing may be done this summer by executive decision and without parliamentary action. In a few days Sharp will get an estimate on the amount of capital expenditures planned for the rest of the year by private business and local governments.

If the estimate is high, shows an advance over the one compiled at the first of the year, he's apt to order a further cut in federal government spending.

Meantime notice has been served on house-builders, that they are on their own so far as next winter's building program is concerned. The government is dropping the $500 per home bonus it has been paying for houses built in the cold weather. This was intended to provide winter employment. For next winter the government is not worrying about that

Effect on Housing

Labor Minister John Nicholson who handles the program says he doesn't expect the move to reduce the amount of housing to any significant degree.

Actually the number of houses built this year is apt to be small in comparison with previous years but with other sectors of construction going all out, the government doesn't want any new spurt in any kind of building.

Asian Railway Is Under Study

Tokyo (AP)—A 6,000-mile railway to stretch through 10 Asian countries from Istanbul to Saigon is proposed by Japanese Parliament members and industrialists.

Promoters of the plan will send a team to South Vietnam, Thailand and Burma next year to do surveys.

Yoshiteru Tamura, managing director of the Japan Land Development Research Institute, estimates that it would require 20 years to construct.

The countries through which 120-mile-per-hour trains would pass in 50 hours are South Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand, Burma, Bhutan, East and West Pakistan, India, Iran, Iraq and Turkey.

Italy's Plan Is Watched

Chicago Daily News Special

Bonn — German businessmen, caught in the pinch between labor shortages and expanding demands for production, are watching the development of a new industrial satellite town about 15 miles north of Milan, Italy.

Behind the project is the idea that instead of exporting Italian laborers, Italy should attract foreign manufacturers to provide jobs there. Nearly one-third of the 1,300,000 foreign workers now in Germany are Italians.

The new settlement is designed to house 50,000 persons who will work in small to medium light industry factories that still have to be built. But getting the factories apparently will not be much of a problem.

The Assn. of German Employers reports that 500 German firms have asked for details of the plan, and some 35 already have made firm decisions. Some actually have started construction.

The town is called Zingonia, after its promoter, Reno Zingone.

According to the German employers group, Italians are offering moratoriums up to 10 years on income taxes for the interested firms, and development loans at 5%.

Bob Watson says for two cents I'd haul 33 lbs. of coal to St. Louis.

Who does he think he is?

He's one of the hard-driving wheels on the Burlington Railroad.

"But Bob, that's $1.20 a ton. As our top Fuel Traffic man, you know a price that low would take a miracle!"

It took three.

The first miracle took the form of a rheostat. A throttle control that could "walk" a train past a conveyor belt at precisely ¾ MPH for ultra-efficient loading.

The second miracle was cars that could hold 5 extra tons of coal, and not weigh an ounce more. Bridge load limits no longer bugged us, thanks to a beautiful marriage of steel and aluminum.

The third miracle—two spanking new unit trains and 140 new cars to "pipeline" more than a million tons of coal yearly. Rolling constantly, they load and unload on the move.

Result: the cost fell from nearly $3.00 to $1.20 a ton for the run from Old Ben Mine in Southern Illinois to the St. Louis area.

A problem nicely licked. If you have any others—no matter how tough—give one of our wheels a call. Funny thing about that aggressive Burlington management.

They believe in miracles.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

There was a political flavor (and bite) to several topical skits offered by Lincoln's Mellerdrammer players last week.

In one was a fellow doing a buck and wing, singing "Second Hand Phil." In the other, a cheerleader came out with the rouser: "M-O-N-E-Y Spells Tiemann!"

Lt. Gov. Philip C. Sorensen and his Republican opponent, Norbert Tiemann, begin their face to face gubernatorial encounters in western Nebraska this weekend. The two also are booked for a joint appearance at Lincoln's Meadowlane Grade School Oct. 11.

The precedent cited by Gov. Frank Morrison for the Legislative Council roads study committee proposal on revenue bond financing of accelerated highway construction is a post-war state law.

Under it the University of Nebraska and the four state colleges have piled up approximately $50 million of debt building new dormitories and student facilities.

The particular state law on which educational revenue bonds are based has never been tested in court against the state constitution's unequivocal anti-debt provision. There's a body of legal thinking the law might be struck down, should the question ever get before the Supreme Court. Nobody is inclined to press the issue, however.

Assuming the law is constitutional, Sen. Terry Carpenter next year will seek to broaden it, allowing public school districts and non-sectarian private schools authority to float revenue bonds.

In both Douglas and Lancaster Counties the assessed value of intangible property for tax purposes exceeds tangible assessments.

Based on figures submitted by the counties to the state, Douglas County's assessed tangible property (real estate, buildings, furniture, etc.) stands at $803,467,731 and it, intangible property (cash, taxable shares of stock, financial paper, etc.) is $1,120,788,097. Lancaster County figures are $282,844,681 tangible property and $478,616,611 intangible.

It should be recognized the assessed value of tangible property represents but 35% of actual value, while intangible property is assessed at 100%. The rates on intangible property, too, are fixed and fairly low when contrasted with the open-ended rates on tangible property.

Short Takes

There's some indication program budgeting may be attacked in the 1967 Legislature. A few senators finally have awakened to the realization program budgeting forces agencies to back up money requests with hard-to-dispute facts. It is easier to say no when the facts can't be supplied.

The State Normal Board has voted to increase the number of full-time tuition scholarships for foreign students at each of the four state colleges from five to 20.

With their coffee money, members of the attorney general's staff have purchased a pair of bicycles and given them to the Cedars Home.

University of Nebraska enrolment appears headed for the projected 17,200 according to Associate Dean of Student Affairs Lee Chatfield.

Some 12,000 pre-registrations are already in and more are arriving daily. About 3,500 graduate students are expected but do not register in advance. And there are always a thousand or so undergraduates who come in without pre-registering, Chatfield said.

Merger Set Aside

A school election that would have merged five rural districts and part of another with the Dorchester public schools has been set aside by District Judge John Zeilinger of York.

The judge agreed with residents of District 64 who were not included in the merger plan that they should have been permitted to vote.

'Civil Rights'

The recent convention of the National Education Assn. at Miami Beach has been labeled "a civil rights meeting."

The all-white Louisiana Teachers Assn. was suspended for refusing membership to Negro teachers.

The suspension will be extended to outright expulsion unless membership is opened up to Negroes before October, according to NEA official plans.

While Louisiana is the only state that has refused to remove a racial restriction clause from its by-laws, nine other southern states are being pushed by the NEA to merge white and Negro state affiliates.

Resolutions passed by the NEA favored fair housing legislation on state and national levels, tuition-free education at least two years beyond high school and minimum teachers' salaries of $8,000 per year.

'Outside' Work

NU Regents President Clarence Swanson made a surprising admission at the Friday meeting — that the members of the board do most of their work outside the public meetings.

The meetings, he indicated, are for the purpose of legalizing the Regents' actions and for the benefit of the press.

The Friday meeting began at 10 a.m. and ended at 11.

An attempt to reach an NU official at mid-afternoon, however, was unsuccessful because, according to his secretary, he was "in a Regents' meeting."

4 Committed To Hospitals

Hearings were held this week by the Lancaster County Mental Health Board on complaints issued against four men.

All four were committed to hospitals and only one, 32, was represented by legal counsel at the hearings.

The cases:

Male, 25, found to be schizophrenic, committed to Lincoln State Hospital.

Male, 32, found to be a constitutional psychopath, committed to Lincoln State Hospital.

Male, 47, found to be suffering from toxic psychosis and acute schizophrenic reaction, committed to Omaha Veterans Hospital.

Male, 82, found to be suffering from a chronic brain syndrome, committed to Lincoln State Hospital.

Final Tax Decision Friday

State Board's Equalization Job Near End

By DICK HERMAN

That annual moment of truth arrives again this week for the five-man State Board of Equalization.

Weary and nearly overwhelmed by two solid weeks of daily and conflicting testimony, everlastingly prodded by recent State Supreme Court pronouncements and hardly unmindful of the upcoming general election, the board must establish the 1966 state property tax mill levy on Friday.

Hard Part First

No more than a simple mathematical task is involved in that operation.

First comes the hard part. That's whether the board goes along with State Tax Commissioner George Dworak's recommendations to change property tax valuations in 85 counties, increasing most.

The aggregate effect of the shifts, as originally put forth, would be to increase the state's overall tangible property value about 10% — from $10.8 to $11.9 billion.

Dworak is the lone board member who can be counted on in advance to support his staff's revised proposals. He's also the only board member whose name won't be on the ballot in November.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh, State Auditor Ray C. Johnson and State Treasurer Fred Sorensen are up for reelection and Gov. Frank B. Morrison is shooting for the U.S. Senate.

Attitude Clear

That Johnson has more than a few reservations about Dworak's proposals has been made clear by Johnson's caustic remarks during the series of valuation hearings for all 93 counties.

Those hearings started July 26. They conclude Tuesday morning, when Wayne County responds to a summons. Wayne waived its scheduled hearing, indicating unquestioned acceptance of a proposed 10% urban property raise.

But testimony of neighboring county officials suggested to the board it might profit by asking questions on rural land values in Wayne County, too.

Monday, 10 Sandhills and Panhandle counties bring the hearings almost to a close. It is in these counties, also, where opposition to Dworak personally, his recommendations and his entire concept of gauging real estate valuation is the most acrimonious.

So the day-long windup could become a verbal shootout, with the Nebraska Stock Growers Assn. reserving a spot on the program.

Tailoring Indicated

Even before the hearings end, Dworak says testimony has persuaded him valuation raises in about a dozen counties, at least, need to be tailored downward.

"That's why the hearings were held," the tax commissioner said, "so the board could get all information possible."

In two instances, the tax commissioner's staff already has done some retreating. The recommended 14% cut in Douglas County urban values

Motor Carriers Given Rate Hike

The State Railway Commission has granted Nebraska motor carriers a 3% increase in all class rates, a 5% increase in all commodity rates, with the exception of two areas, and increased minimum charges per mile.

The motor carriers had asked a 12% increase on both class and commodity rates, and minimum charges per mile of up to 20 cents above those granted by the commission.

The new minimum charges, effective Aug. 1, include: 0-55 miles, $2.52; 56-195 miles, $2.78; 196-295 miles, $3.05; 296-395 miles, $3.31; 396-495 miles, $3.57, and 496 miles and over, $3.83.

This Is How Hot It Really Was

When temperatures rise above 100 you can almost see the heat, says University of Nebraska journalism student Daniel J. Vap of 5607 Hartley. And he proves it with this picture taken on a film with a long name (Kodak Infrared Ektachrome Aero film) which takes pictures of rays that humans do not ordinarily see but only feel . . . heat rays. His picture was taken at f/11 and 1/250 in case you want to experiment. The film takes special processing and you may feel it was warm enough without more pictures like this.

City, County Agree on Joint Park Plan

By LEO SCHERER

An important city of Lincoln-Lancaster County agreement providing for county purchase, city operation and maintenance, and a joint development plan for county park and recreational lands has been aproved.

Mayor Dean Petersen signed the agreement for the city while County Commissioners Ralph Harlan, William Grossman and Kenneth Bourne signed for the county.

The agreement was termed by city and county officials as a step toward better city-county co-operation and better park and recreational facilities for Lincoln and Lancaster County.

Park cooperation would follow the recent pattern of governmental cooperation involving the city and county in the city-county health department, county convalescent hospital on the Lincoln General Hospital campus, City-County building at 10th and J, and civil defense.

In addition, the Lincoln School Board and City have cooperative school-park arrangements at Seacrest stadium and Lincoln school playgrounds.

The agreement contained these key provisions:

Land Purchase—The County shall acquire by purchase or gift the land now outside the corporate limits of the city and necessary for park and recreation uses and shall hold title to the same as owner in fee simple. If any land must be acquired by eminent domain proceedings, the county or the city shall maintain such proceedings, and if the city maintains such action the land shall be taken in the name of the city of Lincoln, but shall be conveyed to the county upon payment to the city by the county of the amount of the condemnation award or judgment.

City Duties—The improvement, maintenance and operation of the park and recreational property and the cost shall be the responsibility of the city, and city shall be directly in charge of the operation in accordance with the rules and regulations adopted in the agreement.

Land Acquisition — All acquisition of land shall be in accordance with the comprehensive regional plan for the Lincoln city-Lancaster County metropolitan area, and the city and county shall both approve a plan of development before development begins, and mutually participate in formulation of guidelines for the type of park and recreational use on individual tracts of land outside the city acquired from time to time in the future by the county.

Mayor Petersen said he "was delighted" with the agreement and "another example of the co-operation between the city and county.

"This will help to further our park and recreational program," said the mayor. "We have the facilities already for the operation and maintenance of park systems."

County Commissioner Bourne said the board also was pleased with the agreement and felt it would help the county's park program.

"This is co-operation between the city and county," said Bourne. "This could help us preserve some of the county's park and recreational areas."

City Planning Director Douglas Brogden and Acting City Park and Recreational Director James Ager termed the agreement "a big step forward in city and county co-operation."

"The agreement also fulfills one of the recommendations made by the National Recreation and Park Assn. in its local recreational study," said Ager.

Ager said there is no money in this year's park or recreational budget for county park or recreational areas but this will probably have to be added in the future.

"This agreement is going to help make available park land to more rural county residents and also help to relieve pressure on some of the parks inside Lincoln's limits," said Ager.

At present the county owns a small park inside of Lincoln near Bradfield and Sewell, and a park along the Interstate 180 entrance to Lincoln near Belmont. The county has been making a study of a possible "Wilderness" Park along timbered portions of Salt Creek south of Lincoln.

The agreement also says that the authorization for the the city and county "to join with each other in the ownership, operation and performance of functions involving any park and recreational use" comes from both city charter and state law.

The agreement also contains these provisions:

No Discrimination—No person shall be discriminated against because of race, creed, color or national origin in the use of the property acquired and developed under the agreement.

Park Board—A member of the county board of Lancaster County shall be appointed by the county board as an ex-officio member of the park and recreation advisory board established under the Lincoln municipal code.

Abstracter—The county may employ and pay an abstracter doing business in Lancaster County to search the public records to determine and to certify as to the record owners of the land to be acquired for said public use. The county shall be responsible for and pay for all necessary survey work in connection with acquiring of said land.

Appraising—The county shall select two or more agents to appraise the land to be a part of said public use and to negotiate with the owners thereof for its purchase. The agents shall be authorized with the written consent of the county to enter into options and agreements for the purchase of said land. The compensation of such agents shall be the obligation of the county.

Grants—The parties may make a joint application to the United States and to any other governmental body or agency for grants and other assistance and any or all such funds contributed by the United States government or any other governmental bodies shall be paid to the county as a [illegible] acquiring

Hotel Gift Sparking YM-YW Drive Plan

By BESS JENKINS

A $2.1 million capital funds campaign in 1967 and an early $200,000 gift from Mr. and Mrs. Bennett S. Martin were announced Saturday night by the Lincoln YWCA-YMCA.

The drive, the largest single one in the community yet, will be launched next spring.

The Martins' gift is the Capital Hotel at 11th and P Sts., which will become the new downtown YMCA. It will be turned over to the YMCA Dec. 31.

The present Capital Hotel was built in 1930 for $450,000 by the Eppley Hotels Co. Eppley had purchased the original Capital in 1925.

The Capital and the Lincoln Hotels were purchased by Martin's Lincoln Terminal Co. in 1962 from the Sheraton Corp. of America.

The Capital's single street floor unit west of the 11-story building will be demolished by the YM to make room for a new four-story addition. This will house gymnasium, swimming pool and physical activity programs.

7-Floor Dormitory

The top seven floors of the hotel proper will be utilized as a YM dormitory. The lower four will be completely remodeled for administrative offices and membership activity areas.

YMCA President Warren Urbom said the present downtown building at 13th and P Sts will be sold after the move to the hotel site is completed.

The Martins' gift, according for the YM to continue its dormitory services to students and other young men in need of economical housing

"Without this boost the campaign total wouldn't have covered a dormitory facility," Urbom said.

Dormitory Profits

Besides helping young men, Urbom reports dormitory profits will add about $15,000 annually to the YM's general operating budget

The $2.1 million fund drive headed by Larry Price will make a comprehensive capital improvements program possible for YW and YM.

Earmarked Projects

Dollars earmarked and projects are:

$300,000 — Remodeling of the existing YWCA building at 1532 N and partial funding of a new east addition facing So. 15th This will become the YW's new main entrance.

$1.34 million—Construction of the new four-story addition and major remodeling of the hotel's first four floors.

$200,000—Building of new facilities at Northeast and Southeast branches primarily swimming pools, locker rooms and administrative offices.

$10,000 — Improvements at Camp Kitaki to handle increasing use and make winter camping possible.

$250,000 — Campaign expenses and loss of income coverage during construction and remodeling.

Urbom reported the YW-YM originally had planned a $3.5 million drive to meet to-

Highway Construction Costs Follow National Trend—Up

By LLOYD MacDOWELL

"There's no reason to expect highway construction costs to come down," State Engineer John Hossack said Saturday when asked to compare state and national highway cost trends.

"We've been hoping for that for years, but they keep going up, particularly the past couple of years.

"With everything else going up, it's hard to see how highway costs can do anything but follow the trend."

The July 28 bulletin of the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads shows that costs have increased by 4.3% just in the past three months.

Even if the rate of increase remained constant, 4.3% in three months amounts to 17.2% per year or 172% in 10 years.

In Nebraska, Too

According to Hossack, costs in Nebraska, while individual items vary, have generally followed the national trends.

Gov. Frank Morrison has scheduled a meeting at 1:30 p.m. Monday with State Highway Commission head C. R. McBride to discuss highway needs and the possiblity of a constitutional amendment to permit revenue-bond financing for roads.

J. W. Burbach, state senator from Crofton and chairman of the Legislative Council roads study committee, has proposed such an amendment for a crash program of primary road construction.

A long list of individuals and organizations—including both gubernatorial candidates and the National Farmers Organization—have voiced at least qualified approval of the Burbach proposal.

Special Session

Placing the issue permitting the state to sell bonds to build roads on the November ballot would require a special session of the Legislature, and Gov. Morrison is expected to announce late Monday whether he will call such a session.

Former Gov. Robert Crosby has expressed the hope that farmers will get behind the Burbach proposal.

The farm groups have in the past opposed increases in gas taxes and vehicle registration fees, twice by the referendum method.

"To be sure," Crosby said, "the efforts to obtain adequate revenue for highway construction have in past years consistently been opposed by farm organization leadership.

"However, the present proposal will not necessarily increase highway user taxes.

"On the contrary, construction at present costs and the resulting savings in maintenance will mean a long-term savings in our highway program."

Increasing Costs

Supporters of the Burbach proposal point to the constantly increasing costs of highway construction as evidence of the economy of building roads as soon as possible to avoid projected spiralling inflation.

One idea for avoiding the special session on a referendum vote to permit the state to sell revenue bonds repayable from highway user tax revenues to build roads apparently ran into the same constitutional debt prohibition inspiring the special session call.

Sen. Lester Harsh, Bartley, had suggested that Nebraska might issue its own highway bonds to borrow from its own state funds, such as the state retirement fund or state school land fund.

This idea still encounters the flat constitutional prohibition in that the state indebtedness may be no larger than $100,000 even when owed to itself. This seemed to be the unanimous, informal opinion of statehouse lawyers.

School Land Funds

Specifically, Harsh referred to some $80 million of estimated proceeds from the sale of state school lands, provided Nebraska voters approve a constitutional amendment permitting such sales in November.

Before the idea of a crash program for building highways came up, according to Burbach, there was some discussion of borrowing the school lands money to speed construction of state-owned college and university facilities.

The idea, he said, was that school money would be used for educational purposes. But the idea was given up because no direct revenue would accrue from such buildings.

"We have certainly studied the possibility of using proceeds from the sale of state school lands to finance highways on a revenue-bond basis, but after conferences with state officials and bond attorneys, we had to give up on that idea."

No Direct Revenue

Like schools, he noted, highways produce no direct revenue unless they are toll roads, and "toll roads are not the answer to our road problem in Nebraska."

The 1953 Legislature, Burbach reclaled, passed a bill creating a turnpike authority to build toll roads, but because of the federal Interstate Highway program, the 1955 session repealed it.

There would be benefits in one state agency lending money to another state agency, he said, because such a loan would be tax-free on both ends.

"But if the state went into debt to itself, it would still be going into debt, which would be a violation of the constitution as it now stands."

"If we have a revenue-bond-financed highway program," Burbach stressed, "it has to be a well-thought-out program not a 2-year or 4-year deal."

Entire Primary System

The plan, he said, would have to include the entire primary road system—highways like U.S. 81 from Yankton to the Kansas line—and such roads would have to be built as a complete project, not on a piecemeal basis

Where state debt is involved, he noted, the federal government does not participate in other than primary roads. The secondary system could be improved piecemeal. It would involve only short stretches anyway

Weary Wilberites Expected Out En Masse Today for Festival

By GARY HILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Wilber — Saturday's litter swept from the streets and the aching muscles of the day before forgotten, celebrating Czechs are expected to turn out in even larger numbers today for the second round of Festival No. 5.

A second day means a second crack at the nickle-pitching game, a third or fourth carnival ride, more eats, more dancing, and more oom-pah-pah.

"They always do," said Mayor Glenn Jajicek. "Sunday is always our bigger day," and even though too busy keeping things organized to take a nose count, he smiled widely at the noisy bustle around him.

"We're spread out a lot farther than we have been in the past," he said. "We've closed off extra streets and are having some of our events (all-star wrestling Saturday night and motorcycle scramble races Sunday) on the outskirts of town."

Thousands on Streets

Not that Saturday wasn't big enough. Even in the heat, thousands lined the streets for the afternoon parade of horse clubs, marching bands and floats.

The talent show audience covered the courthouse lawn, two-seater tandems weaved everywhere, and there was no shortage of either kolaches or beer.

A four-man polka band cranked out old world tunes and Lincoln's Old Time Fiddlers sawed the afternoon away in the bandstand.

And Irbin Goldy was there.

Self-acclaimed as the last of the old-time pitchmen, 71-year-old Goldy was in baggy pants and rare form. Goldy hawks hammers and birdies, and if you're not sure you want either, step right up.

Raspy Harmony

Keeping raspy harmony on a modified mouth kazoo (his vibrating hummer, mimic of a thousand sounds) with a battle-scarred waltz record, Goldy bows the bandaged remnants of a violin that's been with him for his 50 years on the road.

Just down from South Dakota, and on his way to Missouri, Goldy has set up his wobbling stand and battered umbrella at the Nebraska State Fair and "all over the world, Australia and New Zealand and all those places like that," he said.

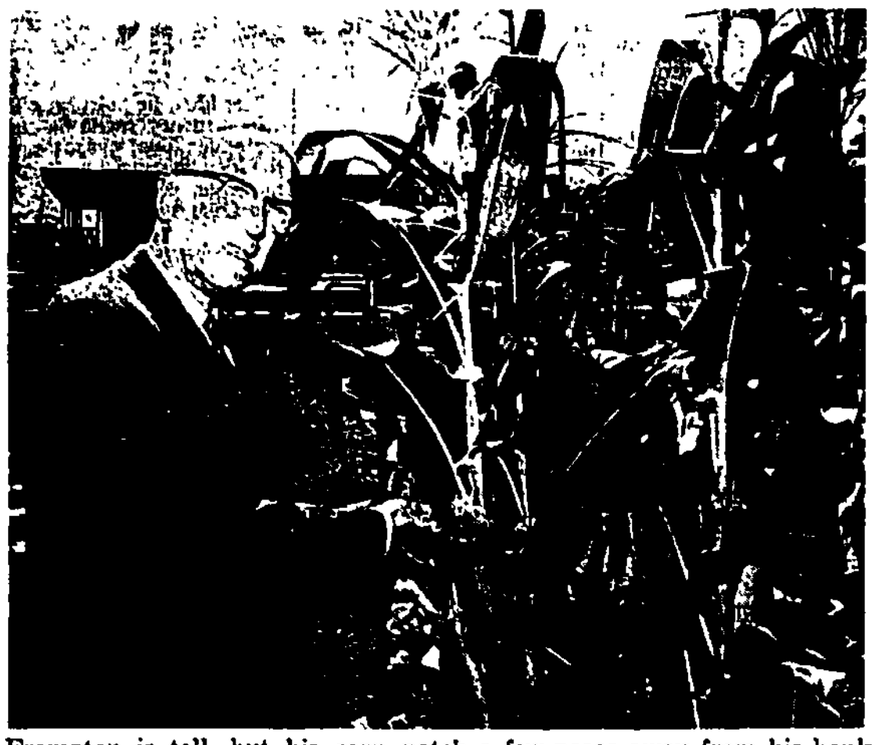
"Bird calls for a quarter. Buy two you get three. Live on a farm, do ya? Live on a farm and that bird call's worth ten bucks to ya," he spieled, mopping his furrowed brow.

He sold Saturday and he'll sell again Sunday. "We'll line 'em up clear across the street, you wait and see," he bragged.

Fairest of Five

In a Saturday night pageant, Janis Kovar, 18, of Wilber, was judged the fairest of five in the Nebraska Czech Queen competition. Miss Kovar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kovar, was representing Wilber in the competition.

On the schedule today is another parade, this time featuring Gov. and Mrs. Frank Morrison, a trophy shoot, motorcycle scramble races, a kolache eating contest and more dancing.



Frampton is tall, but his corn patch a few paces away from his bank building is taller.

Part of Cornhusker Bank Assets Grow Vigorously in Parking Lot

If money grew on corn stalks, assets of the Cornhusker Bank might show a sudden jump shortly.

Its president, George A. Frampton, is leading a double life this summer, banker and farmer.

His crop, a small patch of corn planted on the bank's parking area, is about to pay off. Roasting ears on the thick, tall stalks are only a few weeks away from a picking date.

The 72-year-old Frampton knows farming almost as well as he does banking, being a veteran in both fields. That's fortunate, for about a third of his bank customers are farmers who know their corn.

It was, he relates, well past the ideal May 10 planting time when his seeds were placed in the fertilized clay soil. The parking area ground is mostly landfill, moved in during Interstate construction.

Despite good-natured comments about being "a little corny," Frampton smiles with satisfaction as he watches his corn grow.

There is no particular reason for his farming efforts on bank time, he says, unless it is his conviction that "if Nebraska can be proud of anything, it is her corn crops."

Contrary to current joking queries, the bank isn't going to start giving away roasting ears to customers.

It is understood some hungry University of Nebraska students most likely will enjoy corn-on-the-cob with the compliments of Frampton and his aptly named Cornhusker Bank.

Tourist Station Business Brisk

Business has been brisk at the Greenwood interchange tourist station on Interstate Highway 80.

It is one of five tourist stations operated by the Game Commission in Nebraska.

The Commission said Saturday that 7,765 visitors stopped at the Greenwood station in July, a 46% increase over the 5,329 visitors in July last year.

The summer-long total of 10,816 visitors last year apparently will be far exceeded this year.

Illinois visitors were the most numerous in July, followed by Michigan, Iowa and California.

Canada was the leader among foreign countries represented, followed by England and Germany.

Other countries represented by visitors were Australia, Austria, France, Iran, Israel, Japan, Korea, The Netherlands, Norway, Puerto Rico, Scotland, Switzerland and Turkey.

The Greenwood station is open from 7 a.m to 7 p.m., seven days a week, from Memorial through Labor Day.

Other tourist stations are located at the State Capitol, Kimball, Omaha and Blair.

REA Bank Measure In Trouble

Callan Fights To Save Bill

By FRANK BLATCHFORD
Sunday Journal & Star Special

Washington—A bill to set up a financing bank for rural electric and telephone system is in bad trouble here, but Clair Callan of Nebraska is fighting hard to save it.

On its trip through Agriculture Committee hearings the bill was blasted by private power companies. They resent any strengthening of rural electric co-ops.

Callan, apparently upset at the private power companies, says flatly:

"The private power companies have been distorting a lot of the facts relevant to this legislation, particularly this fairy tale about the REA's endangering the integrity and profit potential of the private companies."

So Callan has put two amendments in the bill which "should satisfy the principal objections of the private power companies to this legislation."

First, REA could not utilize loan funds from the proposed bank to generate more than 5% of the total U.S. power output.

Second, the rural systems would be prohibited from acquiring municipal utilities in towns of more than approximately 10,000 population.

Callan explained the bill would set up a bank for lending funds to rural electric and telephone systems.

"It is of vital concern to Nebraska, which is the only 100% public power state. The setting up of an REA bank would provide a constant source of capital, and we wouldn't have to be continually coming back to the federal government every year for appropriations" Callan said.

The bank would initially be owned by the government, but each time a co-op received a loan they would have to purchase 5% of the value of the loan in the bank's stock.

Eventually control would pass to the co-ops when they had purchased a majority of the bank's stock.

Callan, a member of the Agriculture Committee, said prospects of saving the bill "are not too good at this point."

Plenty of congressmen who have both public and private power interests in their districts would like to sweep the bill under the rug until the November elections are over.

This makes the private power attempt to scuttle the legislation less difficult.

"The private power companies have so distorted the intent of the bill that congressmen unfamiliar with power system operations are in a state of total confusion," Callan said.

The legislation has twice been rescued from sure deeat by supporters (including Callan) who are members of the subcommittee on conservation and credit of the House Agriculture Committee.

Supporters of the bill were successful in getting the legislation referred back to the subcommittee when defeat appeared sure the first time it was presented to the full Agriculture Committee.

Defeat appeared sure again in the subcommittee a week ago, but the bill's supporters convinced the subcommittee to give them a one-week delay to amend the bill. Whether or not supporters have succeeded in making the bill palatable to the rest of the members will be apparent next week when the subcommittee resumes meeting.

Memorial to Be Dedicated During Open House at New Scout Camp

Cedar Bluffs —"In memory of William Sikyta . . ."

The words are engraved on a plaque mounted on a stone in what will be known as Old Glory Circle.

Bill Sikyta, a year ago, was enjoying American Legion baseball at Ashland.

He had camped near here last summer as a Life-rank Boy Scout, Order of the Arrow member and junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 130.

He was killed Aug. 22 in an automobile accident.

Bill's father, C. Jim Sikyta, recently elected state commander of the American Legion, will help dedicate a new flag staff at Camp Eagle to honor his son.

Members of Troop 130, the sponsoring Ashland Rotary Club and American Legion Post 129 will take part in the 5 p.m. flag-lowering ceremony today. The community of Ashland has established the memorial.

The flag pole, topped with a gold eagle, and marker in Old Glory Circle overlook the imposing Eagle Lodge, newest addition to facilities at the Mid-America Council Boy Scout 312-acre camp at Platte River bluffs east of here.

Boys will be carrying out normal camp routine throughout Sunday afternoon for open house at the lodge and camp.

Due for special recognition is Louis I. Pentzien of Omaha, fund drive chairman and a major donor toward the impressive, A-framed lodge building.

Planned as an all-weather, multi-purpose facility, Eagle Lodge's large, open floor will be the site of rainy-day activities, classes and special programs for the scouts attending summer camp.

Off-season weekend training sessions for scout leaders will also be held here, and other groups may be allowed to use it by special arrangement.

Others Cited

Carl W. Renstrom, who provided the swimming pool, and Roger Pentzien, who built the camp's lake, and others who helped provide the staff cabins, rifle range and commissary facilities will also be cited during the 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. open house.

Burlington Shops Here At Full Capacity in '67

A full capacity operation throughout 1967 is assured for the Havelock Shops by Burlington's announcement of a $33 million equipment order next year.

More than 700 of the 1,720 roller bearing equipped cars ordered for 1967 will be built at the Havelock Shops, a Chicago spokesman for the railroad said Saturday night.

In addition, he reported, the Havelock Shops will build 125 60-ft. insulated boxcars costing $3,212,500 for the Colorado and Southern Railway of Denver, a Burlington subsidiary.

Havelock Shops Supt. Joe Nemeth reported Saturday night that the work force of 518 still has 400 of 1,100 cars in the 1966 program to build.

Those will be delayed until Jan. 1, he continued, so that workers can go into a car rebuilding program involving 750 70-ton hopper cars and 1,400 40-ft. boxcars which are needed.

Resume Jan. 1

The 1966 new car program will be resumed at the shops Jan. 1, with a May start scheduled on the 1967 car orders going to Havelock.

"We have a full year of work ahead of us in 1967," Nemeth said.

The other 1967 car orders will go to other car-building firms, according to Burlington President Louis W. Menk of Chicago. Total 1967 car cost is $24.4 million.

The balance of the $33 million budgeted for 1967 will purchase 40 diesel locomotives from General Motors and General Electric. Twenty will be GP40's and 20 of them U28-B's, all capable of 80 miles per hour speeds with freight trains.

Another million will be used to develop the railroad's new industrial district at Naperville, Ill.

The portion of the 1967 car program to be constructed at Havelock includes:

Car orders going elsewhere for delivery are 550 covered hoppers, 200-100-ton steel coal cars, 50 high cube boxcars, 50 cabooses and 200 40-ft. truck trailers.

Seven Die On Highway

Weekend Gets Dark Start

Donaldson suffered minor injuries and was not hospitalized.

Two young Hastings men, Lyle Dunham Jr. and Richard Ernst, both 20 were killed Saturday when their car and a cattle truck collided almost head-on on Highway 281, south of Grand Island.

Gene Naegle of Sylvan Grove, Kan., the driver of the truck, was hospitalized but was not seriously hurt.

Jimmy C. Bryome, 34, Omaha, was dead on arrival at an Omaha hospital Saturday after his car struck the center girder on the Ak-Sar-Ben Bridge, linking Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa. He was alone at the time.

David W. Nordstrom, 66, Comstock, was killed shortly before midnight when his truck hit an embankment at a dead end after crossing the intersection of U.S. 183 at a dead end after crossing the intersection of U.S. 183 and State Spur 1183, about six miles south of Sargent.

A Grand Island man, William C. Campbell, 20, was killed Friday when he was thrown from his car after a two-car crash at the south edge of Grand Island. The driver of the other car, Leon Watson, 24, Grand Island escaped serious injury.

In southwest Iowa, near Blockton, Milton Carr, 50, Omaha, died Friday in an accident after his car brushed some farm wagons pulled by a tractor at the crest of a hill, and went over a 20-foot embankment.

CBQ Head Moves to NP Post

Merger Seen Getting Closer

Burlington President Louis W. Menk will become president and chief administrative officer of the Northern Pacific Oct. 1, a year to the day that he assumed the Burlington post.

Menk

In the Northern Pacific position Menk still will be one of the major members on the Burlington board.

The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern equally hold nearly 98% of the Burlington stock. The remainder is owned by the public.

The Great Northern president also is a Burlington board director.

Menk's succession to the Northern Pacific post at this time leads observers to believe the strategy means the merger of the three railroads is getting closer.

There was no move made after the Interstate Commerce Commission turned down the merger last Apr. 27 until July 27, when a petition for reconsideration was filed by Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

The petition listed the applicants' willingness to accept all Milwaukee road stipulations as well as North Western's, and to agree to lifetime job security for all employes.

Other favorable signs of reconsideration are seen in the merger application by Milwaukee and North Western, which were the major opponents of the Burlington proposal, and originally opposing states withdrawing this opposition.

Menk came to Burlington last fall from St. Louis where he was president of the St. Louis-San Francisco Lines.

tal needs for the growing Y programs.

"We are grateful that we can proceed with the $2.1 million campaign which won't cover everything but will give the two organizations necessary facilities to offer the services needed now," Urbom said.

Recreational buildings at Northeast and Southeast branches, for example, will have to wait for additional funds beyond the $2.1 million goal.

YWCA Remodeling

The YWCA, according to Mrs. J. Edmunds Miller, acting chairman of the YW building committee, will use $225,000 of the $300,000 to remodel the present building.

This will permit the YW to expand programs and services to meet present-day participant needs, Mrs. Miller said.

The remaining $75,000 will start the east expansion and So. 15th St. entrance project. It will cost a total $271,000.

This capital building fund campaign has the blessing of the Lincoln Community Chest, which provides operating funds to both Chest agencies.

Herbert Hopkins, chairman of the fall Chest-Red Cross United Fund Appeal, describes "the Martin gift as another good example of the spirit of giving that exists in Lincoln when the needs of the community are explained."

An "all yours" atmosphere prevails as Campaign Chairman Price (right) visits Capital Hotel with donors, Mr. and Mrs. Martin.

YMCA Gift Is One Of Many by Martins

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Martin's gift of the Capital Hotel as a future downtown YMCA building is far from being the civic-minded couple's first to the Lincoln community.

Their support of the city in which they have lived and served many years reaches into many areas and interests.

It was the couple's $300,000 gift in 1960 that made a new Bennett Martin main downtown library building possible.

The Martins also gave the libraray an earlier gift to buy the South Branch library land. Another $500 helped finance the Bethany branch.

Other Martin gifts:

Creation of a Bennett S. Martin and Dorothy B. Martin Regents Professorship at the University of Nebraska by an annual $3,750 gift.

The four-acre site on which the Clark Jeary Memorial Home was built. Joint donors were Martin's mother, the late Mrs. M. R. Martin, and brother, Rolland Martin, of Carmel, Calif.

Construction of the $5,000 Children's Zoo entrance.

A $600 contribution to the Campfire Girls' Camp Kiwanis.

Former Mayor Martin, who heads the Lincoln Terminal Co. and is on the First National Bank board, has fond memories of YMCA ties during his University student days. He worked and lived at the Y three years.

"We are happy to be a part of this program to expand YW-YM services and only hope our gift may help speed the campaign to an early success," Martin said.

YM Nearly As Old as Nebraska

The Lincoln Young Men's Christian Assn. is nearly as old as the state of Nebraska.

It appeared on the scene in 1870.

Its counterpart, the Young Women's Christian Assn., was organized 16 years later in a Baptist Church on So 11th St. The women had been talking about it five years.

At that time there was no "young" in the Women's Christian Assn. name. This was added in 1906 when the national association was formed.

The Lincoln YWCA purchased the 1432 N St. site in 1907 after raising $28,000. Their original three-story building was ready for occupancy in early 1908.

Despite the depression, the YW members raised another $200,000 in pledges in 1931 and had their existing building completed in 1932.

The Havelock YWCA Center was added in 1946 and Annie L. Miller Hall, the YWCA residence at 1429 N, was opened the following year.

There were small homes for the YMCA at 9th and M, then at 13th and N before the association expanded its program beyond reading and meeting rooms soon after 1900.

The existing 13th and P Sts. building was constructed in two units between 1905 and 1910.

Need of neighborhood programs was recognized 25 years ago when the Northeast Branch was established. Southeast was set up in 1960.

The YM has included camping in its program since 1913. It used Camp Strader near Crete until 1948-49 despite annual flood conditions.

The 150 wooded acreage near South Bend named Camp Kitaki was purchased by the YM in 1951.

Ex-Lincolnite Dies in Omaha

Omaha — Services will be 2 p.m. Monday at the Maplewood Methodist Church here for Arthur F. Baldus, vice president of Continental Trailways Bus Co.

Mr. Baldus, who died Saturday, had been a Lincoln resident for eight years.

Survivors include his wife, Martha and son, John of Omaha.

Road Dept. Gets Funds

Federal Jobs Reimbursed

The State Roads Dept. has sharply reduced its backlog of completed highway projects awaiting federal fund reimbursements, according to State Engineer John Hossack.

He said that as of Apr. 3 of this year Nebraska was awaiting $1.6 million federal reimbursements for 38 highway projects which were completed or nearly completed by Apr. 30, 1965.

Dec. 31, 1964, the backlog totaled 223 projects awaiting $5.5 million in reimbursement funds. Hossack said the state had cut the backlog by four-fifths while nationally the backlog has been reduced by less than one-half.

Nebraskans Smoked Less, Paid More

Nebraskans smoked 6.8 million fewer packages of cigarets during the fiscal year which ended July 1, 1966, and they paid an extra $2 million in taxes to do it.

That's because the Legislature increased the cigaret tax in April, 1965, two cents per pack, up to 8c.

The state tax commissioner's office reported 156.7 million packages of cigarets were sold from July 1, 1965, to the following June 30. That resulted in $11,912,338 in tax for the state, as well as $626,965 being given wholesalers for collecting the tax.

During the previous fiscal year, sales hit 163.5 million packs, taxes (at 6c per pack) amounted to $9,849,660 and the wholesalers' cut was $518,403.

For the first month of the 1966-67 fiscal year, 13,041,000 packages of cigarets were sold, as against 13,813,000 during July, 1965.

The tax take was down accordingly, from $1,056,445 to $1,029,629.

SS Centennial 'Steams' Into Vicksburg Port

Vicksburg, Miss. (AP) — The Nebraska Navy landed in historic Vicksburg Saturday and the four admirals were presented with the symbolic key to the city.

The admirals—the Nebraska Navy has no other rank—brought their SS Centennial in off the broad Mississippi and docked in the shadow of "Big Mama" Sprague, an old sternwheeler.

The SS Centennial is a raft which was launched in Omaha July 16. It is the landlocked Nebraska Navy's only craft. The voyage is to promote the states centennial which begins next March.

Mayor J. H. Holland and other city officials were on hand to greet the Centennial's admirals, Rich Gallentine, Glenn Friendt, Tom Moderow and Mark Hansen, all University of Nebraska students.

In addition to the key to the city, Holland gave the admirals small bronze medals commemorating the Civil War Siege of Vicksburg.

The Centennial stopped in Greenville this morning and departs for Natchez Sunday.

Tour Was Anything but Aesthetic

There was nothing sweet-smelling, aesthetic or cleansing about a 170-mile tour around Lancaster County made Saturday by some 30 county citizens.

Most were village representatives who are on the new Lancaster County Solid Waste Advisory Committee. The objectives were nine village dumps.

"After today, none of the villages should be reluctant to admit they, too, have dump problems and need county help," observed Larry Drost of the City-County Health Dept., which set up the advisory group.

The tour produced these committee observations:

Mosquito breeding areas exist in the open Hickman dump next to the park and Boy Scout clubhouse.

A rat scurried out of the "better" Firth dump.

Uncut trees at Panama dump cause fill-in problems.

Hallam's failure to dirt-cover before the area was filled with waste.

Raymond's good condition compared to a Health Dept. check Thursday.

Inadequate sites at Davey and Roca.

Waverly's open dump condition producing water contamination and pest breeding areas.

Bennet, it was generally agreed by the group, has the best dump operation in the county.

Stop at burning, smoking Hallam dump raises question of too much solid waste and too little top soil use.

County officials, including the Health Dept., are looking to the advisory committee to determine how to solve their increasing problem of handling garbage, car wrecks, broken down appliances, etc. Herbert Hansel of Bennet is chairman.

Ralph Harlan, one of the three county commissioners joining the tour group at noon after their board of equalization session, said, "It is clear that this is a county-wide problem calling for cooperative action."

He renewed his offer of establishing both north and south county area dump sites and maintaining them.

This is one proposal which the committee will study at a September meeting.

Another is continuance of individual village dumps with the assistance of county financed heavy equipment to pack disposal down periodically.

A third solution would be transportation of solid waste to the larger Lincoln dump, which would require City Council approval.

Morrison Ruling May Hit Donahue

Omaha (UPI) — State Athletic Commissioner James Donahue said Saturday Governor Morrison has told him he will probably have to quit his post.

He will meet with the Governor at 3 p.m. Monday.

A candidate for Douglas County Assessor, Donahue apparently will fall under a new administrative rule which bans certain state officials from seeking public office.

He has served as athletic commissioner for over five years.

Martell Bank Fulfills Dream

By BRUCE GILES

Martell—A new bank building here is the fulfillment of a dream embodied in a section of sidewalk inscribed with the words, "Martell State Bank," the date 1907, and space for yet another date.

Howard E. Hall, chairman of the Martell State Bank board, noted that a late Martell resident, William Moore, had purchased land and laid the sidewalk in 1907, looking to the day when he might build another newer and bigger bank.

"Although Mr. Moore died in 1954, his dream is now being realized with the new bank located on the site which he purchased for that purpose," Hall said.

The new brick colonial structure houses both the bank and the Martell Post Office. The Post Office is housed in a third of the 28 by 66 foot structure.

Even in the old bank building, located just down the street, the Post Office has been a part of the bank building since 1916. And not only that, but bank employe Bernadine Struffing has also doubled as postmaster.

The new bank building has a larger vault and 144 more safety deposit boxes, noted Executive Vice President Fred Morgan. Pointing to the new conference room and spacious, air-conditioned office quarters, Morgan contrasted them with the old bank where there was room for only three small desks and "then we didn't have room to move around.'

"We have 1,150 checking accounts and for a town with a population of only 83, that isn't too bad," commented Morgan. He said that the bank has a large volume of business from "all the farm area south of Lincoln."

The Martell State Bank was chartered in 1905, according to Morgan, and moved into its first building in 1906. And some of its five employes have been with the bank almost as long as has the bank building.

J. Carl Sitler, president, started as an employe in 1915 and Miss Mary Wunderlich has been with the bank since 1917. Mrs. Evelyn Hess has been there 20 years.

"All told the five bank employes have about 176 years of banking experience," Morgan said.

The bank has been involved in only one robbery attempt. That was in May, 1940. An armed man robbed the bank of $242.18, but not one penny was lost.

Sitler and a local resident, Fred Gerbig, chased the robber and he was captured just southwest of Lincoln.

Fifty years of banking memories will probably not be forgotten, however, for as customers and employes gaze out the new bank's windows, the old bank buliding (now used only for storage) stands quietly as a remembrance just down the street.

Students Can Get Loans Now

Quick action by young people who could not otherwise afford to go to college this fall can result in some financial help from the federal government.

Loans for college education, interest free while the student remains in school, are available under the Guaranteed Loan Plan of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Loans are to be made through local lending agencies with the interest paid and the loans guaranteed by funds administered under the U.S. Office of Education.

Not strictly a poverty program, the Guaranteed Loan Program is available to students whose families have a net annual income up to $15,000.

Official lending agencies have been established in 34 states. For the others, including Nebraska, the program will be handled by the United Student Aid Funds, Inc., New York, N.Y.

Students wishing to borrow up to $1,500 per year may get detailed instructions from that address.

Federal funds will pay the 6% interest while the student remains in school and 3% thereafter.

"Seed money" of $54,560 for Nebraska is expected to make $682,000 available for college loans in 1966-67.

Next year's allocation will be increased to $74,404 for interest and guarantee, making some $930,000 in loans possible.

Nation's Poultrymen Zero In on Nebraska

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

For the first time in the 93-year history of the American Poultry Assn. (APA) the organization's annual convention and show will be held in Nebraska, Nov. 10-13.

Nearly 400 poultry breeders from throughout North America will attend the meetings here the first two days of the convention according to Elvin C. Schultz of Crete, national secretary of the APA.

A great deal of national and international attention is due to be focused on Nebraska since the national offices of the APA were moved to Crete this year in connection with Schultz being named secretary of the organization.

Schultz . . . national secretary.

Schultz estimated that more than 250 breeds of poultry will be entered in the show, to be held at the State Fairgrounds poultry exhibition building the last two days of the convention.

In addition the 82nd Nebraska state poultry show, which has formerly been held in Crete, will be held in conjunction with the national event.

Another feature will be the holding of the second annual Great Plains Waterfowl Show. In addition many breeders will hold special breed events at the Nebraska show, Schultz noted.

The American Poultry Assn. is the oldest livestock organization in North America and its principal object has been to improve the domestic fowl while stressing the importance of maintaining purebred stock as a foundation for progressive poultry programs.

Ak-Sar-Ben provides the awards for the junior poultry show and judging events. The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee assisted Nebraska poultry show officials in obtaining the national event.

Safeway Request Will Come Before Planners

The City-County Planning Commission will consider a number of zoning change requests this week, including an application by Safeway Stores, Inc., to designate property on the east side of 16th north of South St. as commercial.

The commission will hold public hearings Wednesday, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Safeway is requesting a change of zone from C four family dwelling to I Commercial on Lot 10, Maxwell Addition, immediately north of the Safeway store at 16th and South.

Planning Director Douglas Brogden has recommended approval of the application, noting that "we find this proposal is needed for the satisfactory development of retail busines along South St."

Its approval would leave "adequate depths for residential property to the north," Brogden said.

Other ousines on the agenda:

PardonBoardChange To Go to Legislature

By United Press International

The 1967 Legislature will be presented a proposal to change the composition of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, it was learned Saturday.

University of Nebraska Law Prof. Charles Tenney said the Nebraska Council on Crime and Corrections is working on a proposal.

Atty. Robert Kutak of Omaha, a member of the council, said the study is "still in the brief case stage," adding a specific proposal will be drafted before mid-September.

The board is now composed of the governor, attorney general and secretary of state. It was created in 1920.

Kutak, a former administrative assistant to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said it would take a constitutional amendment to change the board membership. He said the council's efforts will be directed toward presenting an amendment to the Legislature.

Rejected

The 1961 and 1965 Legislatures rejected similar constitutional amendment proposals. The lawmakers indicated at that time they were satisfied with the board's makeup and feared a new approach would be more costly.

Kutak said the issue was killed in previous sessions because no specific alternative was offered. He promised that won't be the case next year.

Two members of the board—Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer and Secretary of State Frank Marsh—have long urged a change be made.

As the state's chief legal officer, Meyer contends he must wear two hats sitting on the board.

"Personally, I think it's a little inconsistent for me," he said. "For 29 days a month I spend my time helping confine people and then for two days let them out. It's not fair to the public or the prisoner."

Over-Economizing

Marsh believes the legislature is trying to stretch a dollar too far.

"The Legislature thinks it gets a cheaper and more efficient job by keeping the governor, attorney general and secretary of state," he said.

Governor Morrison, the third board member, has said Nebraska needs a more professional approach to parole supervision instead of a wholesale abolition of the Parole Board.

Kutak said he agrees generally with Marsh and Meyer. But he said the council's main objective is to get the amendment on the ballot, then let the Legislature decide who they want to serve on the board.

Head Start Program Described for Kiwanis

"All parents want the best for their children. Some just don't know how to obtain it," Sanford Nelson told members of the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

The principal of Elliott School in Lincoln was describing the Local Head Start program.

The project served 390 preschool children last year, he said, and 150 were enrolled in the summer program just completed Friday.

Many of the children enter school without any stimulation to learn, he said. Some are unable to understand or use words of more than one syllable.

A number of the children had never held a pencil or crayon before entering Head Start.

Miss Ruth Eickman is the full-time director of the project in Lincoln. Her assistant for medical services works half-time, and a nurse is employed full-time.

Five building directors receive their regular teaching scale, and assistants are paid $1.25 per hour.

Buses Provided

Two bus drivers transport pupils who live more than five blocks from the closest attendance center.

The children attend three hours per day, four days each week. Wednesdays are reserved for the teachers to visit their homes and make arrangements with co-operating agencies for dental and medical care and needed welfare services.

Educational activities, Nelson said, are determined by the building directors according to the needs of the children.

Much of the time is spent at "play," which "we do not consider a dirty word," he noted. Children can learn many important things while they play — sharing, taking turns, and generally getting along with other people.

Visit Many Places

The children have visited many places of interest which were strange to most of them, he revealed, such as the children's zoo, a dairy, fire stations, department stores and the City-County health clinic.

Health is the "bread-and-butter" of the program, Nelson said.

In the follow-up after the first summer of Head Start operation, 34 children received dental care, three were fitted with glasses, and 15 had medical attention.

One child was found to have an ulcerated eye, received treatment and now has vision. Another was treated for 10 abcessed teeth and thereafter "developed a whole new personality."

Recruiting the pupils is the most difficult task of Head Start officials, according to Nelson.

Curtis Asks Wheat 'Bin'

By Associated Press

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., has proposed a national security reserve of wheat to insure that the nation has an adequate supply to meet its domestic needs.

In a telephone discussion of the situation with Station KOLT, Scottsbluff, he expressed concern over reports that Russia might corner the free worlds wheat markets.

He said while Nebraska's wheat production has been good this year, production for the nation as a whole is down.

Curtis said he doesn't want the United States to have to buy a commodity as important as wheat from a Communist country.

In light of the present situation, Curtis said there should be an increase in wheat allotments.

Depot in Difficulty

Hastings Wants Industrial Site

The chief of the General Services Administration's property disposal division in Kansas City says the federal agency is hopeful competitors for 4,000 acres of Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot land can resolve their differences.

J. Wayne Harrop, the property disposal chief, acknowleged his office still is sitting on proposals from the Nebraska Game, Parks and Forestation Commission and the City of Hastings.

Both governmental entities want to acquire a strip of the depot approximately one mile deep and six or seven miles long. It includes the 900-plus structures which once housed ammunition, the so-called igloos.

Harrop said the city of Hastings was first with its application, seeking the land for "commercial and industrial purposes." Reportedly, Hastings would sub-lease the real estate for large-scale poultry and livestock feeding operations.

The Game Commission sees the 4,000 acres as a major public recreation facility, reasonably close to 70% of the state's population.

Harrop commented the GSA "likes to get rid of the surplus property as fast as we can." Further, he said "we have been told by the city it is attempting to resolve the difficulty."

Treasurers 'Do Well'

Nebraska's county treasurers have drawn compliments from State Tax Commissioner George Dworak for their cooperation in new revenue reporting procedures.

With enactment of new laws by the 1965 Legislature, the treasurers now conduct revenue operations as they affect the state with the tax commissioner and not the state auditor.

Dworak said a new procedure initiated this year has permitted county treasurers to make their annual settlement "well ahead of schedule."

To date, more than 80 counties have squared yearly accounts with the state.

In the future, Dworak said settlement "will largely be accomplished" in his office and work required by county treasurers should "be minimal."

Because some county treasurers maintain accounts differently, a confererence on resolving operational problems is scheduled at Kearney Monday and Tuesday. Dworak said some of his staff would be on hand.

Can't Move Red

Damascus, Syria, (AP)—Informed sources in Damascus say that Syria has turned down a U.S. request to take a Red Chinese defector out of the country.

The defector, believed to be private secretary to Red Chinese Ambassador Chen Ken, went to the American Embassy July 27 and asked for political asylum. He has been there ever since.

Equalizers Eye Court Ruling on Valuations is now down to 7% and the proposed 11% boost for Nance County urban properties has been slimmed down to 5%, at the most.

When sales to which counties can legitimately object are screened out of tax commissioner sales-assessment ratio studies, proposed boosts for other countries are pulled in somewhat, too.

For the most part, however, Dworak's recommendations are not expected to be substantially changed from those disclosed several weeks ago.

Some Satisfied

Causing the board to pause in any quick flight to accommodate counties wishing valuation increases washed out are stands of counties recently accepting scientific reappraisals.

Spokesmen from Adams, Sarpy, Butler and Saline Counties have told the board they are well satisfied with their new and higher tax values. What they want now is other counties raised to actual value, too—and thus be assessed, as law provides, at 35% of the actual value.

Dworak said he would personally make a motion to reduce the valuations of recently reappraised counties if other members of the state board disregard his proposals.

"I have told them I would do all I could to see they are protected," the tax commissioner said.

The board last week received an opinion from Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer saying "the board may take any action necessary to place all counties on a 35% of actual value basis, or as nearly so as can be attained toward that goal.

Wide Latitude

"Our court has held on many occasions that absolute uniformity cannot be arrived at and that the board has wide latitude of judgment and discretion in its methods used."

Called to the board's attention by the department of justice was the July Supreme Court decision favoring Grainger Brothers Co. in a back-tax suit against Lancaster County.

Grainger proved real estate in Lancaster County was assessed at 26% of its actual value from 1959-62 while personal property was on the tax rolls at 35%.

"Whatever action is taken by the board this year," Asst. Atty. Gen. Homer G. Hamilton warned, "if the deviation from the required 35% is substantial, it is apparent that taxpayers owning tangible personal property would be successful in getting their valuations reduced in the event of litigation."

When the state board last year made wholesale adjustments in county valuations, it did not put into the record the final overall level of state assessment.

Court Uses Pencil

However the Supreme Court put its pencil to work upon the occasion of legal challenges.

The court reckoned the 1965 mean and median assessment for rural property in all counties was 28.07% and 27.36%, respectively.

For urban property the mean (or average) was an assessment of 28.83% of actual value and the median (midpoint in the listing) was 28.36%.

Ainsworth Boy Is Electrocuted

Ainsworth (UPI) — Mike Giles, about 16, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Giles of Ainsworth, was accidentally electrocuted late Saturday afternoon on one of his father's farms just west of here.

The accident occurred when an irrigation system boom came in contact with a 7,200-volt electric line.

The attending physician said he thought the electricity entered the boy's body through his toe. He was standing next to some aluminum irrigation pipes. Apparently one of his feet came in contact with the pipes. A heavy pair of rubber boots he was wearing failed to insulate him against the shock.

The charge of electricity blew two front tires on a tractor standing nearby.

The survivors include his parents and three sisters.

Congress 'Must End Strike'

Congress should act immediately to end the mechanic's strike against five major U.S. airlines, Robert V. Denney, said.

Denney, Republican candidate for Congress in the First District, said, "This strike is also against the people of this country."

"The president has shirked his responsibility to keep from irritating union leaders. This is obviously not statesmanship."

Denney added, "I do not believe in forcing a settlement, but mediation can continue while the planes fly."

NU's Devaney Joins Bud on .800 Plateau

By Associated Press

Bob Devaney is major college football coaching's first .800 hitter since Bud Wilkinson. Both attained that lofty plateau in the Big Eight Conference.

A look at active coaches who have directed varsity squads eight or more seasons indicates that to be a leader it helps to have some affiliation with the Big Eight, Michigan State or the Southeastern Conference.

Nebraska's Devaney, whose teams have won three straight league crowns, has a nine-year total of 73 victories, 16 losses and five ties for an .820 percentage. When Wilkinson ended 17 years at the Oklahoma helm after the '63 season he took an .837 mark with him.

Dan Devine of Missouri, standing third in the ratings, was an assistant at Michigan State as was Devaney, while fourth place Frank Kush of Arizona State played for the Spartans.

Darrell Royal, No. 8, starred at quarterback and halfback for Wilkinson's Sooners before launching a resurgence of University of Texas gridiron prestige.

Mississippi's Johnny Vaught, in the runner-up spot, and Paul Bryant of Alabama, in fifth, are kingpins of the SEC. Frank Broyles of the amazing Arkansas Razorbacks and Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd are 9-10. Broyles played at Tech before it left the SEC and Dodd gained fame on the field at Tennessee.

Tied for sixth at .747 are Big Ten taskmaster Woody Hayes of Ohio State and the man who rules the Ivy League with a cherubic face and a finely-drilled team, Dartmouth's Bob Blackman.

Devaney missed a '65 sweep when lighter, whippet-like 'Bama outmaneuvered the Huskers in the Orange Bowl, 39-28. But the 10-0 season's mark was the first unbeaten effort over the regular schedule for Nebraska since 1915.

The Huskers won nine of a possible 13 league crowns in the period 1928-40. Devaney brought 'em back to national prominence with their first-since title in 1963 and in four years he's been the overseer of a 38-6 reconstruction record.

Vaught keeps Mississippi rolling along with a 149-41-10 relentless flow through the South, good for a .781 average over 19 years. Devine follows with an 84-24-7, .778 in 11 campaigns. He moved that close to Vaught by directing his Tigers to a 20-18 Sugar Bowl triumph over Florida last New Year's Day.

Kush was a headliner at guard at Michigan State in 1952 when Duffy Daugherty, currently ranked 15th for his efforts at that school, was an aide to Biggie Munn. He consistently turns out sprint-T clubs dotted with Olympic Track and pro football prospects.

The crafty Bryant, recuperating from an off-season collapse, will have 'Bama ready again. The Bear's elevens have lost only six of their last 64 starts.

Clay Flattens London With 'One-Two' Punch

London (AP) — Cassius Clay backed Britain's Brian London into a corner Saturday and belted him to the floor for a third round knockout and the fifth successful defense of his world heavyweight boxing championship.

The time was one minute, 40 seconds.

After toying with the brawler from Blackpool for two rounds, the confident Clay opened up in the third.

He lashed out with two tremendous right hands and backed the Briton into the corner.

Then he scored with a left and right. London crumpled to the canvas and took the full count with his head buried on the canvas.

"I hit him with a hard left and right," said Clay, known as Muhammad Ali to the Black Muslim followers. "I threw eight or nine punches, but it was a left and right—the one-two—that got him."

It was the 25th straight victory and 20th by knockout for Clay who never has been beaten and who has hardly been scratched in his professional career.

It was only the second clean knockout suffered by the rugged London, who in 11 years of fighting has won 35 lost 13 and been stopped six times.

The bout in Earl's Court Indoor Stadium, scene of Billy Graham's recent religious revival, drew a disappointing and undoubtedly disappointed crowd of 13,000, will below the 18,000 capacity.

Millions of Americans witnessed the fight live through Early Bird Satellite. The Britons had to settle for closed circuit television at 20 theaters.

It was just another good payday for Clay, who has announced a plan to fight once a month until he is called into service by the United States. He has appealed his call-up by the draft board.

The champion was guaranteed 90,000 pounds or $252,000 plus a part of the television monies, and London figured to get around $112,000. Clay is scheduled to meet Germany's Karl Mildenberger at Frankfurt Sept. 10.

An indication of how lightly Clay regarded the test was seen in the fact he weighed in at 209½ pounds, seven pounds heavier than when he stopped Henry Cooper in the sixth round here last May 21.

"You have to give him credit," Clay continued, "He put up a fight for 1½ rounds.

"But, whenever I see an opening—like against Liston—I take it. I'm never out to prove nothing to the public.

Pirates Rap Reds, 9-3; Retain Lead

By Associated Press

Pittsburgh's 1960 World Series hero, Bill Mazeroski, did it again Saturday with a two-run homer in the second to key a six-run inning and push the Pirates to victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs, 9-3.

The victory protected their National League lead and ended the Red's winning string at six games.

Righthander Tommy Sisk checked the Reds on seven hits for his fifth victory against two losses.

Meanwhile, the Giants dropped a, 5-2, decision to the Chicago Cubs and fell one game behind the league-leading Pirates in the tough National League pennant race.

Reliever Bill Hands checked San Francisco on three hits over the last seven innings as the Giants lost their sixth game in the past 10 starts.

The victory was the Cubs second straight over the Giants in Chicago.

Pinch hitter Doug Clemens singled in one run in the sixth inning and scored on Cookie Rojas' squeeze bunt, sparking the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-5 triumph over Atlanta.

Two-run singles by Lou Johnson and John Kennedy led Los Angeles to a 4-3 victory over Houston that lifted the Dodgers back into second place in the National League race and ran the Astro's losing streak to seven.

In New York, Mike Shannon's eighth inning single drove in his fourth run of the game, breaking a tie and sending St. Louis a 10-8 victory over the New York Mets.

In the American League, Horace Clarkes eighth-inning home run off reliever Luis Tiant brought the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

The homer, fourth for the Yankee infielder, came with one out, none on and the score tied 4-4.

Jerry Zimmerman and Don Mincher each cracked two-run doubles in a 14-hit attack that carried the Minnesota Twins to a 5-0 victory over Kansas City Saturday night behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Grant.

Sam Bowens knocked in two runs and Dave McNally stopped Washington on seven hits as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Senators 4-0, ending a three- game winning streak.

Don Demeter and Eddie Kasko each drove in two runs and Lee Stange shut Detroit out for eight and two-thirds innings as Boston beat Detroit 8-2 Saturday.

Four homers, two of them by John Romano, and Tommy John's four-hit pitching carried the Chicago White Sox to a 7-1 victory over the California Angels.

Meeting High Handle Wagered

By JOHN HINES

A freak occurrence which may have decided the meet's top rider, another big winning string by Bobby Mundorf and a new track record in the final race of the 23-day season at State Fairgrounds track Saturday concluded what in some respects was an even better horse racing season than in 1965.

The third largest crowd of the summer 6,733, wagered a meeting high of $317,346 to wrap up season totals of 106,077 fans and a mutuel handle of $4,549,603.

Those marks were not quite as good as a year ago, though, as 112,652 patrons poured in to pay $4,949,756.

Yet track manager Henry Brandt said, "our twilight racing this year was excellent. Every day we started at 4 p.m., we were up over the same day last year and our handle this Friday of $206,511 was an all-time record here for that day of the week. So we ended up real good especially better after the weather cooled off."

Fred Ecoffey was not able to overtake Don Stauffer in the point standings for the top jockey of the meeting. Stauffer, who had a second-place Saturday, wound up on top, 172-169 One race might have kept Ecoffey from attaining his steady three-week pursuit on the lead.

Ecoffey came in second once and third once and still trailed by six points with three races to go. He started the seventh and co-featured race on Bo Dorrin, an 8-5 favorite.

But Ecoffey fell from the saddle as Bo Dorrin rounded the first turn and the show and place finishes he ran in the last two races were not enough.

Ecoffey explained the mishap as he tended to a badly-skinned knee in the track room after the day's activities.

"The horse was lugging (wanting to go inside, towards the rail) real bad. There were a couple of boys inside me and I was getting ready to pull Bo Dorrin outside and shut them off when he kind of bobbled and I lost my balance. I rode him to second place out here two weeks ago and he's really not too difficult to handle"

Mundorf rode four consecutive winners from the third through sixth heats, to wind up with nine winners in four days and 115 points for third place in the final standings.

Stauffer was awarded $100, Ecoffey $75 and Mundorf $50 by Brandt in a public presentation on the track after the last race.

Record honors went to Coffey County at a mile and 1-16 in the ninth race. The seven-year-old chestnut gelding owned by Gorge Ward of Carmen, Okla., and trained by Alvin Pollock galloped to a 1:47 1-5 standard under Ralph Calderson, breaking Devil Rose's track record by two-fifths of a second.

Columbus Racing Tuesday

By RICK AKIN

Columbus — The Platte County Fair opens its 21-day thoroughbred horse racing season here Tuesday with $50,000 in improvements on the plant, a license to sell beer and manager Warren Albert's hope that things will improve over last year.

The Columbus track had a rough first 10 days last year due to excessive heat, similar to the kind that the Lincoln Fairgrounds meeting encountered the first week this year.

But Albert is hoping the heat will stay away from the track, which boasts a new paved parking lot, receiving barn and winner's circle this year. It will also be the first time the track has served beer.

Albert said that the number of stall applications has been so great that about 100 horses will be kept in Madison and trucked back and forth. "We'll take as many horses as they (the owners) want to truck to Madison and back," Albert said.

The Columbus season will include two $3,000 races for Nebraska breds and a couple of $2,000 and $2,500 features. The minimum purse will be $900.

Columbus, which offers closed circuit television to its patrons, will have a first post time of 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Labor Day, which will be the only Monday of racing. Racing ends here Sept. 5.

Omaha — Defending champion Omaha Falstaff and Lincoln's Ken Witt's dropped into the losers bracket in the rain interrupted State Class "A" American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament Saturday.

Saturday's final game, matching Grand Island and Omaha's Coca-Cola was suspended in the bottom of the second inning and will be resumed at 10 a.m. this morning.

The scheduled midget game at 11 a.m. will be moved back and follow the conclusion of the Grand Island-Coca-Cola contest.

Bellevue bounced Ken Witt's, 11-2, and Scottsbluff surprised Falstaff, winner under the Pepsi label last year, 5-4, in 12 innings.

Bellevue, east division champion in the Cornhusker Legion League, ripped Ken Witt's starter Craig Carlson for 16 hits as it advanced easily. Half of the blows were for extra bases, including an inside-the-park homer by Tom Frey in the eighth inning.

Witt's had an inside-the-park blast of its own by Dana Stephenson, but had only three other hits against starter Sid Taylor and reliever Ron Wehlander.

A suicide squeeze bunt by Larry Heinrich in the bottom of the 12th inning let Scottsbluff slip past Falstaff. A walk to Steve Reisig and a double by Steve Babbitt preceded the perfectly executed bunt by Heindrich which broke up a 5-5 deadlock.

Sport Signals

By Hal Brown

Harold Keith, who is soon due to retire as Oklahoma sports information director, delves into his memory to recall some of the top games played on the Sooners' Owen Field.

And Nebraska comes in for more than its share in the old-time section of the 1966 OU football brochure entitled, "Owen Field's Most Exciting Game?"

"Coach Bennie Owen's Sooners captured the first thriller, a 14-7 upset of mighty Nebraska in 1924, second year the field was built," Keith recalls.

"The Sooners had lost the opener that season to Charley Wantland's Central Normal Bronchos from Edmond, Okla., 2-0," the veteran OU publicist continues. "With coach Fred Dawson's Cornhuskers next on the slate, many fans believed a forfeit might be in order.

"But a shining target helps. The Sooners upset a tough Nebraska team led by halfback John "Choppy" Rhodes and Ed Weir, all-American tackle, 14-7, before 7,000 wildly-applauding fans.

Nebraska's only touchdown that day came on a pass from Elbert Bloodgood to Melvin Collins.

Another Husker Loss

Another game on Keith's list of "most exciting" was the 1930 game with Nebraska.

"Nebraska, coached by Dana Bible, had never lost a Big Six conference game until they played at Owen Field in 1930," Keith relates. "Buster Mills, Sooner quarterback, broke off tackle for 55 yards and one touchdown.

"Guy Warren, Sooner halfback, flitted 54 yards to another. Ab Walker passed 14 yards to Fred Cherry for the final Sooner score and coach Ad Lindsey's Sooners had shown the Big Six that the Scarlet could be beaten. Score 20-7."

So, the Husker fan asks, "Why doesn't Keith pick any of the games Nebraska won as 'most exciting.'"

Have you ever watched a game that your team lost and considered it exciting?

But the Huskers' great moments against the Sooners are not left entirely out of the Oklahoma football brochure this year.

For instance, Nebraskans hold records against the Sooners for most touchdowns with punt runbacks, longest run with pass interception, longest run with fumble and most conversions.

Husker quarterback Glen Preston ran punts back 65 and 50 yards for touchdowns in the 44-0 win in 1921—and in the mud at that. Larry Naviaux, a 1958 Husker, ran 93 yards with a pass interception against OU in a 40-7 NU loss.

NU's Doug Myers ran 93 yards with a fumble against Oklahoma in the 1923 game, won by the Huskers, 24-0, and Bob Reynolds kicked five conversions in the 49-35 loss to the Sooners.

Off After Beckman

Injury Couldn't Stop Roy McCain

Roy McCain

If, as they say, it's hard to keep a good man down, then it follows that it must be doubly hard to keep two good men down.

The logic in all of that may not hold so well, but the facts do. One is back now, the other will be this winter.

Roy McCain, the Alabaman who looked down at a piece of wood in his leg at the Fairgrounds late last summer and grimly announced "I'll never race again" is going strong.

And his long time partner, Guy Hollamon, who was seriously injured in the pits at the beginning of the season last year, will make his comeback this winter.

"We're going to build a new car this winter . . . a good one," McCain said, referring to Hollamon and himself. "We'll do it just as soon as Guy gets his leg to working good."

When they do, it will be their third car. The first one, built in 1961, was good enough to win a few features in 1962, only McCain's second year of driving. They sold that one.

But the one they built for the 1963 season was better and won the point championship at Midwest Speedway the first year out. It was second in 1964 and running second in 1965 when it was torn up.

Actually, McCain is still driving it, although he and Hollamon sold this car, too, to Dean Burling.

Burling was driving the car early this season, but not having too much luck.

And that's when McCain went back on his vow not to drive again.

"I just got the fever," McCain says. "I hated to see the old car getting banged up and I told Dean I'd drive it for him until I went on vacation. It was down at Beatrice at the Homesteader. I got lucky and won that and here I am."

McCain, who admits to being something of a clown around the track, has had amazing success in his brief career as a driver.

Now 29, he has been driving only five years. He was stationed here in the air force and when he was discharged he remained. During his service days he had become acquainted with Hollamon, who offered him a job at the State Hospital. Hollamon is still his boss.

A car owner kept kidding McCain how he ought to give a racer a whirl. And he finally accepted and gave one a try.

He liked it.

"It's something different," he says. "It's just great to go around that track and know everyone you're racing against. It sucks you back in that seat with all of that horsepower. I've just got the bug. I can't explain it."

That vacation he was talking about comes up in a couple of weeks and he'll be heading for Alabama in a camper.

But he still has another chance at heading off Lloyd Beckman and that's tonight at 8 p.m. at Midwest.

"I've got a chance," he says.

Airline Strike Hurting Big Teams

By CHUCK WOODLING

The nagging airline strike is playing hob with the National AAU Outdoor Swimming and Diving Championships in this the last weekend before the meet gets underway Aug. 14 at Woods Park Memorial Pool.

The strike is hurting the large teams especially.

"The cheapest way for big groups to come here is by air," explained Bob Stuewig, meet coordinator for the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, "and many of them can't get flights. They'll have to come by car."

Others, including the defending champion Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club, chartered planes in advance and should have little trouble . . . if the charters hold up.

On the local level, the strike also could be a nuisance.

"Our information booths and most of our welcoming facilities are at the airport," Stuewig noted. "If most swimmers come in by car, we'll have some trouble giving them a proper welcome."

Entry blanks from 65 divers have been received so far. This group, plus others whose entries should arrive soon, will participate in diving qualifications Aug. 14.

"The airlines strike has also delayed our mail," Stuewig said. "We sent out entry blanks just when the strike began and it took longer than usual for them to reach contestants."

In the same way, it has taken longer to get the blanks back.

All swimmers must match or better qualifying standards set by the AAU to be eligible to compete. Entry requests have climbed to nearly 1,600, but not that many will qualify.

Bleachers accommodating about 2,750 persons will be set up in strategic spots around the 50-meter Woods Pool. A reserved section will be set up at the finish line at the northeast end of the pool.

All other seating, on the east and south of the swimming pool and on the south of the 16-foot diving well, will be general admission. Single admissions and season books are available at the Chamber office. Separate admissions will be charged for day and night sessions.

Parking should be no problem with the two large lots to the east of the pool. Grass areas of the park also will be used. The west side parking lot will be reserved for officials.

Diving preliminaries begin at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 14. The top 12 men and women in the six diving events move on to the meet finals beginning Aug. 18.

Diving preliminaries will begin at 9:30 a.m. each of the four days with finals set for 4:30 p.m. Swimming preliminaries start at 12:30 p.m. with finals at 7:30 p.m.

Randall Turns Trick

Another Swim Mark Falls

Philadelphia (AP) — Martha Randall, 18-year-old U.S. Olympian, broke the world record Saturday for the 200-meter freestyle in the fourth annual Eastern U.S.A. Swimming and Diving Championships.

Miss Randall, voted American female swimmer of the year in 1965, was timed in 2:11.4, smashing the mark of 2:11.6, set Feb. 27, 1960 in Sydney, Australia, by Dawn Fraser.

The comely American miss, who has been threatening to retire from competition, broke the record in the last of six heats for Saturday night's final of the 200-meter event.

Miss Randall's record was the second world mark set at the three-day meet, which opened in John B. Kelly pool Friday. Lee Davis, 17, of Brandywine, Del., lowered the 1,500-meter freestyle world mark with an 18:21.7 performance. The old record was 18:23.7 set last year by Patty Caretto of Commerce, Calif.

Ironically, Miss Randall started in the 1,500-meter with the purpose of trying to break the 800-meter record, and when she failed, dropped out of the race.

Both marks brought to seven the number of world swimming records shattered in just the last three weeks.

Here is a list of the recent world swim standards and the dates they were set:

July 17—Karen Muir, 13, South Africa, 200-meter backstroke, 2:27.1. Set in France.

July 17—Ann Fairlie, 17, South Africa, 100-meter backstroke, 1:07.4 .Set in France.

July 24—Greg Buckingham, 18, Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club, 200-meter individual medley, 2:13.1. Set at Los Altos, Calif.

July 29—Don Schollander, 20, Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club, 200-meter freestyle, 1:57.2. Set at Los Angeles.

July 31—Claudia Kolb, 16, Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club, 200-meter individual medley, 2:28.0. Set at Los Angeles.

Aug. 5—Lee Davis, 17, Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, 1,500-meter freestyle, 18:21.7. Set in Philadelphia.

Aug. 6—Martha Randall, 18, Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, 200-meter freestyle, 2:11.4. Set in Philadelphia.

Shrine Bowl Camps Open

Shrine Bowl coaches Dell Miller and Bill James greet their 33-man squads Monday as preparations for the eighth annual all-star clash begin at Fremont and Crete.

Miller's North team will drill at Midland College in Fremont and James' South club will stage its workouts at Doane College in Crete.

Report at 10 a.m.

Players will report at 10 a.m. for physicals and parade before the press, radio and television corps at 1 p.m. Both head coaches hope to get in one solid workout late Monday.

Miller, of Columbus, will be assisted by Fremont Bergan's Lou Wewel, Ord's Allen Bellinger and Gering's Merlin Van Newkirk.

James' assistants will be Ted Weldon of Beatrice, Ray Huggett of Central City and Harry Meeker of Millard.

The North club will boast a decided size advantage over the South team and Miller is hopeful that this will help his club curb the South's domination of the game.

In the seven previous contests the South holds a 5-2 advantage, including a 7-0 triumph a year ago.

Need Defensive Ends

One of the major tasks confronting South coach James is finding defensive ends.

Summer baseball injuries sidelined Kearney's Mike Minor and Paul Topliff, a pair of rugged flankers considered to be excellent defensive ends.

Miller and James will have less than two weeks to get their clubs ready for the Aug. 20 contest. Kickoff time will be 2 p.m. at the University of Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

Soap Box Derby To Tacoma Boy

Akron, Ohio (AP) — A 12-year-old Tacoma, Wash., boy, David Krussow, won the 29th All-American Soap Box Derby Saturday before 60,000 spectators at Derby Downs.

David's winning time of 27.17 seconds was the fastest in five years for the championship run and earned him a $7,500 college scholarship from General Motors Chevrolet Division.

Ricky Haas, Lincoln's entry in the National Soapbox Derby, was defeated in the second heat here Saturday. Haas won the first heat with a time of 27.42

Ricky lost to Larry Gilmore of Midland, Tex., in the second heat. Gilmore finished third in the derby with a time of 27.31

It was the second time in three years that a Tacoma boy won. In 1964 Greg Shumacher of Tacoma was the champion.

"I'm too excited to think now,' the 95-pound youngster said as he climbed out of his gray racer and tried to answer questions.

Krussow, also a champion Little League baseball player, nosed out Matthew Grusler, 12, of Levittown, Pa., and Larry Gilmore, 12, of Midland, Tex., in the final heat.

David entered his first derby in 1965 but failed to place in the Tacoma event. This year he outran a field of 55.

He said he plans to go to the University of Washington on his scholarship and "play football."

Grusler won a $5,000 scholarship for second place, and Gilmore a $4,000 scholarship for his third place finish.

Fourth place went to Mark Scheick, 11, of Jackson, Mich., who won a $3,500 scholarship.

"We know how important, not only the game, but this week is and what it means to professional football," he said. The nation's sports information directors as well as the football and basketball writers associations assemble here for annual meetings . . .

A New Leader

Missouri halfback sensation Charlie Brown will have a new leader this season. Good grief no, Dan Devine isn't quitting. But Charlie is getting married Aug. 20 . . .

The Nebraska basketball teams will have four games on Saturday afternoon television this winter as the Big Eight renews its game-of-the-week series. Two will be on the road and two at home, including a Lincoln date with Kansas, a game which could play a major role in determining the champion . . .

Nebraska sports information director Don Bryant, taking a razzing from his colleagues over the massive Cornhusker football team, not only in size but numbers, is answering his hecklers with quips.

"We're using numbers one through 99," the Fat Fox says. "Tom Novak's No. 60 in the trophy case is in jeopardy. We may have to get it out.

"Our kickoffs are at 2 p.m., but the run on starts at 1:30. We had to recruit 75 more students to stand in spirit line to have for the players to run through."

Greens and Armadillos

Cotton Bowl executive Field Scovell reports that D. X. Bible, the former Nebraska football coach, has a problem on his green. Now 76, D.X. has not become Green superintendent, but the Hall of Famer, who also coached at Texas A&M and Texas University, does have a green.

It actually amounts to a three-hole golf course, although he has only one putting surface. But he has three tees, the shortest about a nine-iron shot and the longest a driver.

The problem is a pesky bunch of armadillos which come up out of the dry creek beds at night and tear up the greens. D.X. has set traps, not sand, and as of now has caught 23 of them.

Incidentally, Scovell, whose son may be the starting quarterback at Texas Tech, played his football at Texas A&M for D.X. To this day Scovell is the greatest admirer of D.X. even though he carries some memories of bitter chewings from his old leader . . .

Daddy Has to Listen

Sam Corenswet, the affable oldtimer of Sugar Bowl hierarchy, is taking orders from his son these days. Sam Jr. is the new president of the mid-winter carnival, but allowed his father to make the trip here in his place this time.

It was Sam Jr. who made the last ditch appeal to Nebraska last season. Like all bowl people, the Sugar folks love the Cornhuskers and would like nothing better than having NU this winter if the Huskers retain their winning ways.

A curious twosome here this week was Jerry Burns, the ousted coach at Iowa, and his successor Ray Nagle, formerly of Utah.

You may recall that in last year's pre-season estimations Playboy Magazine had Burns as Coach of the Year and Iowa was to be national champions. This year it's Alabama.

If the bad luck carries over, just hope it isn't to the players. LaVerne Allers of NU was placed on their pre-season All-America.

Operation Outdoors

By Chuck Roberts

Sen. Thomas Dodd's "Magic Gun Bill," which we are told will abolish murder, assassinations, juvenile delinquency, and all wrongs pertaining to the furtherance of motherhood, got a shot in the arm last week because a Texas sharpshooter with a brain tumor hated his father.

The Texas incident of a sick, sharpshooting sniper and his victims, including an unborn child, is a heart-hurting tragedy. But so are the comments about guns and bad guys from short-thinking persons before the victims got to the hospital.

And it may be this hard-to-understand-thing that happened in Texas will have the emotional impact needed to kick over on the passage side of the fence a bill which will hamper the pursuits of sportsmen everywhere for a long time.

We're talking about Sen. Dodd's bill, S. 1592, which would do a lot of things but would in essence restrict the sale of firearms to good guys and prohibit the same to bad guys.

People Kill People

The noble motives of Sen. Dodd and others concerned with this firearms things are more than admirable, we think. But a comment made by the senator shortly after the tragic incident makes us rein up.

He said "rifles and shotguns are used to murder and wound 10's of thousands of people annually." He went on to say that he hopes passage of the bill will be quickened by the slaying.

Whether he's saying that stricter gun laws would have kept this fellow from climbing the steps of the building and doing what he did, we're not sure.

Or whether he's saying the only way to combat this crime and murder thing is to take all guns away, we're not sure. But whatever he's saying, he's saying to me and a lot of other persons that guns kill people.

I have never heard of a gun killing people. I have heard, though, of people killing people.

The Other Side

Sen. Dodd we are sure is too honorable a man to ride the coattails of tragedy just for the heck of it. He sincerely believes in what he is trying to do. And we admire him for it.

But we also admire the feelings of the National Rifle Association, National Wildlife Association, Wildlife Management Institute, and other conservation organizations who do not feel his way is the right way.

(Many groups, including our own Game Commission, support proposed legislation that would restrict the sale of firearms by mail and to minors and known criminals and would provide additional penalities for crimes committed with the aid of firearms.)

We also admire the comments of Willard Barbee of the Game Commission who commented in the wake of Dodd's comments that "we shouldn't let an emotional moment support legislation which would impair the right to bear arms." There's something in the Constitution about this.

What's Next?

We're not to be misunderstood to believe that Dodd's bill would take away guns from sportsmen. What we are worried about is what will happen next.

Philadelphia, Pa., is a good example. The City Fathers there passed a law making it harder to buy a gun than it is to make a bird dog do the shooting and the hunter the pointing and retrieving.

An informed citizen there told the City Council the ordinance didn't have any effect on crime but did on sportsmen, ran a few gun dealers out of the business, lost the city a half-million dollars or so in taxes and created a black market. It was called "panic legislation."

Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon said "it is my conviction that legislation cannot prevent the determined criminal from obtaining firearms."

One person who is a vigorous and well-informed advocate of using facts not emotions to seek solutions to the misuse of firearms is Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska. If you're concerned or confused, write him.

U.S. Touring To Increase Money Gap

By SYLVIA PORTER

Porter

We, as tourists, will spend at least $1.9 billion more traveling outside our borders this year than foreigners, as tourists, will spend within our borders. Our "tourist gap" is certain to climb 10-12% over 1965's all-time record of $1.74 billion to another all-time record and to continue to be a key factor splattering our balance of payments with red ink.

Our higher tourist spending, plus our mounting Vietnam spending, plus our zooming spending for imports of goods and services will sharply increase the 1966 deficit in our overall balance of payments. This deficit was slashed to $1.3 billion last year, lowest since 1957, but the prospect now is that it will be back to the disappointing — and dangerous — $2-$2.5 billion level this year.

We are suffering a significant setback in our drive to get our international financial accounts into approximate balance. We are still flooding the world with far too many U.S. dollars. We are, by so doing, junking our own time-table for reform of the free world's monetary system. None of this is good news.

The Vietnam war is an obvious reason we are retrogressing. So is the fact that because of our heated boom, our imports of goods are rising at about twice the rate as our exports of goods and thus narrowing our crucially important trade surplus.

But over and beyond these factors is our enormous spending as tourists — and nothing we are doing or planning to do will curb the outflood of travel dollars.

Swarming Abroad

We are swarming all over the world. This year, an estimated 3 million of us will travel overseas and will spend at least $3.4 billion in overseas lands and for foreign-owned transportation. In contrast, an estimated 1.2 million foreigners will travel here and spend around $1.5 billion in our country and for U.S.-owned transportation.

While spending per U.S. traveler is down, the causes are a large increase in the number of trips to the nearby Caribbean area and a decrease in the duration of the average trip to Europe and the Mediterranean. The key fact is that each U.S. tourist abroad still spends nearly twice as much as each foreign tourist here.

What will be done? One thing is certain: there will be no ban on U.S. travel overseas; the idea of a "head tax" to discourage tourism has been abandoned.

Rather, the emphasis will be on bringing more tourists — and more free-spending tourists — here. For instance, there is the prospect "within the next year or two" of "directional" airline fares on the North Atlantic to make it cheaper for foreigners to fly here than for Americans to fly abroad. This, says John W. Black, director of the U.S. Travel Service (USTS), could "result in a dramatic cut in the travel deficit."

But that's long-term. The immediate outlook remains bleak — because we are simply being out-competed in the world tourist race.

$3 Million

The USTS budget for tourism is $3 million, .003% of our national budget; Spain's is $10 million, a full .45% of her budget. The USTS spends 44c to attract each visitor; Greece spends $7.11. The USTS staff is 82; Italy's is 526. The total of U.S. Travel Service offices abroad is 11; the total of foreign travel service offices in the U.S. is 110.

Finally, we are just not geared to receiving tourists the way other nations are geared to receiving them.

We'll have to do far more and do whatever we do far better to narrow our travel deficit.

Meanwhile, the likelihood is that 1966's all-time record "gap" of $1.9 billion will widen and possibly it will reach $2.5 billion before it can even be "stabilized." Tourism is scarcely in the class of hard trade but when there is a minus in either case, the ink in which our balance of payments is written is the same color—red.

R. B. Lau Has Easy Time Winning Men's City Meet

R. B. Lau, a smiling 20-year-old, won his first men's city golf tournament by a huge eight strokes over Nebraska University golfing teammate Charlie Borner.

Nick West, another NU golfer, tied for third with Glen Gruenemeier and Larry Romjue. Defending champion Matt Taber, seeking an unprecedented third straight title, finished sixth.

Lau's score of 287 was only the second time since 1960 that a Lincoln golfer had broken par in winning the tourney. After the first day Lau and Borner were tied for the lead, but Lau opened up the margin to four strokes the second and third day over Gruenemeier.

New Seats To Be Ready Sept. 1

The 12,200 new seats being added to Nebraska's Memorial Stadium will be ready Sept 1—more than two weeks before the Huskers open the season against Texas Christian.

Work also began to eliminate "blind spots" caused by the new seats. The blind areas are in the corners of the north end additions. They are caused by the stair-step walls along the ends of the east and west stadium stands.

Witt's Advances To State Meet

South African Team Arrives

The six-man Union of South Africa swimming team became the first team to arrive for the National AAU Outdoor Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Woods Park Pool.

The team, including world record holders Karen Muir and Ann Fairlie, arrived Thursday and began workouts at Woods Pool.

Regents Approve New Press Box

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents approved two recommendations set forth by Board President Clarence Swanson which laid the groundwork for a new track and press box for the Cornhuskers.

Athletic director Tippy Dye said the location of the track is up in the air. The press box, to be financed throgh uprivate funds, would be a two or three level affair depending on the money available.

Changes Made In South Squad

Lincoln Southeast tackle Harold Griffin and Minden back Elwood Johnson were added to the roster of the South team for the Shrine Bowl game set Aug. 20 at Memorial Stadium.

Griffin replaces Kearney's Mike Minor who has a broken collarbone. Johnson takes the place of McCook's Bill Cotton who passed up the game to concentrate on baseball.

Road Bond Use Is Being Studied For Nebraska

The Legislature's roads study committee chairman proposed financing highway costs by issuing bonds.

But two farm groups objected supporting the traditional pay-as-you-go financing, however.

The committee chairman, Sen. Jules Burbach, said he is optimistic his proposal will still encounter public support.

Gov. Frank Morrison was considering the possibility of a one-day special legislative session to place the issue on the November ballot.

Steel Price Hike's Effect On Buyer 'Inconsequential'

New York (AP) — Another steel price crisis boiled up last week.

It was reminiscent of two previous occasions in which the federal government and the steel industry tangled over price boosts.

Inland Steel Co., the seventh ranking American steel producer, initiated the increase o · to $3 a ton on sheet metal.

The move was followed by other producers, including U.S. Steel Co., the No. 1 producer, and Bethlehem Steel Corp., second ranking.

The public waited for the Johnson administration to drop the other shoe.

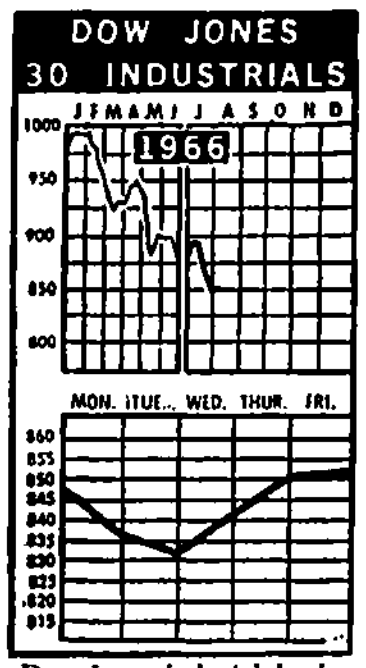
The government remained silent while the increase spread through the Big 8 producers. Then, on Thursday, the White House termed the price moves "irresponsible" and complained that producers acted without talking over the situation with the government beforehand.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, wired other steel companies after Inland's move to "urgently request that your company take no action prior to discussion with the government."

Later, after the increase spread, Ackley said: "In my view, the action of these companies can only be characterized as irresponsible. They were unwilling even to hear the government state the public interest in this matter."

In making its announcement of the price increase, Bethlehem said it would be "inconsequential" to the consumer. It called the move "a minor adjustment" which will "by no means offset cost increases since 1963, nor, in our opinion, will the serious problem of national inflation be affected."

Automobile production last week dwindled almost to nothing as General Motors and Chrysler completed 1966 model production. Output totaled an estimated 17,700 passenger cars, compared with 66,604 the previous week and 106,868 a year ago.



Dow Jones industrials rise 5.01 points in week.

Steel Boost Aids Stocks

New York (UPI)—The stock market averages scored their first gain in three weeks—spurred by a boost in flat-rolled steel products — but losers still outnumbered gainers in the list.

The inflationary implications of the steel price boost plus news of a big boost in consumer debt during June helped attract the buying interest so noticeably absent from the market in recent weeks.

Fed Steers, Heifers Steady to Lower

Omaha (UPI) — The Livestock Foundation of Omaha said fat cattle receipts in Omaha were about the same last week as compared with both the week earlier and the same week a year ago.

But the foundation, in its weekly report, said the distribution pattern was not as favorable as a week earlier.

Under the pressure of increased supplies on Monday, prices sagged but a measure of recovery on each of the succeeding sessions largely offset opening losses.

Fed steers and heifers sold mostly steady to 25 lower. The losses showed up primarily on plainer kinds of steers and on heifers. There was an exceptionally good showing of top quality steers at midweek and these kinds, especially those with weight, finished on the strong side of the steady mark. Steer top was 26.85; heifer top 25.25.

Butcher hogs were 50-75c higher with the week's top at 27.00; sows sold 75-1.00 higher and topped at 24.50.

An active slaughter lamb market was 75-1.00 higher for the week. Spring lambs sold to a top of 25.00; a few shorn springers sold to 23.75.

A sizable number of steer sales at 26.10-26.75, including many loads with weight; choice steers mostly 24.75-26.00; mixed good and choice 24.25-25.00.

Heavy steers included 1,346-1,430 pound offerings at 25.75-26.20 and 1,310's at 26.50. Holsteins sold at 21.75-23.50.

Numerous heifer sales at 24.60-25.15; choice heifers 23.75-24.50; in-between kinds 23.00-23.75.

Average price of slaughter steers last week at Omaha figured 25.09 compared to 25.10 the previous week and 25.76 a year ago.

Soya Gains Substantial

Chicago (UPI)—Soybeans were substantially higher; oats fractionally higher; corn mixed; wheat irregularly lower and rye lower last week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

August and September deliveries led the advance in soybeans.

Old crop September corn was strong. New crop months were easier.

Wheat prices were lower all along the line last week.

Rye and oats were featureless.

4 Council Contests on '67 Ballot

Mayor's Term Also Expires

By LEO SCHERER

Four present City Council positions will be on the ballot at the 1967 city elections.

Those whose terms expire are Mrs. Helen Boosalis, John Mason, Ervin Peterson and John Selleck, who was appointed to fill the term of the late D. L. Tyrrell.

Mayor Dean Petersen also is expected to seek another four-year term in 1967 and if anyone from the Council should oppose him it might be Mason, an aggressive lawyer serving his first Council term.

The mayor, City Hall sources feel, generally has done a good job and Mason, or anyone else, would have to work hard and come up with some solid issues to defeat him.

Around City Hall

Greener Pastures

The loss of two more experienced city officials for better paying jobs outside of Lincoln should be of much concern at City Hall.

Fire Chief Roscoe Benton and City Forester Don Gulnan are leaving and the well-liked pair will be missed within the city government family and elsewhere.

The City Council recently approved merit raises and higher pay classifications for many city employes but there is still serious turnover, especially in the police department and with some top officials.

Mayor Dean Petersen says soon he will give serious consideration to possible structural reorganizations which might decrease the number of people reporting directly to him.

Moving Expenses

If you want the park department to move picnic tables from one park to another for you there is going to be a $10 per hour charge.

City Park Supt. Don Smith said the charge is necessary to cover city expenses.

"I actually will try to discourage persons asking to move the tables," said Smith. "We would like to see large crowds use parks where there are large numbers of tables."

The advisory park and recreation board authorized the setting of rates to move picnic tables and then left details up to Smith.

Ho-Hum Dept.

Guess what the city is considering giving more study?

If you said the "Northeast Diagonal" you would be right again.

This proposed expressway during the past 15 years has been studied and restudied but still nobody knows exactly where the $11 million street is going.

It's hard to understand why the city's engineering and traffic engineering departments don't know by now where the roadway should go, whether elevated or at grade, and necessary right-of-way.

However, the Council has been told that another study, by some consulting firm, is necessary at this time.

There is little doubt that the proposed diagonal has been studied in the past years more than any other city project, regardless of department.

Will you be Traveling? If so, you will want to know of local news happenings while you are away. The carrier boy saves newspaper copies while you are away and delivers them in handy Vacation Pak bag upon your return at no added cost.

License for Home May Save Dollars

By HAROLD SIMMONS

There's a good chance Westview Nursing Home will be licensed in the near future and it could mean a savings of something like $20,000 a year for county taxpayers.

J. Earle Trabert, county welfare director, is working now to get the county-tax-supported home licensed and said the State Health Dept. has approved the step and other agencies are now investigating.

If the home is licensed, 60% of the cost of caring for patients would come from various federal programs. It now costs $150-$175 a month to carefor each patient.

With a licensed home and federal supporting funds, $20,000 could conceivably be pared off operating costs that totaled $43,475 last year and are estimated at $51,150 this year.

Courthouse Call

Budget Sessions

Some time during the next three weeks the county board will be holding meetings with various county officials to determine what changes, if any, it will make in the proposed $6 million budget.

Last year the board was presented a budget request totaling $5,027,785. After review, it approved a $5,140,586 budget—$112,801 more than requested.

Few want to hazard a guess on whether the board will increase or decrease budget requests this year even though it is almost $1 million higher than last year's budget.

Of the requests $2,340,947, or 38.5% would have to be raised through property taxes. Last year $1,877,431, or 36.5% of the budget, was raised through property taxes.

Juvenile Aid

The possibility of initiating a program to bring responsible adults in contact with juveniles who have been in some sort of trouble with the courts is being checked by Lancaster Juvenile Judge W. W. Nuernberger.

There are presently two programs in operation that bring university students and children together, but none that encompasses mature adults.

One purpose of such a program would be to provide male influence for children in a fatherless home and another would be to give children experience in the generally-accepted concept of family living they may not have at home.

Uni-Link, one program now in existence, pairs male university students with boys. And another program, Big Sister, links female students with girls.

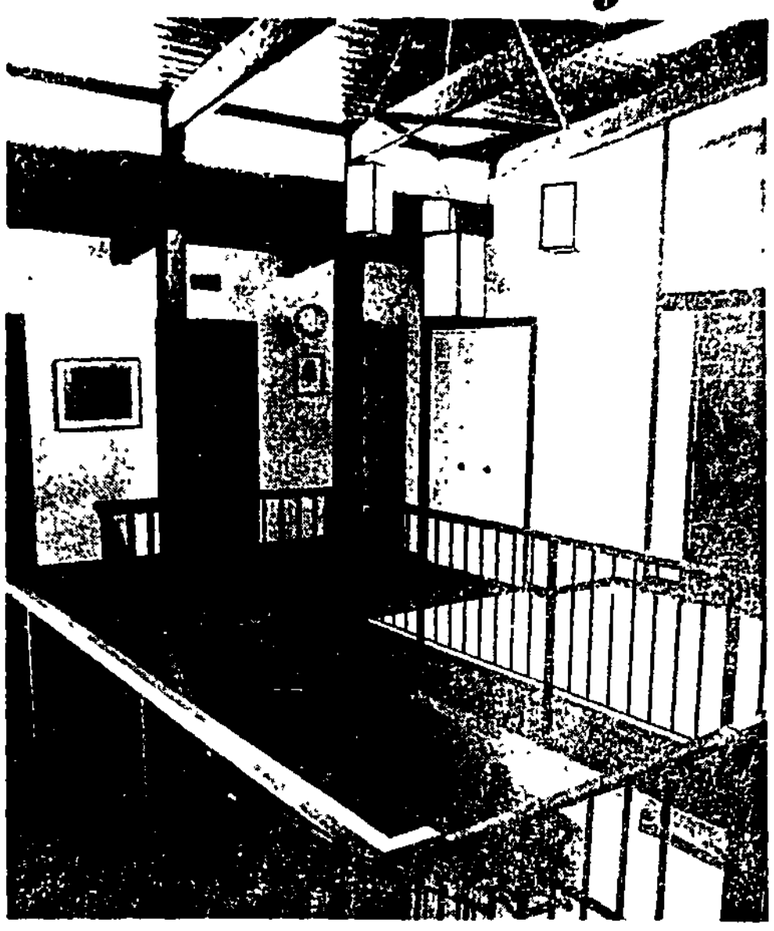
Striking Home of W. L. Broers Began as Senior Project

SUNDAY JOURNAL AND STAR STAFF PHOTOS BY BOB GORHAM

From the foyer of the Broer home one can see past the formal dining area, into the kitchen and breakfast area and out onto the patio. The free standing fireplace is at right.



Straight lines and geometric shapes distinguish the foyer.

By HELEN HAGGIE

Not many people live in a home they have completely built and decorated themselves. Even fewer people live in a home designed by a brother as his senior project when he was a student in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska.

But the Walter L. Broers do live in this kind of home. Mr. Broer's brother, Eric Hans Broer, is the architect. And Mr. and Mrs. Walter Broer have built and decorated the split-level home themselves.

As soon as the lower level was built and habitable, the Broers moved in. Now the upper level is complete, and the Broers are living in all of the house.

The open plan of the home is a joy to Mrs. Broer. "We like to entertain and have large groups. If there are doors or arches to go through, guests bump into each other. In this house, guests can circulate freely and there seems to be no confusion or feeling of crowding."

But let's visit this unusual home—which is located across the street from the entrance of Pioneers Golf Course.

Unusual Entrance

A circular drive leads to the home, which is entered by an unusual concrete and wood-railed bridge. Under the bridge will be plantings, when the landscaping is finished.

When one enters the huge central hall, one is immediately cognizant of the open plan of the house.

At the left of the foyer is the living area and at the right three bedrooms. But the foyer itself is worthy of more than a glance. The arched beamed ceiling, the narrow windows at both ends—windows between the walls and the ceiling—and the magnificent stairwell which leads to the lower level

Nothing's More Fun for Kids Than Attending Their Teacher's Wedding

By JAN BURNS

What's more exciting than the last day of school?

The day the teacher gets married, that's what. Especially if she invites the whole class to the wedding.

For Miss Karen Bush, as for many another teacher-bride, the children she taught last semester will be among the most important wedding guests.

"I'm so fond of the children," she explained. "I never could have asked for a better class. We got real buddy-buddy."

Student teacher of Mrs. Bill Pease's fourth-grade class at Meadow Lane School, Miss Bush sent each child a hand-written invitation to her Aug. 19 wedding to Eric Holberg.

As a Class

The children will meet at the school, where fiances and boyfriends of Miss Bush's bridesmaids and other friends of the bride and bridegroom will pick them up to take them to First Presbyterian Church for the wedding.

"I think they're all thrilled that she'd think to ask them," observed Mrs. C. M. Dale, mother of one of Miss Bush's pupils and a room mother for the class.

One girl is expected to come from Omaha especially for the ceremony.

And what do the children themselves think about it? Answering questions in emphatic "yesses" and "yeahs," they proclaimed themselves highly excited and enthusiastic.

"I'm glad she's getting married," announced Ken Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Adams.

For a while, Kenny was afraid he wouldn't get to the wedding.

Fear Diminishes

"I thought we were going to the motorcycle races the 19th but we're not. It's the 6th," he said. "I'd rather go to the wedding."

Miss Bush's pupils all will sit together at the wedding and "Well, we'll probably be good," said Mitch Reta, son of the John Retas.

It will be the first time the whole class has been together since school ended, added Barbara Betts, who's planning to wear "my Easter outfit" for the event.

Like the others, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Betts is very glad Miss Bush asked the class to the wedding.

Though several of the children have attended other weddings, they expect this one to be special fun—"because she's my teacher!" explained the Dales' son David.

Little Chiefs Booster

David and some other ballplayers among the pupils have really kept Miss Bush in touch with her class through the summer.

"I've gone to I don't know how many Little Chiefs games!" she exclaimed, and David added that it's fun to have the teacher there cheering for the team.

He and Mitch Reta conceded they "sort of" minded having to get all dressed up for the wedding but quickly added it'll be well worth the effort.

As David put it: "You don't get to go to your teacher's wedding that much!"

Miss Bush watches David Dale at bat.

Dr. and Mrs. Dale Allen were honored at a farewell party Saturday night at East Hills. The Allens leave for Dallas on Aug. 21. Host couples at the event were Messrs. and Mmes. W. B. Collingsworth, Calvin Krueger, Bob Rentfro and Roland Wright. Among those at the party are (from left) Mrs. W. B. Collingsworth, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Allen.

Mrs. Daniel Frizane
(Miss Ginger Zuercher)
of Worth, Ill.

Wisconsin Trip Is Set

Miss Ginger Ann Zuercher and Daniel Evans Frizane of Chicago were wed Saturday in an 8 p.m. ceremony at the Central Church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. LeRoy Frizane of Chicago and Donald A. Zuercher.

A bateau neckline and long tapered sleeves accented the bride's sheath gown of silk organza eyelet which swept to a cathedral length Watteau train.

A tiny pillbox covered with organza roses edged with pearls held the bride's veil. She carried a white Bible with white stephanotis and yellow baby roses.

Miss Connie Jean Zuercher was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Alice Lechlitner of Elkhart, Ind., and Peggy Jane Zuercher.

Paul Frizane of Chicago was best man. Groomsmen were Ken Frizane of Elmwood Park, Ill., and Tom Zuercher. Seating the guests were Larry Spader of Waverly and Don Wilcox and Charles Frame, both of Chicago.

After a trip to Wisconsin, the Frizanes will live at 7121 West 110th St. in Worth, Ill.

Benches Say Vows

Miss Karen Kapplemann and George Bench were united in marriage at a 6:30 p.m. Saturday ceremony at the home of the Rev. C. O. Anderson.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. Eugene Bench of Greenwood and Louie Kapplemann.

The bride wore a street-length dress of pink chiffon over taffeta and a white carnation corsage.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. William Bench of Murdock.

After a wedding trip to California, the couple will live at 1448 No 25th.

Pickled Franks Fixed on Spot

Pickled franks in buns are heated in sauce for easy picnic preparation on the spot.

Slice 1 small onion and saute it in 1 tablespoon of salad oil until lightly browned. Drain and slice 1 (12-ounce) can of frankfurters and add them to skillet.

Add ½ cup each of sliced sweet gherkins and bottled barbecue sauce, and 1 tablespoon of sweet pickle liquid. Cover and heat well. Serve on 8 hamburger buns, split and toasted.

Broer Home—A Delight

are unique features of this room.

Black metal and wood railings outline the stairwell, which has steps down on both sides—steps that join at the center for the last half of the descent.

A handsome light fixture hangs above the well. "Eric designed and made that, too," Mrs. Broer beams. "He gave it to us for Christmas."

The formal living room and dining room on the upper level are separated by a free-standing fireplace with elevated hearth. Light stone has been used for the fireplace and it is decorated with a large metal initial and sconce.

Mrs. Broer has used shades of blue and green in the two formal areas—and her furniture is Spanish Mediterranean. In the living room an enormous curved davenport is in front of enormous windows, from which there is a lovely view.

Mrs. Broer explains that her husband has done the building and she has done the decorating. "It has been fun to do things bit by bit," she smiles.

From the dining room the visitor sees the beautifully modern kitchen and breakfast area — with its contrasting colors of pinks, rose and white. Also, from the dining room, the guest may see through the floor-to-ceiling glass doors to one of the two patios. (The other patio is on the north, and doors from the foyer are its entrance.)

The Broers have two children, Kim Kathy, who celebrated her fourth birthday on Tuesday, and Curt, 2 months.

Kim Kathy's room is typically little girl. A pink canopied bed is the focal point —and her doll collection and doll house make the room her very own.

Curt's nursery is done in blue for a boy. And the master bedroom is done in shades of blue and grey. "You can see that I'm partial to blues," Mrs. Broer says.

Built-in storage space is an important part of the Broer home.

The lower level of the home is a delight. The family room, complete with fireplace, is next to a room which is to be finished into a dancing area. Mr. Broer's den is on this floor, as are two bedrooms. A walkout garage is attached at this level.

Indeed, the Broer home, built by Mr. Broer and decorated by Mrs. Broer, is an enchanting place, because of its location, its design, its decor and its livability.

Mrs. David Cosier
(Miss Jane Harris)

Saturday Ceremony

Miss Jane Elaine Harris and David Lee Cosier exchanged wedding vows in a 7:30 p.m. Saturday ceremony at Frieden's Lutheran Church. The bride was given in marriage by her brother Roger Harris.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Frickle. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs George F. Cosier.

The bride's gown was fashioned of lace. A fitted bodice, enhanced by pearls and iridescents, was atop a bouffant skirt which swept to a cotillion-length train.

A queen's crown of pearls and crystals held her veil. She carried a cascade of baby blue roses.

Miss Karen Chapman was maid of honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Susan Pederson and Barbara Cosier.

Jerry Hockemeier was best man. Serving as ushers were Jerry McAdams and Terry Cosier.

The couple will live at 943 So. 9th.

Iron-on Mending Patches Striking

A striking effect is created by utilizing black and white iron-on mending fabric cut into decorative paisley motifs and used in a border design on a dress, lounging outfit and other accessories.

Easy as cutting out paper dolls, the motif is traced onto iron-on mending fabric and then cut out and ironed onto the garment. The creatively inclined can design their own motifs.

Summer Skin Care

It is easy to have a smooth lovely complexion, despite the skin-coarsening effect of summer. The pores open much wider in the heat so it's essential that they have free movement to open and close without being clogged. Protect from cosmetic pigments, dust, and powder by smoothing on your oil of Olay. This will also protect the complexion from harsh sun rays and will give the skin a cool, milky bloom even on the hottest days. Your druggist can supply you with oil of Olay for your personal needs.

DEAR DIARY

Everyone has a story to tell about traveling during the airlines strike. We think the one told by Miss Sheila Henrion, who came from New York to spend a two-week vacation in Lincoln, proves that often a dog is a man's (or woman's) best friend.

Miss Henrion couldn't come direct from Chicago to Nebraska on one airline (still flying) because it doesn't carry animals. So the route brought her here via St. Louis and Kansas City. She had no confirmed connections out of Chicago and was on standby. But her dog DID have a clear passage.

When the situation was explained to an airline official, a bit of ticket shuffling got the former Nebraskan onto the flight.

Days Off

A grandfather thinks youngsters "catch on fast."

He had his three-year-old grandson with him at his store. While there, grandson informed grandfather:

"I'm going to stay with you today because this is my day off."

If It's Imported, It's Good!

It's true that the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence.

One Lincolnite, just returned from a trip through the Scandinavian countries told this story:

"My wife and I were in a store looking for some Scandinavian foods, which we thought delicious.

"In the same market, the Scandinavians were all lined up purchasing American food products."

A Real Clean-up!

The garage was being cleaned, renovated and painted.

Stacks of screens and storm windows, (saved after the combinations windows had been installed) snow fence and stakes, (taken down after the puppy had grown up and learned to stay in his own yard) and odd pieces of wood (left over from the children's building project) were all piled high for the hauler to take away.

Suddenly, as the things were being carted off, the lady of the house saw the new power mower's grass catcher being loaded onto the truck.

By the time she had gone downstairs and out the back door, it took nearly a complete unloading job to recover the one bit of equipment NOT meant to be discarded.

World of Women

Miss Ledwith leafs through a statute book.

Law Comes Naturally

By JAN SACK

It just comes naturally — her interest in law.

Miss Lucile Ledwith has been associated with the State Supreme Court for nearly 20 years. At the present time she's law clerk and secretary for Supreme Court Judge Harry Spencer. Prior to that she worked for six years in the attorney general's office.

Her family background is that of the legal profession. Her father, the late John J. Ledwith, was a professor at the University of Nebraska College of Law for 35 years.

"He was graduated from NU in 1903 and lectured to a class the day he died in September, 1938," Miss Ledwith recalled. Her father started his law study with the late Dr. Roscoe Pound of the University law school who later became dean of the Harvard Law College. Miss Ledwith's brother, Charles, is an attorney in Omaha.

The Ledwith family is no stranger to Lincoln. Her father and mother were both born here. Her mother was the former Albina Hoppe.

Almost as strong as her interest in law is her interest in the American Association of University Women (AAUW).

During her term as president of the state division, Miss Ledwith had a unique opportunity as a result of an association with the Pound family.

This prominent Lincoln family had always been interested in higher education, financially aiding the graduate student with maturity and scholastic capability.

When Olivia Pound died she left $10,000 to the AAUW for a fellowship to honor her sister, the late Dr. Louise Pound who had been a professor of English at the University.

"The 24 AAUW branches in Nebraska decided to establish the Nebraska Louise Pound International Fellowship Fund in September, 1961," Miss Ledwith said. "From that time until now this fund has grown to about $30,000. Nebraska supports this as a special project."

In addition to being state president of AAUW, Miss Ledwith was president of the Lincoln branch and served on the national legislative program for six years. During that time she traveled in Wyoming, Colorado and Kansas helping with workshops.

Another activity includes being secretary of the Governor's Commisison on the Status of Women. She explained that each state has such a commission as a result of the national commission established by the late President John F. Kennedy, and which was headed by the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Her interest in government and in particular the Legislature stems from the time she worked in the attorney general's office. The legislative system was being changed from bicameral to unicameral.

During that time she helped set up the State Assistance Program. "I have followed the Legislature ever since," she said.

All is not law and AAUW for Miss Ledwith, though. She's a kind of homebody and enjoys cooking and sewing. In fact, she's an expert at needlework and makes gifts for her friends.

MALE MODES

Dream-Like Predictions for a Far-Off Future Call on Spray Can

Please do not rush to your nearest men's store to seek some of the new items that are being predicted for the future—for it's a far-off future at best. But it is interesting to examine the thinking of today's designer-scientists.

First, just to insure the continued reading-interest of you men, we'll mention the girls—and the prediction that today's shrinking skirts will completely disappear, and will be replaced by long tights sprayed out of a can. (Huh!!!) Want more? Both sexes—they say—will wear belts which will be thermostatic devices for heating or cooling.

A short blast of an electronic whistle will change the color of your outfit — like from blue to brown. Just dreams, you say? But the dreamers are pretty serious about the whole thing!

Trends: According to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, bush jackets, so popular in beach and sportswear, will be even bigger this fall and winter in lined models. Men like the abundance of pockets . . . For teen-agers, vests will be the biggest favorites for the coming season. They'll be abundantly available in single and double-breasted models, and in colors and patterns to match or contrast with suits.

Dress Tips: The shape and style of a shirt collar governs the type of the tie knot to be worn. A spread collar calls for a Windsor or a half-Windsor knot, depending on the tie-space permitted by the spread of the collar. A tab, pin or button-down collar is best with a conventional (four-in-hand) knot.

Fashion Quotes: Coco Chanel, "I love luxury. And luxury lies not in richness, but in the absence of vulgarity. Vulgarity is the ugliest word in our language." . . . Paris designer Emmanuelle Khanh, now designing men's wear, "The look must be virile—masculine. Cardin is too feminine. And Mod is too theatrical, too peacock."

Care of Clothes: It is estimated that many men are wearing the incorrect size and shape in shoes, due to resistance to advice from salesmen. This can harm one's feet, and shorten the life of the shoes . . . Clothes get more mussed in humid weather. Give your suit a vigorous shake when you take it off, before putting it on a hanger, to readjust fibers and remove wrinkles.

Suggestion: A fashion-conscious gent, who doesn't like to have his clothes bulge with full pockets, believes that men would like carrying their keys, pill-box, lighter, etc., on a charm bracelet. (Don't forget—that wristwatches were scoffed at in the old days!)

Strange Twist: Sonny Bono (of the Sonny & Cher duo) wears the kookist-looking clothes on and off stage—but he buys thousands of dollars worth of the tastiest, smartest shirts, sport shirts and ties to send as gifts to friends.

Superstition: If a man kisses the first person he meets after seeing the new moon, he will get a new suit of clothes. (Would you believe—meeting Jayne Mansfield and getting a new suit too!)

Acclaim: A total of 45 of 49 foreign beauties in the Miss Universe contest in Miami Beach—from that number of countries—agreed that U.S. men were the best-dressed in the world.

Explanation: Seams on clothing are liable to pucker on very hot days. It is caused by the humidity, and they'll smooth out quickly with a temperature change.

Advice from a Chiropodist: "You can't do a good job if your mind is on your feet. Good, properly-fitted shoes are actually an economy."

Pat-Luci Marriage

There's Something New, Something Old in Wedding

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

Washington (AP) — A blend of age-old rites and innovations attuned to the modern world marked the wedding of Luci Baines Johnson and Patrick J. Nugent.

But the old still predominated — for example the heart-tugging scene in which bridegroom and bride joined their right hands and vowed:

". . . To have and to hold, from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, until death do us part."

But amid the pageantry bequeathed down the centuries, two new departures are noteworthy:

Most of the nuptial mass, as well as the marriage rite itself, was in English. Formerly the mass was celebrated in Latin. There also was more participation, more singing of hymns, by the congregation.

Until recent times, the marriage rite came first, the mass next, authorities of the Washington Archdiocese said. Now the marriage is performed within the mass, immediately after the reading from the Gospel.

Entrance Hymn

The wedding mass began with preliminary prayers, the confiteor or act of contrition for sins, and an entrance hymn:

"May the God of Israel join you together; and may He be with you, who was merciful to two only children: and now, O Lord, make them bless you more fully . . ."

The priest then petitioned for God's abiding blessing upon bridegroom and bride and read from the Epistle of Paul the Apostle of the Ephesians:

". . .'A man shall leave his father and mother, and shall cling to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.' This is a great foreshadowing: I mean to say it refers to Christ and the Church.

Silent meditation then preceded a reading from the Gospel according to Matthew (19:3-6) which concludes:

". . . Man must not separate what God has joined together."

At this point the actual marriage rite began and the priest addressed a homily, or discourse, to the couple.

Then the marriage bond was sealed.

After vowing to cleave to each other unto death, the couple then heard the priest confirm the bond:

"By the authority of the church, I ratify and bless the bond of marriage you have contracted. In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

Lutherans to Assemble

Seward—Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod ministers and members from southern Nebraska and Wyoming will meet here Monday through Thursday.

The 29th annual convention of the denomination's Southern Nebraska District will be at Concordia College here. An estimated 350 delegates will represent 52,000 Lutherans.

Dr. Oliver R. Harms of St. Louis, president of the synod, will discuss church activities in church relations, education, world missions, stewardship and world relief.

Prof. Harry Huth of Concordia Seminary in Springfield, Ill., will speak on "The Place of the Lutheran Confessions in the Life of the Church Today."

The bride's silk organza over taffeta gown was styled on Empire lines. Lace traced with pearls and sequins adorned the bodice and sleeves. The A-line skirt and chapel train repeated the lace motif.

An open crown of gown-matching fabric with jeweled lace and rolled roses caught her veil. She carried a bouquet of roses.

Miss Sandra Heybrock of Fremont was maid of honor. The Misses JaNahn Maurer of Lincoln and Phyllis Maurer of Humphrey were bridesmaids.

Gene Meyer of Hooper was best man. Groomsmen were Ward and Harlan Meyer, both of Hooper.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Architect Designs Home Facilities for Women's Convenience

Starkness has been avoided by window treatment in this three-bedroom ranch with completely modern lines.

By Associated Press

There isn't much doubt that architect Herman H. York had the woman of the house in mind when he designed this contemporary ranch.

With no sacrifice of living comfort for Dad and the children, York has gone all out to provide generously for the needs of Mom, who spends most of her time at home. There is a decided emphasis on the kitchen and its satellite areas.

The most obvious example of this is the large laundry room near the kitchen, with ample space not only for the washing and drying appliances, but also for ironing and sewing.

Large Area

And look at the kitchen-dinette, more than 21 feet long, with an amazingly large amount of cabinet space, a built-in oven, burner top and every modern convenience, plus an old-fashioned floor-to-ceiling pantry. The dinette portion has a radio-appliance center so that Mom can listen to music as she cooks and serves or can just sit and relax when the mood strikes her.

Remember that all this space is in addition to the regular formal dining room, directly adjacent.

Because most family outdoor living is done at the rear of the house (for privacy), this layout features both the living room and the family room toward the rear. The fireplace is in the family room, which connects directly with the terrace, readily accessible to the kitchen through a rear door.

A barbecue can be built into the main chimney at the back of the terrace area. Complete control of the terrace is possible from both the kitchen and family room, with large glass areas overlooking this vital sector.

The bedroom wing at the right side of the house has three rooms, the largest of which has a private bath and a walk-in closet 36 square feet in size. The hall bath is of the split variety designed to provide dual use, with two lavatories and a vanity. Special towel space within the bathroom, in addition to a linen closet in the hall, makes for generous linen storage. The large or owners' bedroom has double doors, adding a touch of elegance.

The double-door design also is used at the front entrance of the house. The doors, with glazed contemporary panels, open into a large foyer. Incidentally, a door at the side of the garage leads to the laundry room and a lavatory, so that anyone with muddy feet and soiled hands can clean up before going into the house.

While the basic design shows the garage opening at the front, the plans include an alternate entrance from the side should the size of the plot permit. Either way, there is ample storage space in the garage for power equipment, bicycles, etc.

The cellar stair is located to give direct access from the garage and laundry room. But if the house should be built either on a slab or over a crawl space, the area occupied by the stair could be utilized by a furnace and or air conditioning unit.

Design G-48 blends vertical wood walls with stone for a harmonious exterior. While contemporary in style, such things as a cupola, shutters, flower boxes and a covered entrance add a feeling of warmth and livability.

Lawn Seeding Steps Outlined

If you plan to seed a new lawn this fall, now is the time to get started.

If the area to be seeded is covered by high weeds, mow or sickle as close to the ground as possible now—today, if practicable.

On Wednesday or Thursday rake off the weeds. A couple of warm days will wilt the weeds to the point where they will be easier to handle.

If you do not have your own plowing equipment, reserve a roto-tiller at one of the equipment renting companies for next Saturday. By the following weekend everyone who has any seeding to do will be looking for roto-tillers and they will be hard to find.

Start working as early as you can next Saturday. If you should experience operating or mechanical difficulties in the early part of the day, you can likely get them corrected and still get the job done. If you wait until late afternoon and then run into trouble, you may lose a whole week before you can get back to the job.

On Aug. 20 rake the newly plowed ground and apply an organic fertilizer. Inorganics can burn new grass and, since organics take a longer time to be converted to plant food, it is better if they are applied before the seed. Also water the area. With the dryness this year, moisture in the ground is like money in the bank.

On Aug. 27 apply the seed, roll and mulch. Buy the best seed available. When you consider your time and equipment costs, seed is a minor item. Oat straw has been the most popular mulch for years. However, it is hard to find at present because few farmers are growing it. Try to locate a source right away.

Sprinkle the area three or four times a day when the seeding has been completed. If permanent lawn seeds start to germinate and then dry out, they die.

Why has this lawn seeding schedule been recommended?

First, every year many lawns do not get seeded by Sept. 15 (the deadline) simply because the homeowner does not get started soon enough.

Moreover, if it should rain on one or more of these weekends, you would still have a margin of safety.

Most important, by doing a phase or two of the seeding operation each weekend, you will not tire yourself. As you will find, seeding an entire lawn is not child's play.

Inlaid Furniture Liked in Spain

Spanish furniture is usually walnut, often inlaid. Oak is frequently combined with wrought iron in stretchers and bases. Dark finishes are favored. One piece of furniture that is popular is the chest, often covered with leather or velvet.

Another is the cabinet, of which the upper section is an ornately painted or lacquered group of drawers and the lower part either a table or cupboard. Brightly covered tapestries and more somber paintings decorate the walls.

Illumination is provided by chandeliers of hoops hung from the ceiling. Lovely crystal chandeliers, wrought iron and bright pottery objects are freely used.

Spanish decorations blend so well with other motifs that home owners can use as much or as little as they please.

Having trouble keeping your closets organized and tidy? Many homemakers put up with closet chaos because they feel that closet rejuvenation is an expensive project.

But, if one member of the family has talent and some time to spend, a "built-in" look can be achieved with little expenditure.

Division of milady's closet into compartments can be done by installing shelves and uprights. And lining the closet with cedar helps in moth control.

For instance, on one side of the closet a compartment might very well have two hanger bars. Suit coats, jackets and skirts can easily hang in half the space of the full-length closet.

The center section might be a series of shelves on which to keep shoes tidily. There may even be space on the shelves for sweaters, folded properly.

The other side should have a hanger bar for full length dresses and coats. Installation of an accordion door also improves the appearance of the bedroom.

A little time spent in planning, a little time spent in carrying out those plans, a small outlay for the necessary equipment—and presto, the whole closet picture is changed. It becomes a "built-in!"

Garden Gossip

Webworms Hurt Lawn

By EMERY W. NELSON
County Extension Agent

Lawns which contain irregular brown spots may be infested with sod webworms. The first sign of damage caused by this insect are spots in the lawn which appear to be drying and thinning out. At a distance, sod webworms damage and drouth or disease damage may look alike.

Heavy infestations of sod webworms may severely damage or destroy the lawn. At the first indication that something is wrong with the lawn, an inspection should be made to determine the cause. Sod webworm damage is not difficult to detect.

First break apart some of the drying sod and look for this brownish-gray worm about three-forths inch long. If you find three or four in a 6-inch square section, apply an insecticide.

Also look carefully at the surface of the lawn to see if grass is being eaten off at the surface of the ground. This is a good indication of the presence of this insect.

Several insecticides can be used to control sod webworm. Diazinon, DDT, Sevin and Aldrin all give satisfactory results. Mow the lawn, then water thoroughly before making the insecticide application. Applications should be made in the late evening as sod webworms feed at night.

Autograph Buffs Cut a Fine Line

Trini Lopez, filming his starring role in MGM's "The Dirty Dozen" in London, found that where there's a will, there's a way—especially if you're an avid British autograph hunter.

Seems that when Trini mailed 20 postcards to the family home in Dallas, Tex., all arrived safely enough, but with his signature neatly cut out of the card.

"The family knew they were from me," says the actor-singer, "because this kind of thing has happened to my postcards before."

But it's not only postcards. Once Trini had a check returned from a Los Angeles bank because the bank teller had cut the signature off the bottom.

Frustrated and Harassed, That's Connery

MOVIES

Currently at the Varsity is the GI funny, "What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?" starring James Coburn, Dick Shawn, Sergio Fantoni, Giovanna Ralli and Aldo Ray.

Connery and Woodward . . . "A Fine Madness."

Next at the Varsity is "A Fine Madness" with that James Bond idol, Sean Connery.

Connery plays a frustrated poet suffering from "writer's block," unemployment and back alimony harrassment. The relationship takes a personal turn, his top secret formula disappears and heroine Day become No. 1 suspect Adult, mature youth and youth audience.

Alfred Hitchcock will be next at the Stuart with another thriller, "Torn Curtain," starring Paul Newman and Julie Andrews.

The tongue-in-cheek opens with an American nuclear physicist (Newman) ostensibly defecting to East Berlin. He really is a counter spy for us, but his lovely assistant and fiancee (Julie) doesn't know his purpose and believes him a traitor until he lets her in on this secret in time for the two of them to escape back to the West.

Newman ..... has a secret.

The show is funny and agonizing and Hitchcock is back with a bang in his 50th film. No audience recommendation available.

Andrews .....has a fiancee.

Our Little Town

TYCOONS

By GERTRUDE SKINNER
Ruskin

Captains of industry along Nebraska Highway 136 better look to their laurels for there are three young lieutenants along that route who just might replace them any day now.

In July three tiny tycoons parlayed a railroad crossing near Nora, a pitcher of cold "lemun-aid" and a big umbrella into a thriving business. Wouldn't you agree that any merchant showing 39 cents profit had a thriving business?

For those of you who are not familiar with state driving laws, all gasoline trucks must come to a complete stop before crossing a railroad. So right next to the railroad track is where our enterprising young friends went into business.

Truckers, after piloting their behemoths of the road for a hundred miles without break (Beatrice to Red Cloud — no diners), would pull up to the stop sign, note the attractive youngsters calling their wares and would crawl from their cabs to spend a few moments and a few pennies with our future industrial giants.

Although I'm sure the ice cold lemonade was a welcome bit of refreshment I feel it safe to venture that the box-car pilots were far more interested in the merchants than their wares.

Cute as bugs, radiating good will and know-how these children had defied the dreadful heat to provide a service that was needed badly.

Move over and make room at the conference table, you captains of industry, you'll have three new members in about 15 years for by then they will have cornered the "lemun-aid" market.

The Echo Is Cheap Defense

By RICHARD SHENCKEN
And RICHARD L. FREY

Practically every modern pair uses the conventional trump echo to show three small trumps. This "cost-nothing" signal can help to wreck more contracts than most other defense conventions.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	2♣	2♡	Pass
3 N.T.	Pass	4♡	All Pass

Opening lead: Spade queen

The trump echo is very simple: if a defender echoes in the trump suit, he shows at least three trumps, plus a desire to ruff. The advantage is that partner can deduce that a ruffing defense is most likely to pay dividends, since if the echoer wanted to play some other kind of defense he would not have bothered to echo.

West might have had difficulty finding the most troublesome defense without East's trump echo to guide him. When declarer won the spade opening in dummy and let a heart ride to West's queen, West noted that East had played the trump seven.

This was clearly the beginning of an echo, for it was unlikely South had bid no trump with a six-card heart suit. As well as announcing three trumps, the echo indicated that East hoped for a ruff—and the bidding made it obvious that the only suit East could be short of was clubs. Instead of shifting to a diamond, therefore — Which would have been normal without the trump echo—West led a small club.

Switching now to declarer's seat, how would you take it from here?

Without the club shift, declarer has no trouble, but now he must tread carefully. South took the club king and led a heart to West's ace. West returned the club queen—which spelled curtains, for East ruffed away dummy's ace and South still had a losing club in each hand.

Declarer could have forestalled this had he won the first club lead in dummy. A second-round club ruff was certainly the main danger to the contract, and it was obvious on West's overcall that East was short of clubs. With the first club lead won in dummy, East will ruff out one of South's losing clubs.

Test Wins Prize

It's a long way from Wagga Wagga to Lincoln.

But thanks in part to the Wagga Wagga Camera Club of New South Wales, Australia, Mrs. Harold (Patrice) Hughes of 1514 So. 27th is $35 richer.

Mrs. Hughes is the winner of the $35 first prize in the color category, people and activities division, of The Sunday Journal and Star Photo Contest.

Her picture, titled simply "Silhouette on the Beach," was taken while she and her husband were living in Australia, where they taught for two years.

Mrs. Hughes

They became interested in photography chiefly through the Camera Club in Wagga Wagga, where they lived, Mrs. Hughes said.

The winning picture is a silhouette of Mr. Hughes running across a beach near Port Campbell, on the southwest coast of Victoria.

"I tried about three shots like this one," Mrs. Hughes said. "It was an experiment."

It was a successful experiment for the former University of Nebraska student. The picture was made with a Petri camera using Kodachrome II film.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes will be graduate students at the University fall.

Color competition this year was particularly keen. The number of entries was a record high. Color prints and slides were entered by photographers who had taken pictures virtually all around the world.

Mrs. Hughes' picture nosed out photographs by Gwen Cattle of Seward and Gerhard J. Lehmann of 434 No. 26th.

Other top entries in this division were submitted by Michael Hayman of 7921 Sycamore; Harold Hughes of 1514 So. 27th; George Jacobs of 4025 E; Mike Cowan of 2142 Park; John Eckersley of 2500 B; Mrs. C. W. Rickel of 1620 So. 21st; Dorothy Cattle of Seward and Mrs. Irvin Parmenter of 1719 So. 43rd.

The final two contest winners will be announced in coming issues of The Sunday Journal and Star.

1st in ALL-VHF markets

How's that for dominance? A share-of-audience for Total Day, Prime Time, and Early Evening unmatched by any station on any network in all-VHF three-station markets in the nation! That's what ARB found out in March 1966.

NOW EVEN MORE DOMINANT WITH NEBRASKA'S TALLEST TOWER

Beautification Is Stamp Theme

The Beautification of America commemorative 5-cent postage stamp will be issued with first day ceremonies Oct. 5 in Washington, D.C.

Depicted against a green background on the three color stamp is the Jefferson Memorial, framed by a bough of Washington's celebrated pink and white cherry blossoms. Lettering is black.

At the bottom of the horizontal stamp is "Plant for a more beautiful America," words intended to encourage participation in President Johnson's natural beauty campaign.

The stamp was designed by Gyo Fujikawa, a New York City free lance artist. Miss Fujikawa, who is of Japanese parentage, designed the United States-Japan commemorative stamp in 1960, in which Japanese cherry blossoms also appeared, in this case before the Washington Monument.

The Jefferson Memorial, which appears on the Beautification of America stamp, is a port of call for hundreds of thousands of visitors to Washington.

First day cancellations may be ordered from the Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Serviceman's Issue

The 5-cent postage stamp honoring American servicemen and marking the 25th anniversary of the Savings Bond program will be first issued Oct. 26 at Sioux City, Ia. This is the stamp that resulted from an intense campaign of petitions started by students at a Sioux City junior high school.

The stamp was designed by Stevan Dohanos, an artist living in Westport, Conn., and member of the postmaster general's Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee.

Dohanos based his design on a photograph of the flag with the Statue of Liberty towering in the background.

First day cancellations may be ordered from Postmaster, Sioux City, Iowa 51101.

Bigger Order

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien said heavy advance demand for the Poland's Millennium commemorative postage stamp has prompted him to order a second printing of ten million additional stamps.

The 5-cent stamp went on sale July 30. The initial print order was for 115 million stamps.

This stamp commemorates the most significant event in Polish history — the adoption of Christianity and the subsequent entry of Poland into the mainstream of western civilization. The stamp is also a tribute to friendly relations between the Polish and American people.

First day cover requests for the stamp and orders for mint stamps both were at a much higher level than was anticipated by the Post Office Dept.

Dakotan Joins NEBRASKAland

South Dakotan, Martin Lane, has become the first outstater to join NEBRASKAlander ranks.

Martin Lane Truck Towne, at Beresford, S. D., is the first out-state business to become a member of the NEBRASKAlander program.

Homestead's Gain Near 20%

Beatrice — Nearly 45,000 visitors will tour Homestead National Monument this year, park personnel predict. This is an increase of 2,000 over the previous 1962 high.

Since 1960 travel to the Monument, four miles west of here, has increased 95%, park superintendent John F. Rohn Jr. said, and "travel for the first six months of 1966 is nearly 20% ahead of the same period in 1965."

"We can anticipate 72,000 visitors in 1970, about a 16% increase per year," Rohn forecasts.

Slide Program

Harold Finke will show slides and colored prints on coverage of Koshare Dancers at the Lincoln Camera Club meeting Aug. 16. Finke travels with the Eagle Scouts from LaJunta, Colo. on a two weeks tour each summer. The meeting will be at 7:30 a.m. at Bennett Martin Library.

What the Press Releases Say

White Knight Is Ex-Lincolnite

By GINNY FISHER

Ever noticed that gallant White Knight who gallops along, using his lance to pow! turn all dirt to clean.

Well, inside that blazing white helmet is the head of a former Nebraskan, Roger Pitney. The young, 22-year-old bachelor is a Lincoln High School graduate and now lives in Universal City, Calif. Pitney, discovered by James Drury, star of NBC's "Virginian," is a stuntman on that series. He has also appeared in movies, such as "Bearded Warriors" and "Unborn," manages a new rock group "The Barracudas" and is master of ceremonies for Caravan of Stars. A possible 1967 TV series, "Lash Larue" just may have Pitney in the starring role.

Another ex-Nebraskan, Coleen Gray, is currently starring in "Days of Our Lives," a daytime serial on NBC. Miss Gray, born in Staplehurst, was featured in such movies as "State Fair," "Kiss of Death," "Kansas City Confidential" and "Arrow in the Dust." This is her first continuing TV role.

Early Start

Premiere week for all three networks this fall is Sept. 12-18.

However, ABC just announced plans to show "advance premieres" one week early. So, now viewers who are watering at the eyes to see the bright, shiny, new products, can watch: "Rounders," Pruitts of Southampton," "Love on a Rooftop" on Tuesday, Sept. 6.; "The Monroes," "Man Who Never Was" on Wednesday, Sept. 7.; "Tammy Grimes Show," "That Girl" and "Hawk" on Thursday, Sept. 8.; "Green Hornet, "Time Tunnel," "Milton Berle Show" on Friday, Sept. 9.; and "Shane" on Saturday, Sept. 10. What if NBC tries to best ABC and then CBS tries to beat them all? That might just about bring us down to new shows by next week.

Politics is confusing business. Robert Taylor will be new host of syndicated TV series "Death Valley Days" this fall, replacing Ronald Reagan who has his eye on another job as host — of California, that is.

Comment of the month: "We don't want to knock 'Bonanza' off. We just want to make them move over a little," from Garry Moore, who returns to TV this fall on CBS and is placed in the precarious time - slot opposite the most popular and largest-audience-getting show on the air.

Better English

TV, which in some cases has been fracturing English for years, now lends a helping hand to College Freshmen taking required English courses this fall. "Previews of Freshman English," a four-week series which samples topics and problems, premieres on KUON-KLNE-TV at 5 p.m. Monday.

Change of headgear is in order . . . Pitney minus helmet.

Competitors

Several weeks ago NBC tapped comedian Joey Bishop to substitute host on "Johnny Carson Show" while the star-host was on vacation. Bishop performed superbly, which not only impressed NBC, but also ABC, who promptly signed him to emcee a late evening similar - type series which will rival Carson's beginning next April.

Nothing like giving the competition a free trial run on your network — with pay.

Apropo the Carson show: Skitch Henderson has announced he will leave the late-evening series when his NBC contract expires Sept. 30. "It's been great fun but I have been hoping for a long time to spread my wings," stated Henderson, who recently purchased an interest in a TV station, and now plans to increase his concert dates, his recording schedule and his musical scoring.

Gordon v. Ball

To those over-zealous fans who snarl, growl and, even occasionally, lash out with a sharp shoe, upon meeting him in the supermarket or downtown Gale Gordon, who portrays the nasty, penurious banker on CBS's "Lucy Ball Show" explains: "I am often asked why I am so mean to Lucy. The answer, of course, is that the writers create the situation to begin with. But, it also gives me great satisfaction to rant and rave and see Lucy's eyes get bigger and bigger — and I get louder and louder. I know she is enjoying it as much as I am."

Fan Comment

Best casting for a new series: ABC's "Pruitts of Southampton," a comedy series about "high-society" stars Phyllis Diller as a Long Island matriarch with her snooty society neighbor, and arch-enemy, being portrayed by none other than Gypsy Rose Lee.

Commenting on the casting, Miss Diller mentioned that in the show her neighbor was a former dancer and she thought that just maybe she had heard the rumor that Gypsy had done a little "dancing" once or twice in her life, too.

Where Are Stars of Today?

By BARBARA STANWYCK

Hollywood (AP) — Sometimes, reading a TV column, I've thought, "Boy, if I had a column, I could sure tell 'em a thing or two!"

Now here I am, pundit for a day, but I find I'm a little short of decrees and pronouncements. What I've got is a question, one that really haunts me. It's this: What caused the crash in the star market?

I'm thinking especially of my favorite type of star — male. Look at the stars who came up during the '30s and '40s — Clark Gable, James Stewart, Spencer Tracy, Cary Grant, Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney — to name just a few.

There was a power about them. When Gary Cooper stood off a roomful of heavies with just a long, cool look, or when Gable scorched a woman with a look of a different nature, something magical happened; man, woman, or child, you were lifted out of yourself. A couple of generations of American males wanted to grow up to be just like ol' Coop.

Horizon Bleak

Some of these stars, thank heaven, are still performing. But who will take their place? To me, the horizon looks rather bleak, star-wise. Why?

I can think of circumstances that offer partial answers. For one thing, the kind of story done so often on Broadway and in motion pictures. They don't need strong men, just types who can whine real good. Who wants to identify with a loser?

How about television? Hundreds of young actors have played leads in series, but I leave it to you as to how many turned out to have the quality of a star.

Perhaps in this case the trouble is over-exposure. Maybe we saw them too often too soon. Would Gable have had that special magic for all of us if we had seen him every week?

Then, too, it used to be that a family would see perhaps two hours of film a week, at a movie. Now, they tell me, the average TV set is turned on 26½ hours a week. That's a lot of film, and a lot of faces. Maybe there's just not enough time for us to replay scenes in our minds, until the image of a potential Gable or Stewart can sink into the heart, and stay there.

Contract System

I think that another partial answer is the decline, for several years, of the contract system, when actors would be coached, developed, assigned carefully chosen roles. Now, an actor can do well in a movie or television appearance, then go home and wait two years for the phone to ring. I'm glad to see that studios are once again beginning to place promising newcomers under contract.

A friend of mine has suggested another partial answer: Maybe we're becoming too calloused, too hurried, too intent on our own concerns to spare much attention for a hero of any type. He pointed out that John Glenn, for example, got nothing like the adulation that Lindbergh received. And what fighter has come close to generating the excitement of Jack Dempsey?

As I say, these are just partial answers. The big secret still eludes me. Maybe you can tell me; I wish someone would.

Because I'm old fashioned. I like to look up. And when I do, I want to see the stars.

Show Wagon performers . . . Doug Schmidt of 310 So. 42nd will be on next, following acrobatics act of Barbara Downey, 7311 Starr.

At Pinewood Thursday

All-Stars Ride On Show Wagon

Focus on YOUTH

The cream of the crop will exhibit their talents at an all-star performance when the City Recreation Department's Show Wagon closes its first season at 8 p.m. Thursday in Pinewood Bowl.

Made possible through a gift of the Journal-Star Printing Co., the Show Wagon has been seen at and drawn talent from all of the city's supervised summer playgrounds.

Those on Thursday night's program include a jazz trio dance by Martha McCuster, dancing by Gayle Lotman, Tammy Sue and Robin Kay Adkisson, Cheryl Preiss, Cathy and Roxanne Buellgeibach, Cheri Smith and a representative from the Belmont area and a pantomime by Deanna Peterson.

The Bishops and the Mystics combos will play. There will be vocal solos by Genice Filbert, Roger Elliott and Will Pharis.

Lana Henning, Mary Lou Trilhar and Glenda Kay Ficken will twirl batons, Redge Johnson will perform magic acts and Barbara Downey will do acrobatic tricks.

Also included are Doug Schmidt playing the accordion, Nora Hutchens as a folk singer, Chris Moore with a Winnie the Pooh story, and musical comedy singing by Mary Gray and Jane Hudson.

Other Show Wagon performances this week will be at Whittier playground on Tuesday night and Pentzer Park Wednesday night. Shows begin at 8 p.m.

SOCIAL or FESTIVAL?

Depends on Your Age and Who Eats the Ice Cream

By HOLLY SPENCE

When the thermometer surges into the 100's . . . relief is only a crank away. There IS a way to beat the heat . . . and it can be for mere personal pleasure or perhaps even a money-making project. The cool way . . . an ice cream social!

To kids nowadays, it's called an ice cream social, but parents will put up a vocal battle . . . many say it's an ice cream festival.

"An ice cream festival is when you make and sell ice cream to others," professed one parent, "and an ice cream social . . . well . . . that's when you eat it yourself."

But whether you differ on the nomenclature . . . social or festival . . . the fun is still the same.

Any group can get together and the good times will roll.

One Lincoln group, the Methodist Youth Fellowship at the Trinity Methodist Church, decided on a "social" for a money-making project.

And why be conventional and use the easy electrically motivated ice cream freezers, the old "crank-in-hand" method is just as good.

Actually there's no better way to make homemade ice cream, than the old-fashioned way . . . the way that grandma used to make it. It takes a little more "elbow grease," but it's worth every crank.

And everyone can get "in the act!" Girls can try their hand at cuisine talents and prepare the basics for that delightful icy mixture and the boys, well, they can do the cranking. It's a biceps-builder course, free for the asking!

"Socials" promote esprit de corps. And nothing is more important than the spirit of the group.

A get-together such as this gives kids a chance to work together, learn cooperation and become better acquainted.

And if you want to know how to advertise an event like this, just ask the Youth Fellowship members, for they seem to have the inside track on creamy public relations.

And they went "all out" for this one. Their publicity stunt was "costumed" and "vehicled."

They donned ice-cream-socializing duds (of the Gay-90 vintage) and climbed on tandem bicycles and became pedaling towneriers.

Add a few posters in local businesses and the help of mass media . . . and the "social" was on its way to success.

Eyes turned toward the typical teens turned traditional troubadours; the word floated around the neighborhood and tickets flew.

After the initial public relations work, the next project . . . to decorate the event, held indoors to prevent any possible tangle with Mr. Weatherman.

Oversized banners flew outside the church and the "socializing" area was converted into an old ice cream parlor atmosphere complete with oil lamps. Granny-gowned girls and vested guys served the cooled confection.

So if you have a yen for a financial boost or just want to satisfy a sweet tooth . . . ask this teen group how to make real work turn into play, for they agreed that "a good time was had by all."

'Summer' Leads Top Tunes

Dam on Columbia Monument to Strayed Nebraskan

"All we need is a slab of concrete across that river," surveyed Rufus Woods, publisher of the Wenatchee (Wash.) Daily World, "and this desert will bloom like Eden."

Celebrating its 25th anniversary, the Grand Coulee dam spanning the mighty Columbia River stands a monument to this native Nebraskan strayed north.

Born and raised in Surprise and a 1903 graduate of the University of Nebraska law school, Woods landed in the dusty flats of central Washington coming back broke from the Alaska gold rush.

Routine Check

Innocuous in origin, Woods landed the Grand Coulee story on a routine news check.

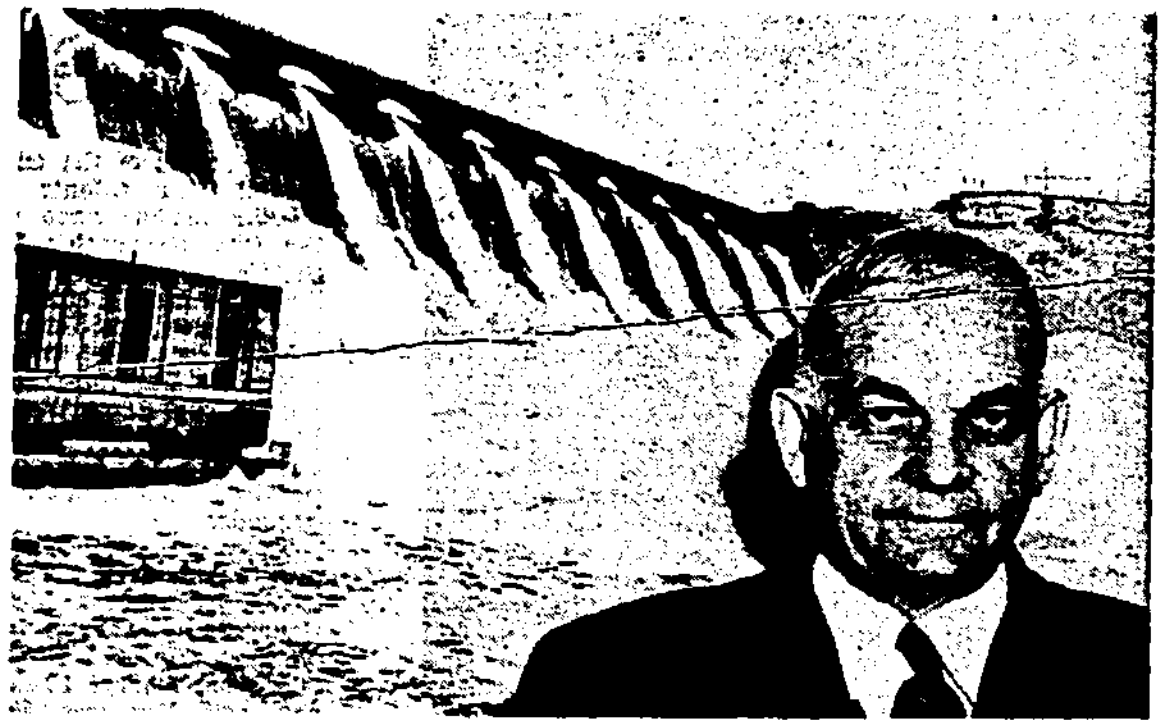
In 1918 Billy Clapp, lawyer in the neighboring town of Ephrata got to musing on hot July day about the wonders of ice.

He had read where 25,000 years ago an ice age glacier had dammed the mighty Columbia and diverted its course to carve out of granite a canyon 52 miles long, 1.5 miles wide and 1000 feet deep — the canyon known as Grand Coulee.

"If the Almighty could dam the Columbia with a cake of ice, why couldn't man do it with concrete?" Clapp asked — and Rufus typed excitedly.

Light and Water

The dam would be built where the glacier once stemmed the river so water could be stored in the coulee to irrigate the surrounding desert wasteland and at the same time light the valley with cheap electric power.



$63 million, tripled . . . Rufus Woods and Coulee Dam.

TWO MILLION WILD HORSES bannerlined the Daily World headlines — and the battle was on.

"Of all the outrages on agriculture . . . we are beginning to think the Columbia Basin project takes the cake," a midwest farm journal wrote. "Who wants it? Nobody!"

But Rufus wanted it and so did Clapp. The halls of Congress rang with echoes from Wood's editorials; they became avid public speakers and although razzed and dammed gained converts.

Most importantly — they gained Franklin D. Roosevelt. He acted.

The president was seeking ways to put the unemployed to work and building the Grand Coulee was to become the biggest federal project in the country.

FDR Backing

With FDR's backing the 33rd Congress passed a $63 million appropriation bill authorizing the construction of the dam. That figure had more than tripled by 1940.

Within a 12 miles radius of the damsite, jackrabbits and rattlesnakes scurried for the hills as dozens of towns sprang up—towns with such names as Rim Rock, Electric City and Mason City.

Indians cut their braids and replaced feathers with hard hats. High climbers left their spar trees on the Olympic Peninsula and rigged giant cranes.

Thousands of Jobs

Oakies and Arkies left the fields of the Grapes of Wrath and helped pour the 10,552,889 cubic yards of concrete that went into the dam. Approximately 7,500 men worked on construction alone.

In 1941—twenty-three years after the discouraging uphill battle had begun — the dam stood ready for use. From the lowest bedrock she stood 550 feet tall; her lofty battlements 4,173 feet long, could hold four ships the size of the Queen Mary, stern to bow.

A travel enthusiast, Woods roamed much of the world once the dam was completed. Infrequently he returned to Nebraska bubbling with enthusiasm for his adopted land and eager to learn of the changes in a state for which he still had a great deal of affection.

While touring Canada in 1950 the 72-year-old power enthusiast died of a heart attack, one month after he had witnessed the dedication of Grand Coulee by President Truman.

"The alkaline desert filled with dead men's bones" is now a checkerboard of fertile fields criss-crossed by a network of sparkling lakes. "Rufus' pipe dream" has become a reality.

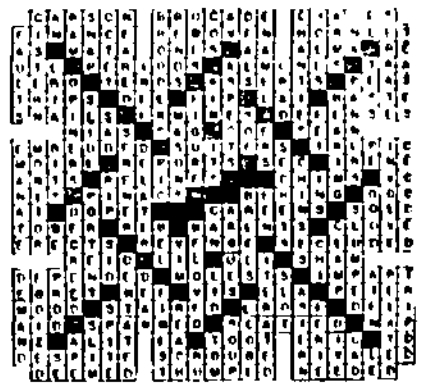
Puzzle Solution



You May Hide Car On Train

Chicago Daily News Special

Washington — By late 1967, you may be able to sit in your car and ride piggyback on a train.

As a starter the Commerce Dept. is considering an experimental rail piggyback service between Florida and the Northeast.

It would be a new way to travel, and you and your car would get on the train. You sit in your car but the train "drives" you.

The experiment is part of Uncle Sam's push to find better ways to move people and cars. It would be financed with federal funds provided for rapid transit development and research. The Commerce Dept. runs the program.

Dr. Robert A. Nelson, director of the Office of High Speed Transportation in the Commerce Dept., said the Florida experiment is only in the planning phase.

Piggyback Service

The Commerce Dept. is considering the piggyback service between Jacksonville and Washington, D.C., Dr. Nelson said.

But studies may show that it would be better to start the auto ferry at a point further south in Florida and run it beyond Washington to New York, Dr. Nelson added.

The experiment would be designed to demonstrate whether this new way to travel is worthwhile.

New freight cars—enclosed for the comfort of passengers in their autos—would have to be built for the demonstration project, Dr. Nelson said.

For this reason, his experiment probably won't start until late 1967, Nelson said.

Wagner Record Triumph

By ROBERT C. MARSH
Chicago Sun-Times Special

MUSIC

The new RCA-Victor album of Wagner's "Lohengrin" is one of the most perfectly achieved operatic recordings to appear in several seasons. The cast is a fine one—you would be lucky to do as well in any major opera house of the world today. The level of orchestral performance is exceptional in every respect, and why not? It's the Boston Symphony on home ground in all its glory.

But the real victory goes to the recording crew, headed by Richard Mohr, and conductor Erich Leinsdorf who reminds us forcefully that he can control the development of 3½-hour music drama with a security and authority unsurpassed since the death of his sometime mentor, Auturo Toscanini.

Clearly one of the major events of the opera year, this is the first absolutely complete version with the "Anhang" following the third act grail narrative as Wagner originally intended.

With these sessions in August of last year, American orchestral musicians proved the artistic merit and economic possibly of recording opera in this country once more. The last time an American symphony orchestra taped a long opera under its resident music director was in 1954 when RCA-Victor concluded its opera series with Toscanini and the NBC Symphony. A good part of that album was made during broadcasts.

Since then opera recording has been largely the monopoly of the European musician. The Metropolitan Opera orchestra last worked before the microphone eight years ago when it taped Verdi's "Macbeth" for Victor.

Comparisons of the "Lohengrin" are unavoidable with the other stereo version on the Angel label. Angel has superlative villains. Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau is Telramund, and Christa Ludwig sings Ortrud. Victor's William Dooley is a fine young artist, and his performance is the more orthodox, but Fischer-Dieskau draws the more emphatic character.

Choosing between the two Ortruds, one is impressed by the beauty and weight of tone that Victor's Rita Gorr can produce.

Victor casts Sandor Konya in the title role, and his is a very warm and human performance. Angel's Jess Thomas is more remote.

Elisabeth Gruemmer, Angel's Elsa, is a nearly perfect example of what a first-class German soprano does with this role. Victor departs from stereotypes and employs an American, Lucine Amara, who stresses the lyric elements in this music, more in the spirit of Italian opera. Her performance defends her viewpoint well.

Jerome Hines is the king in the Victor set with Calvin Marsh the herald. Both are more than equal to their Angel counterparts.

Post Horn Solo At Final Concert

Prof. Dennis Schneider will play Barsotti's "A Nautical Galop" as a post horn solo tonight when the Lincoln Municipal Band closes its 1966 summer season. The concert at the bandshell near 32nd and Sumner in Antelope Park begins at 7:30.

The post horn, a valveless forerunner of the modern cornet, was used by 18th and 19th century couriers and post (mail) riders to herald their coming. English versions were straight while the continental instrument was coiled, resembling a stubby bugle.

Schneider, who teaches bass instruments at the University of Nebraska, also will play a trumpet solo, and Mrs. Virginia Ralles Duxbury will be vocal soloist.

John Shildneck will direct this program:

Guitar Sales Up

By United Press International

The guitar boom of the past several years goes on. Unit sales for the first three months of 1966 were up more than 10% and retail value jumped 23% over 1965.

At this rate, reports the American Music Conference, unit sales of electric and straight guitars for 1966 will exceed 1,650,000 and Americans will spend more than $172 million on guitars and amplifiers.

Sales in 1962 were only 435,000 units, with a retail value of $41 million.

A new trend in guitar interest is the prime reason for increases in sales of higher-priced models. People who bought guitars in recent years, to protest or be popular, are taking the instrument more seriously.

They are interested in more than merely strumming a few chords for song accompaniment, or supplying a rhythm section for a combo.

While these are two important factors in youngsters' purchases of guitars, the instrument is being discovered for its broad versatility and capability.

"Well, madam, I've been living with it for five years."

A NEW BLACK-AND-WHITE STRUCTURE

Framed of Order or of Destruction's Rubble?

Call The Keeper. By Nat Hentoff; Viking.

Like it or not, the United States is becoming ever more a continental framework enclosing globs of gray urban protoplasm. The impression here is that this prospect is not one appealing to soil-rooted Nebraskans. Yet this is most certainly ahead.

It is in these metropolitan warrens, too, that white America is painfully becoming more aware of the black America it has caused to be developed over the past several centuries. Here is a crippled, twisted culture that has gut honesty, but few other attributes immediately appealing to the Caucasian majority.

Nat Hentoff's fierce little novel, a tale of racial identity, offers a cameo study of that black America. It is worth the time of an adult reader.

Symbolic Men

All is told—the plot isn't much—through the first-person vision of four individuals. Two are white and two Negro. None is one of the primary protagonists.

These roles are filled by men more symbols than fully-developed individuals.

John the Avenger walks the revolutionist, black nationalist pathway as a means of striking back at the hated white America. He deliberately humiliates and abandons white wife and child. Color blind to the skin, she offered John recognition of personality. The Avenger's militant aim is to throw revolutionary rocks into the mechanism, to dislocate, to foster chaos.

"But we got time before the chaos," John observes.

BOOKS

"By the time we're ready, we'll know how to make the chaos work for us. And by then we'll be organized, we'll have the swing power to either stop the country or get what we want. Whitey keeps moving out and leaving more and more of the cities to us. It won't be long before Baltimore, Detroit, Cleveland, Saint Louis will be more than half black . . . And right now we got more than a fifth of the population in more than 20 big cities in the North."

The black nationalist, then, steels himself and plots and waits and organizes.

But the brilliant Septimus Williams channels his hatred inwardly, allowing the "beast" in him to emerge on occasion to satiate itself.

Keeper Of Violence

Well aware of his psychopathic tendencies, Septimus cunningly plays them to lure Horowitz, the Jewish detective, to possible extinction.

Horowitz is the keeper of the larger beast, the violence of mankind.

Most of Hentoff's black and white characters have about them the ring of authenticity save for Horowitz. He seems too perfect.

In the end, it is the whites—Horowitz joining the anti-poverty warrior corps and musician Randall leaving pot for an involved life—who seek to change the society within the framework of order.

Hentoff's Negroes want to remake it, too, but generally from after boards and planks left when the present structure is destroyed.

It is not, as said before, the most attractive of prospects.

—Dick Herman

Man's Epic Voyages

The subject of "Lodestone and Evening Star" by Ian Cameron (Dutton) is man's epic voyages. The author, a British historian, accepts as fact that the Vikings discovered North America about 1003 and maintained settlements here for five centuries. This is a delightful book for armchair mariners—knowledgeable, stirringly narrated and admirably illustrated.

Cavorting With the Campus Goats

Giles Goat-Boy or The Revised New Syllabus. By John Barth; Doubleday.

A vast, often baffling confusion, not a wholly successful novel but sometimes thrilling reading, much more than a hodgepodge, rather a melange of science fiction, abracadabra, mythology, animal husbandry, 57 varieties of sex, the campus, cosmos and computer — you name it and you will encounter it in a book with 710 story pages and 20 more of front matter.

The canny publisher, it develops, is prepared for readers to be of two minds. The editor-in-chief favors publishing the Barth manuscript. But he lets us read the disparate opinions of editors A, B, C, and D.

And there is still more before we arrive at the story: this is not Barth's, he claims — unless maybe he and the editors, too, are pulling the reader's leg?

He, Barth, is pottering at a novel of his own when an odd character with a caprine scent about him comes in with a fat manuscript. He says it's the autobiography of his father, George Giles, and the record of his astounding experiments with the Revised New Syllabus.

This opens the goat pen of onetime Prof. Max Spielman. There is Billy Bocksfuss, who, once elevated from goatdom, becomes Giles. And all the goats at the stock farm of New Tammany College are irrepressibly goatish.

With a couple of mentors our hero sets out boldly for New Tammany, the West Campus or the Western World; commencement is conclusion; campus is campus, camp, or world; Founder is God; plus is minus, and Barth is almost a miracle-worker but not quite.

"The Floating Opera," his first novel, is an episodic work of a remarkably sustained brilliance. This should be more episodic; Barth is too generous. Whether he talks about the rise of life from animal to man, or warns against dehumanization or just tongue-in-cheek tells a story, he wanders, wasting his space and our time.

But Barth is entirely a novelist with a wild, free imagination and an inexhaustible flood of ideas. All he needs is brakes.

More of North's Cute Critters

Raccoons Are the Brightest People. By Sterling North; Dutton.

If Sterling North has done well by his raccoons, they have done equally well by him. One of them, Rascal, became the hero of a book by North which sold a million copies.

Rascal vanished and may be dead but the Norths have other friendly raccoons around their house. The new book is about some of them, and you have only to look at the photographs to see that the author is not exaggerating when he calls the raccoon the most intelligent creature on this continent after man.

No jar or bottle, for example, can withstand them. North tells of two raccoons trying to open a glass jar. After wrestling with it fruitlessly, one clasped it firmly to his belly while the other unscrewed the cap.

Norths' neighbors in New Jersey discovered an old raccoon who likes good music. When they put on a record of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, in walked the raccoon and sat down in front of the phonograph.

He stayed there till the music ended, then quietly returned to the woods. The old fellow's tastes, we are told, run to Bach and Beethoven only.

This book isn't another "Rascal," principally because it lacks a single lovable scallywag; but its bits and pieces about other animals make it a natural for readers who like to cuddle furry creatures.

On Reading

The initial aim of the purposeful reader should be to learn something — and be able to hold forth at the dinner table about it. If you want to score points, you've got to get the conversation round to something you've read, and prove you're up to the subject.

A library with one book is not too small for you if this one book brings out in you your very best. A library with a million books is not large enough for you if you do not bring to it the capacity to dream.
